New Deal Plans Super Spy System

SLEUTHS WOULD SNOOP ON U. S. AND THE WORLD

Order Creating It Already Drafted.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—Creation of an all powerful intelligence service to spy on the post-war world and to pry into the lives of citizens at home is under consideration by the New Deal.

Brig. Gen. Donovan.

THE TRIBUNE today secured exclusively a copy of an unpublicized memorandum from Brig. Gen. William J. Donovan, director of the office of strategic services, which coördinates intelligence information, to President Roosevelt proposing to set up the super-spy agency. Donovan left the decision as to whether the unit should be created by legislative action or executive order up to the President.

Copy of Order Obtained.

THE TRIBUNE also obtained a copy of a secret suggested draft of an order setting up the general intelligence service, which would outrank all existing federal police and intelligence units, including military intelligence, naval intelligence, the federal bureau of investigation, the secret service, the internal revenue agents, and the federal communications commission, which monitors all radio airways. The order gives the unit a wholesale grant of power.

Only 15 copies of the memorandum and draft order were made. Each was plastered with secrecy injunctions. These went to such high officials as Adm. Leahy, chief of staff to the commander in chief; Gen. Marshall, chief of staff of the army; Adm. King, chief of naval operations; Secretary of State Stettinius, Secretary of the Navy Forrestal, and Secretary of War Stimson.

Vests Huge Power.

Ostensibly the purpose of the super-intelligence unit is to spy on America's neighbors thruout the world for the purpose of formulating a foreign policy and developing strategy. This stated purpose would indicate that neither Mr. Roosevelt nor Gen. Donovan expects the end of the war to usher in an era of perpetual peace.

Under the draft order the director of the super-spy unit would have tremendous power in being charged with gathering and sifting intelligence for the White House and all federal agencies. It would be possible, under the order, for him to determine American foreign policy by weeding out, withholding, or coloring information gathered at his direction.

Altho the agency would be concerned primarily with foreign intelligence, and would have no police powers at home or abroad, the draft order would empower the spy chief to coördinate all intelligence agencies of the government, establish a general policy for them and

U. S. Building Big Peace Base on Kwajalein

BY HAROLD SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KWAJALEIN ISLAND, Marshalls, Feb. 4 [Delayed].—One year ago today the snappy, scrappy 7th infantry division destroyed the last organized Jap resistance on this largest of the Marshall Islands and it became ours. Since then there has been plenty of action.

Lt. Edward S. Kelly [top] and Lt. Comdr. Douglas Wilson.

The face lifting started here by the Japs with the building of a short air strip has been carried to the ultimate by our engineers and Seabees. The greenery nature took centuries to apply has all but disappeared.

Palms, breadfruits, and pandanus not killed by the bombardment preceding our coming fell swiftly before bulldozers which lengthened and widened the runway, leveled the island surface to table flatness and even added area to help bear the heavy load of practical installations which utilize virtually every square inch.

Will Grow After War.

Today Kwajalein is one of the busiest crossroads in the Pacific. Its usefulness has been manifold, but its chief function now is to serve as a base for planes keeping nearby Jap held islands neutralized, and as an overnight rest and refueling station for swarms of freight and passenger planes which criss-cross the ocean, knitting our new far flung island holdings into a closely integrated whole.

From an aviation standpoint Kwajalein's usefulness seems destined to grow uninterruptedly after the war. It is evident from the permanence of new installations that our military and naval leaders to not anticipate abandonment of the island. It would appear that the same may go for other strategically located islands our fighting legions have annexed. What has already happened in the Gilberts, Marshalls, Carolines, and Marianas is probably only a small foretaste of what is to come when peace opens airlanes to the argosies of commerce.

Chicagoans in Command.

Navy Lt. Edward S. Kelly, 7017 Bennett av., Chicago, former American Airlines operation man in Chicago and now flight control officer here for the navy air transport service, believes Kwajalein will be one of the world's big aviation stops after the war.

"Our air field here handles a lot more traffic than even the biggest sky harbors back home," he said. "Our safety record is better than that of the average commercial line. One reason, of course, is the prevailing mild weather here. We've never yet canceled one trip

Predict 10% Cut in Beer Output

A dry summer for beer drinkers was predicted yesterday by Chicago brewers, who said a shortage of three years duration would be increased by a reduction in barley malt quotas expected March 1.

The cut, expected to be 10 per cent, will result in a corresponding drop in output at once, it was predicted. Altho beer must be aged from 30 to 60 days and ale somewhat longer, brewers will reduce their distribution as soon as the cut comes, they said.

Moderate Effect in Chicago.

Chicago, however, will not be so severely affected as other parts of the country, it was predicted. Always a large market, it receives more different brands than any other area in the nation. In addition to both draft and bottled beer shipped in from other cities, it is served by a large number of local breweries.

Brewers are now limited to about 90 per cent of the malt used in the corresponding three month periods of 1942. The expected reduction is to provide more malt for distillers, who use it to start fermentation of the mash used in making industrial alcohol for war use.

Malting Barley Crop Short.

Altho there is plenty of feed barley, choice malting barley has been scarce all season and has brought ceiling prices ever since the new crop was harvested last fall. The crop last year was 284 million bushels, 40 million less than in 1943.

Under war food administration order 15 per cent of each brewery's output goes to the army and navy.

A POOR WAY TO ATTRACT A DOVE

Yanks Spurn U.S.O. Shows; Hail Belgians

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

U. S. 1ST ARMY HDQ., Belgium, Feb. 8.—Because G. Is think the U. S. O. has been almost a flop in providing entertainment for troops, 1st army special service officers have staged three different shows using civilian Belgian entertainers and are trying to line up six more.

One troupe of 13 persons, including two stage hands, has completed a three weeks tour of all rest areas in the immediate rear of the front lines, playing to capacity houses and great applause.

Featuring two beautiful Belgian lassies who sing American songs, a hot seven piece band from Brussels, two platinum blonde dancers, and a juggler, the troupe last night found it hard to ring down the final curtain because of G. I. whistles of appreciation. This show was picked up from a Brussels night club.

Charge Talent Is Inferior.

Civilian units were introduced only after the G. Is started walking out on the U. S. O. shows. One officer said most U. S. O. shows sent to this theater had inferior talent and that troupers come before the soldiers with the attitude that they are doing something heroic in entertaining troops.

A notable exception has been Chicago's Willie Shore, long a favorite in near north side night clubs, who soldiers say has done the finest job of any one with his dancing and fast ad libbing. Others who have earned army accolade for good entertainment and good fellowship include Joe McKenna and his sister, now touring the 3d army; Dinah Shore, Marlene Dietrich, Bing Crosby, and Fred Astaire. There were other big names, tho, whom the G. Is considered terrific "flopperoos."

Soldiers say the front needs more show people who are interested more in doing their best than in making money.

Need Larger Shows.

The shows, according to show people now in the army, should be bigger and better directed. Most now have from one to three entertainers. They say show people sent overseas by the U. S. O. should be men and women willing to take some discomfort to do a good job. And each show should come equipped with its own tents, public address system, and equipment instead of expecting to be spoon fed by grateful soldiers.

Many entertainers complain they don't have hot running water and electric lights in every billet, authorities say. Once during the St. Lo break-thru one U. S. O. show became angry when it had no hot water for three days. At that time 1st army headquarters had no hot water, either.

Other minor irritations to the army include inability of many show units to move anywhere on time. If movement by army truck is scheduled for 8 a. m., not an early hour in the army but certainly on the stage, it is not uncommon to find the entire troupe fast asleep at 10 o'clock.

The biggest gripe from G. Is is that the U. S. O. has been shipping over entertainers no one would pay to see at home even in a war time boom town.

1,479 JAP PLANES MONTH'S BAG BY ARMY AND NAVY

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Japan lost 1,479 planes and probably 129 more in January, a tabulation yesterday of official reports disclosed. American army and navy air forces, not including B-29s, based in the Pacific accounted for 1,048 planes destroyed and 29 probables.

United States B-29 Super Fortresses based in India, China, and the Marianas destroyed 97 and probably 52 more; the United States 14th army air force, based in China, destroyed 334 and chalked up 48 probables.

Phone as You Ride! It's New Chicago Step

The telephone rings and the man behind the steering wheel of the car lifts the receiver hanging from the dashboard and answers.

"Doctor," says the voice, "Mrs. Thompson would like you to call. She thinks her son has the mumps." The doctor then dials Mrs. Thompson's number and allays her fears while he drives thru the streets to another home.

This is just one of the many future possibilities of the telephone after the war, George Bray, division office manager for Illinois Bell Telephone company, said yesterday. Several cars equipped with telephones are touring Chicago streets getting perfect service with the dial system.

Operated by Short Wave.

Such traveling telephones work on short wave frequencies, Bray explained. By dialing a certain number, contact is made by short wave on a special frequency with a central point, which mechanically gives the number desired.

Bray envisioned the short wave telephone as having innumerable uses, especially in rural areas. Sheep ranchers could use it to contact their herders on the range; cowboys, border patrolmen, and others whose work takes them into lonely, uninhabited country will find the traveling telephone a necessary piece of equipment, he said.

With 35 per cent of the nation's six million farms now equipped with telephones, there is a possibility that 80 per cent will be served after the war. The lines are ready for this volume of business, Bray said.

Other new inventions promise to make telephoning an easy matter for the farmer, doing away with the old party line and eliminating the danger of storms and ice disrupting service, he predicted.

New Wire Defies Elements.

A new wire has been developed that will permit poles to be placed 450 feet apart, instead of the present 200. The wire is much more resistant to wear and high winds, sleet, and ice. It will mean fewer interruptions of service, Bray explained.

Scientists also have found a practical system for transmitting telephone conversations over power lines which now carry only electricity. This will offer service to rural families that are far from existing telephone lines but close to a power line, he asserted. A new rubber covered wire also has been developed to protect telephone lines in the ground from deterioration, he said.

MANILA'S PASIG RIVER CROSSED BY U.S. TROOPS

Yanks Join Fight in South of City.

FIRST MANILA PICTURES.

MANILA, Feb. 9 [Friday]—(AP).—Riding in amphibious vehicles, 37th division Yanks crossed the Pasig river Thursday near Malacanan palace to root out Japanese who had wrecked the river bridges and have kindled fires in the congested Intramuros district.

The point of crossing into the last sector of Manila in which the Japanese suicide squads are extensively active was nearly two miles east of the docks.

This suggested a wide circling movement around the Intramuros [walled city] and docks toward the 11th air borne division of Maj. Gen. Joseph M. Swing, trying to break into Manila from the south by way of suburban Pasay.

Work Toward Docks.

The 37th, after establishing their bridgehead on the Pasig's south bank, worked south and southwest thru open spaces around the gas works toward the walled city and dock sector. There was nothing to indicate that the 11th air borne Yanks, five and one-half miles south of the Pasig, had succeeded in eliminating or by-passing enemy pockets at Nichols field.

A number of fires were reported burning in the Intramuros, which is a commercial-residential section, heavily populated by Filipinos and Chinese.

In the north part of the central Luzon plain, MacArthur's 6th army men captured the towns of Munoz, Rizal, and Lupac in pushing the Japanese into the eastern foothills. The general reported that enemy losses had been "very heavy" in both personnel and material in this stubbornly held sector.

At Munoz alone 1,242 enemy troops were killed. Forty-two tanks were captured or destroyed, along with 62 armored cars or artillery vehicles and 22 guns.

200 Tanks Wiped Out.

MacArthur said more than 200 enemy tanks of the 2d Japanese armored division—more than two-thirds of its striking power—had been wiped out and "remaining elements are now so scattered that this division is no longer an effective fighting unit."

Again Liberator bombers poured a heavy bomb load on Corregidor fortress. Coastal defense positions were damaged with large fires resulting.

MacArthur's Friday bulletin said patrol torpedo boats sank two troop laden coastal vessels in the central Philippines with considerable personnel losses.

Filipino and Chinese residents of fire blackened Manila were reported dying from starvation at the rate of several hundred a day.

Looters Take Furniture.

Looters included the retreating garrison of Japanese, who already had burned and blasted the business heart of the city into ruins. As the Japanese retreated, the dazed and hungry people of Manila reported, they ransacked even private homes for hidden food.

Other looters took what they could, said Felipe Buencamino, former Manila newspaper man.

"Not only furniture, but even walls and floors are being carted away," he said. Those participating in this form of desperation looting included women and children.

Buencamino reported these buildings destroyed: The city's opera house; the Ideal, Avenue, State, Life, and Grand theaters; the Great Eastern and Marco Polo hotels; Heacock's, Manila's largest department store; the Philippine National bank, Philippine Trust building, chartered bank, Bank of India, and the Hong Kong-Shanghai bank.

Food prices have reached such ridiculous figures as 20,000 pesos for a 110 pound sack of rice, which used to cost 8 pesos.

NAZIS HOLD OUT IN FIVE POCKETS ON FRENCH COAST

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RENNES, Brittany, Feb. 8.—The fact that the Germans still hold the Channel Islands and five bridgeheads on the French Atlantic coast between Brest and Bordeaux makes one of the strangest anomalies of the war.

When the so-called Atlantic wall was dislocated last June by Gen. Eisenhower's landings, 80,000 to 100,000 Germans were enabled to remain enclosed, with all their arms and equipment, in five different pockets from which no large effort has ever been made to dislodge them.

Under the German yoke in these five pockets 200,000 French people remained under their former, if not worse, condition of occupation until three weeks ago, when by a truce many of them were evacuated to Nantes, Limoges, and other cities of liberated France.

The Five Pockets.

These five pockets, which form roughly five small fronts against which French Forces of the Interior and some American units are pitted, seeking to contain but not to oust them, are roughly as follows:

FIRST—The Morbihan sector, which comprises principally the port of Lorient and the islands of Groix and Belle Ile. The Quiberon peninsula and the coastal zone of Carnac is no man's land, a region of patrols.

SECOND—The sector of the lower Loire, which is much bigger and includes St. Nazaire port and a wide strip running toward Nantes, also the islands of Noirmoutier and Ile d'Yeu.

THIRD — The sector of La Rochelle, in the center of which the city forms an entrenched camp, with the islands of Re and Oleron, forming outlying bastions on either flank, also occupied by the Germans.

Ports Well Fortified.

FOURTH—The sector of Royan, which closes the mouth of the Gironde river and makes the ports of Ryan and Bordeaux unusable.

FIFTH—The sector of Pointe de Grave, on the peninsula of Gironde opposite Royan, which includes the harbor of Verdon. The port of Brest, for a long time occupied, was cleared of the Germans months ago.

In all these sectors, the Germans have artillery, tanks, heavy infantry equipment, and great numbers of anti-aircraft guns. In each port is a blockhouse, protected by reënforced concrete works, with underground command posts, heavy artillery, stocks of water, food, munitions, and gasoline. Then another zone of occupation, extending inland for about 20 to 30 kilometers [12 to 18 miles], surrounds this inner fortress. Patrols roam this surrounding zone, and they forage for food in it.

Finally, on the outer periphery of this surrounding zone is a line of field fortifications and entrenchments, beyond which is no man's land, separating the Germans from the F. F. I.'s and their entrenchments. German artillery frequently sweeps this no man's land at the slightest movement.

French Squeeze Front.

The French forces have only light weapons to contend with this German heavy equipment. Gen. De Gaulle said a few days ago, however, that this was not a forgotten front. Every German there eventually will be either dead or a prisoner, he said.

The French forces have succeeded in holding the Germans in and also in squeezing the ring back to a smaller area, reducing the extent of the fronts.

The Germans, to obtain supplies, make raids in the villages and pillage farms. But they also get supplies parachuted from planes at night, and from submarines.

The Germans in these five sectors were alerted in December to be ready to break out into France and t thru toward the north to collaborate with Von Rundstedt's Ardennes drive.

A French newspaper columnist recently asked: "Will Berlin fall before St. Nazaire?"

CANADIANS HIT FLANK OF LINE; YANKS PUSH ON

PARIS, Feb. 9 [Friday] (AP).—The Canadian 1st army, striking behind an 11 hour barrage and with flame throwers and tanks, launched a grand scale offensive yesterday morning apparently designed to turn the west wall's north flank and break into the Ruhr and Rhineland.

In the first hours the assault along the long dormant northern end of the western front southeast of Nijmegen, Holland, gained two miles and Canadian and British troops battled inside fortifications of the west wall [Siegfried line].

With two United States armies already battering three breaches in the west wall on a 70 mile front inside Germany, and two others poised to strike along the Roer before Germany, the final battle for Germany may be at hand.

American troops and tanks captured the Nazi fortress town of Schmidt, southeast of Aachen, and ripped their newest hole in the buckling Siegfried line yesterday in what looked like the start of a break-thru to the Rhine—27 miles ahead—nearing a giant dam whose flood could drown any smash across the German plain farther north.

Threat to Industrial Area.

Sorely pressed at the approaches to Berlin by the Russians on the east, the German armies in the west were desperately forced to try to hold back a tide threatening to spill out on to the Rhineland plain and engulf their great industrial cities.

A front dispatch said Field Marshal Montgomery sent his British and Canadian divisions of the Canadian 1st army into action on a five mile front southeast of Nijmegen. The cannonading and more than 1,500 war planes blasted out a path. The Germans offered feeble resistance at first and gains up to two miles were recorded by the attackers at the outset. They captured several hundred prisoners.

The exact location of the assault was not announced, but the fact that the British and dominion troops had fought into Germany's Reich forest indicated that Montgomery was aiming at the tip of the west wall, which terminate at Kleve, east of the forest.

May Cut Behind Roer.

The Rhine, which crosses into Holland four miles north of Kleve, winds southeastward past such Ruhr and Rhine industrial cities as Emmerich, Wesel, Duesseldorf, and Cologne. A drive along its west bank would cut behind powerful enemy defenses along the Roer river.

Lt. Gen. Hodges' United States 1st army assault more than 85 miles to the southeast likewise threatened to detour around the Roer line—which has held up the allies since November—and break out into the industrial heart of Germany.

Pilots patrolling roads and railways leading to the Nijmegen battle zone said German troop movement toward the fighting line increased late in the day, indicating the enemy was rushing to bolster the critical sector.

Early Progress Rapid.

Supported by tanks and flame throwers, the British and Canadian infantry jumped off at 10:30 a. m. with hundreds of warplanes droning overhead. Progress was rapid over the soggy wooded terrain.

[Canadian troops pushed off in their big offensive thru a "valley of hell" in which houses, German vehicles, and trees were aflame from hours of artillery bombardment, an eyewitness dispatch from a British correspondent said. "I counted 200 fires and then gave up," said the writer. "If ever an attack had fire support this one did."]

Nearly 500 United States medium and light bombers joined more than 1,000 British bombers and fighter bombers in beating a path ahead of the ground assault. They pounded troop concentrations, strong points, and communications centers in Kleve, Calcar, Emmerich, Elten, Doetinchem, and Gruenwald.

A German broadcast said Gen.

Eisenhower's "preliminary offensive"—a prelude "to impending battles"—was extended last night to the area of Trier, Siegfried fortress standing six miles inside the reich across the Moselle valley route to the Rhineland.

Two 1st army divisions drilled the newest hole in the Siegfried line by capturing the hill-girt stronghold of Schmidt, 15 miles southeast of Aachen. The hills of Schmidt were considered the greatest military prize in the Siegfried line in that area, and from their commanding summits doughboys could see the city of Bonn on the Rhine—27 miles beyond.

Seven miles to the southeast, other 1st army forces were beating at the defenses of Gemuend, threatening to break out into the plains.

Units of an unidentified division forced a crossing of the Kall river—another of the network of rivers on the route to Cologne—north of Kommersheidt, a mile northwest of Schmidt.

Graveyard of Many Yanks.

Schmidt, a shell torn village in a clearing of Huertgen forest, fell to the 78th infantry division, which slashed almost to the bank of a big reservoir formed by the 1,080 foot long Schwammenuel dam. The 78th was aided by a tank company and artillery directed by Maj. John L. Martinus, 1708 N. Leclaire st., Chicago.

The 78th division had been fighting on the north and west sides of Schmidt since the night of Jan. 6.

Schmidt is the graveyard of many an American. Just after the Aachen break-thru last fall, two regiments [perhaps 6,000 men] were almost annihilated when they tried to batter their way past the high ground of the big dam.

Ten miles south of Schmidt the 1st army already had cut thru the west wall at Hellenthal, and the vital road centers of Gemuend and Schleiden between the two forces were clamped in a nutcracker.

Beyond the fortified system of bunkers, pillboxes, and concrete tank traps the Germans have rushed earthwork defenses which stretch all the way to the Rhine at some points. American forces which already have tackled these earthworks have found them as rugged as the concrete fortifications.

3d Army Nears Pruem.

Twenty-five miles south of Gemuend, Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army was fighting within a mile and a quarter of the besieged fortress of Pruem and bringing up fresh forces thru an eight mile wide breach in the west wall.

Farther south, four divisions of the 3d hacked out gains up to a half mile and were about a mile inside the reich at a point 15 miles southwest of Pruem. More troops were pouring into Germany despite rising resistance.

In the 3d army campaign in the Moselle valley, east of the southern Luxemburg border, a half-mile gain was scored by the 94th infantry in clearing up additional Siegfried pillboxes southeast of Sinz, which is 14 miles southeast of Luxemburg city.

Alsace Battle Nears End.

The battle of southern Alsace was ended except for the mopup as the enemy blew up the last Rhine bridge at Chalampe, northeast of Mulhouse, leaving a few hundred Germans wandering in what one week ago was the powerful Colmar pocket.

The Rhine-Rhone canal, where the Germans had tried to hold back an allied tide from the west, was crossed repeatedly.

French 1st army forces pressed two miles southward into the outskirts of Blodelsheim, nine miles south of Neuf Breisach, where the Germans once held a main Rhine crossing east of Colmar.

German evacuation of the towns of Herrlisheim and Offendorf north of Strasbourg was announced at 6th army group headquarters, indicating complete elimination of the once dangerous Nazi bridgehead across the Rhine in that area was near.

YANKS BLOW UP NEW AIR BASE IN CHINA NEVER PUT IN USE

KUNMING, China, Feb. 8 (AP).—Destruction of another American air field east of the Japanese corridor bisecting southeastern China was announced today. This base was at Sincheng in Kiangsi province between Namyung and Kanchow, two other fields which the Americans also have lost.

The Sincheng field, big enough to accommodate the B-29 Super Fortresses, was completed only nine days before it was given up Jan. 29 and never had become operational.

A small group of engineeers who had been supervising the work of thousands of coolies for several months during construction of the huge installation behind Japanese lines, blew up the runways with buried bombs. They also were believed to have diverted a small river onto the base. The engineers have not yet been evacuated.

U. S. CASUALTIES IN ALL THEATERS LISTED AT 764,584

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8 (AP).—American casualties in all theaters now total enough to man more than 50 divisions.

Secretary of War Stimson said today in his press conference that army casualties—killed, wounded, missing, and prisoner—totaled 676,796 on the basis of individual names compiled in Washington thru Jan. 24.

The navy's 87,788 casualties puts the combined list at 764,584. About 200,000 of the wounded have returned to duty.

Stimson also reported that 865,000 German prisoners have been taken on the western front since D-day.

The secretary asserted that there is "no pampering" of the 359,248 prisoners of war held in this country.

Fewer Spuds, More Flour for British Home Army

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Troops, auxiliary territorial service members [British WACs], prisoners, and civilian internees in Britain are to get fewer potatoes and more flour as a result of an official order changing the ration scales. The troops' potato ration is reduced from 20 to 12 ounces daily and the ATS from 12 to eight ounces. The flour ration for men is increased from one and three-quarters to three and a quarter ounces. The ATS gets two and a quarter ounces instead of two ounces.

SWAM IN ROER AS BOY; TIPS OFF GERMAN PLANS

WITH U. S. FORCES IN GERMANY, Feb. 8 (AP).—An American lieutenant who swam in the Roer river as a boy gave the allied high command the tip that the Germans planned to unleash flood waters upon the advancing American armies.

The lieutenant, who had been locked in a concentration camp in Germany and in 1939 was released thru the aid of American friends, followed up his tip by uncovering detailed German plans for the Roer flooding. He is Lt. Ernest Kaufman of Philadelphia.

People of Dueren Puzzled.

More than two months before the American armies reached the Roer, Kaufman recalled that just before he left Germany residents near Dueren were puzzled by the sudden construction, on orders of Berlin, of the huge Schwammenuel dam on the Roer, which already was controlled by the Urft dam.

He told his commanding officer, who sent him on thru army channels to the commands of both the United States 1st and 9th armies.

"I was born and brought up in a small town a few miles south of Dueren," Kaufman said. "After getting out of concentration camp and before leaving for America in 1939 I visited the area, and every one wondered what the Nazis were building the big dam for. When I got up here with the American army I remembered the dam.

Find Detailed Plan.

"As soon as Aachen was taken I went to the power company there with some men who ransacked the offices.

"We went thru the offices and found a detailed plan on what would be the result of flooding the Roer valley. It was stuffed under a pile of papers."

The German study of the flooding had been made after the royal air force blew up the Mohne and Eder dams in the Ruhr.

FLY 44,000 TONS FROM INDIA TO CHINA IN MONTH

KUNMING, China, Feb. 8 (AP).—The United States army air transport command established a new record in January by carrying 44,000 tons of war materials from India to China—more than double the tonnage carried by the old Burma road at its best month.

This was announced today by Brig. Gen. William H. Tunner, commander of the India-China division, who reported that China-bound planes crossed "the hump" every two and a half minutes, 24 hours a day, during the month.

The planes delivered 12,000 tons in a single week—almost as much as the tonnage delivered thruout December, 1943, for which the division received a Presidential unit citation. Last month's total was more than twice the tonnage of last July and three times that of January, 1944.

Berlin Desolation Like End of World, Say Refugee Swedes

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Feb. 8.—"It is like the end of the world," said one of a group of 23 Swedish refugees—men, women, and children—who arrived at Malmo today in describing the desolation of Berlin. The refugees were evacuated thru Copenhagen.

Their generally bedraggled appearance told of the ordeal they had been thru. They were tradesmen and artisans who had lived most of their lives in Germany.

Many Bear Injuries.

One man's legs were broken in an air raid, others had blackened eyes; some were on crutches, others had arms in slings; stretcher cases had to be left behind. Two hundred fifty more refugees are coming.

Count Folke Bernadotte, vice chairman of the Swedish Red Cross and nephew of King Gustaf, has flown to Berlin to see what can be done to rescue more Swedish citizens before it is too late. Every train leaving Berlin is thought to be the last.

The refugees believe a state of siege will be proclaimed in Berlin soon. The army will then take complete control. The problem of maintaining some semblance of law and order and keeping up food supplies now is beyond police and Nazi party abilities, they said.

Death Toll Terrific.

The death toll in Saturday's raid was terrific, the refugees said. Corpses were dumped in mass graves or burned in funeral pyres.

Practically all government buildings were wiped out. The refugees declared their belief that a heavier, deadlier type of bomb was used in Saturday's raid. A Swedish engineer among the refugees said: "People were killed by air pressure in shelters which were scores of feet away from the nearest craters. The bombs seemed to carry a much greater weight of explosive than before and seemed to have a fantastically wide blasting effect."

Nazis Seize Grains

LONDON, Feb. 8 (AP).—The Nazi government commandeered all German grain stocks for bread today as the food crisis increased within the reich, the German radio said.

A drastic decree broadcast by the German ministry of agriculture ordered farmers to surrender immediately all wheat, barley, and rye for bread production.

"A grave food and transportation situation has forced the minister of food and agriculture to issue this decree," said the special announcement on the German radio.

The grain decree followed several recent ration reductions. It forbade feeding grain to live stock "except under special permission to be granted in the rarest cases," and ordered "drastic reduction" in the number of hogs.

22 TRENCH FOOT PATIENTS RAIL AT 'REPELLENTS'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Twenty-two "disgusted trench foot patients" tonight fired a verbal broadside from a hospital against American army regulations which do not recognize as battle casualties their cases of severe foot bite, which often develop into gangrene causing amputations. In a letter to the army newspaper Stars and Stripes, they said:

"The straw that broke the camel's back was Lt. Gen. Lear's recent statement that a campaign is to be instituted to teach front line G. I.s how to care for their clothing and avoid trench foot.

"If it's not a battle casualty, what the hell is? Do you think you can get trench foot in an office? Don't you suppose a doughboy would change into dry warm socks and warm his feet if he could? Did the brass ever keep on the move three or four or five days and nights in a row and not even have rations and water, let alone a change of socks? We'd appreciate some practical demonstrations of this miraculous trench foot repellent in the front lines."

Taylor Denies Roosevelt Will Meet with Pope

ROME, Feb. 8 (AP).—Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal representative to the Vatican, today denied that he was preparing for a meeting of the President and Pope Pius. A report carried by the Rome press and the Swiss radio said President Roosevelt expected to visit the Vatican.

ALLIED BOMBERS RAID GERMAN WARSHIPS IN COPENHAGEN HARBOR

LONDON, Feb. 8 (AP).—Allied warplanes kept up their widespread attacks on the enemy today and tonight with a series of strikes into Denmark, Holland, Austria, and Germany.

A dispatch from Stockholm said allied bombers pounded the harbor at Copenhagen, Denmark; in a blow presumably directed at light units of the German Baltic fleet which have been reported there. The German radio said other allied bombers were over Pomerania, probably indicating an R. A. F. attack on German targets lying in front of Marshal Zhukov's 1st White Russian army.

During the day British Lancasters bombed German E boat shelters at Ijmuiden on the west coast of Holland. Fortresses and Liberators of the United States 15th air force in Italy again bombed communications targets in the Vienna area.

V-2 installations in Holland were attacked in daylight by R. A. F. fighter-bombers. American heavy bombers based in England were held at their bases.

WHISKY AND MONEY STOLEN.

Thieves stole five bottles of whisky and $19.90 from his home, Walter Henning, 6238 N. Clark st., told police yesterday.

8 YANKS CUT OFF 22 HRS. ON NAZI BANK OF RIVER

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. 3D ARMY ON THE SURE RIVER, Luxemburg-German Frontier, Feb. 8.—Eight wet and weary 5th division infantrymen who had been hiding 22 hours on the German side of the Sure [Sauer] river, within easy range of enemy pillboxes, returned last night to their own lines after reënforcements reached them.

Midwesterners among them included Sgt. Harry Horvitz, Detroit, Mich.; Pvt. Robert Foster, Dearborn, Mich., and a sergeant from Kenosha, Wis., who requested that his name not be used "because my mother doesn't know how tough it is here."

Alone on German Side.

The eight had carried two rubber boats to the river night before last and crossed despite the swift current that drove them 100 yards downstream. They stepped out on the far shore, expecting to be followed by more men, but due to German fire and the swift flowing river none arrived.

"We were sweating out the rest of the boys, and toward morning decided we had better dig in," Horvitz said. "So we all dug holes a few yards from a black top road which was a little higher than the rest of the ground. By this time a German tank on a hill about 500 yards behind us was firing across the river and 88 mm. shells were landing sometimes within 25 yards of us, sprinkling us with fragments.

"German machine guns were firing also, and some one behind us with a burp gun was so close we could hear him cursing when it jammed. Several times I crawled from one hole to another to see if every one was all right, but we didn't do any talking for fear the Germans might hear us. When daylight came our artillery and machine guns were firing constantly. I don't think the Germans knew we were there, altho there was one pillbox about 150 yards to our right and another 500 to the left, with trenches in between them."

Didn't Relish Food.

Horvitz said none of his men fired a shot while across. There were two men to each hole with one on guard at all times. None of the men ate much altho they had K rations.

In daylight yesterday they saw a German soldier dash for a pillbox in the midst of an artillery barrage. When he was almost to the door there was a terrific explosion and the German simply disappeared. They think it was a direct hit with a 155 mm. shell.

They had decided not to spend another night on the "wrong" side of the river and were determined to attempt to swim back when reënforcements finally came and they were taken back by boat about 11 p. m.

RUSSIANS PIERCE BERLIN'S ODER LINE; DRIVE ON

New Spearhead Smashes Toward Stettin.

LONDON, Feb. 8 (AP).—Russian troops drove a new spearhead within 38 miles of Berlin's Baltic port of Stettin today as the Germans reported that soviet shock units had expanded six bridgeheads across the Oder river 30 to 43 miles from the imperilled Reich capital.

The soviet war bulletin was silent on the great battle roaring at Berlin's outer gates, but the Moscow radio declared, "The Oder line has been pierced and Berlin in panic is witnessing the crumbling of the last obstacle in its forefield."

German broadcasts said the Oder stronghold of Kuestrin had been encircled temporarily, told of Red army crossings on both sides of Kuestrin, Frankfurt and Fuerstenberg on a 40 mile front, and said there was "house to house fighting" at Pyritz and Arnswalde, 22 and 38 miles southeast of Stettin at the mouth of the Oder.

Report Reds in Berlin Outskirts.

One Finnish broadcast recorded by the British Broadcasting corporation said, "Russian tanks have probed to the outskirts of Berlin," and a German language broadcast from Moscow said soviet units were "now only some dozen kilometers from burning Berlin, according to front line reports." Twelve kilometers is seven and one-half miles.

Berlin's danger further was emphasized in a German front report that the Russians had shoved a great many of their powerful T-34 tanks across the Oder.

Striking toward Stettin on an 18 mile front southeast of the big communications center of Stargard, the Russians were declared officially to have captured Reetz, 21 miles from Stargard and 40 miles east-southeast of Stettin, and Bernstein, 39 miles southeast of Stettin.

More than 1,800 prisoners were taken Wednesday, Moscow announced, in this broad movement aimed at sealing off scores of thousands of Germans in northeastern Germany and lessening the danger of a Nazi flanking attack against Zhukov's central columns battling toward Berlin.

Gain Four Miles in Silesia.

In Silesia, the 1st Ukraine army under Marshal Konev gained up to four miles in the westward expansion of its bridgehead between Breslau and Oppeln, Lower and Upper Silesian capitals. The Germans told of a new soviet bridgehead at Maltsch, 21 miles northwest of Breslau and 13 miles east of Liegnitz.

Attacking on a 20 mile front the Russians cut the Breslau-Strehlen highway with the capture of Kurtsch, 12 miles south of besieged Breslau and 11 miles west of captured Ohlau.

Closing in on the 14-way road junction of Strehlen other soviet forces on this front seized Lorzendorf, five miles northeast of Strehlen, and Koechendorf, eight miles east of the junction. Strehlen is 125 miles northeast of the Czechoslovakian capital of Prague.

In southwestern Polish Silesia the Russians captured 40 localities, closing in on the road junction town of Zywiec, 40 miles east of Moravska Ostrava, Czechoslovakia's third city.

In East Prussia the Russians captured the German stronghold of Kreuzburg, 13 miles south of encircled Koenigsberg, a supplemental Moscow bulletin reported.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

The German war bulletin, as broadcast yesterday by Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press, said:

"The garrison in the western part of Budapest is still fighting with outstanding bravery against enemy superiority.

"The enemy, again launching an attack in the northern part of the western Beskids between Saybusch and Piess, was warded off after initial gains.

"The soviets were repulsed in counter-thrusts in several sectors at Steinau, Glogau, and Odereck [Silesia].

"A fierce battle still is being waged for minor enemy bridgeheads on the Oder between Fuerstenberg and Kuestrin.

"Our troops intercepted the attacking soviets in the area of Pyritz and Ranewalde [below Stettin]. In a powerful counter-thrust, they liberated several localities.

"In East Prussia the gravity center of battle was situated between Wormditt and Heilsberg yesterday, and at Kreuzberg. Renewed enemy attempts to split up our front were foiled. In Samland an enemy formation stationed at Thierenberg was encircled and annihilated.

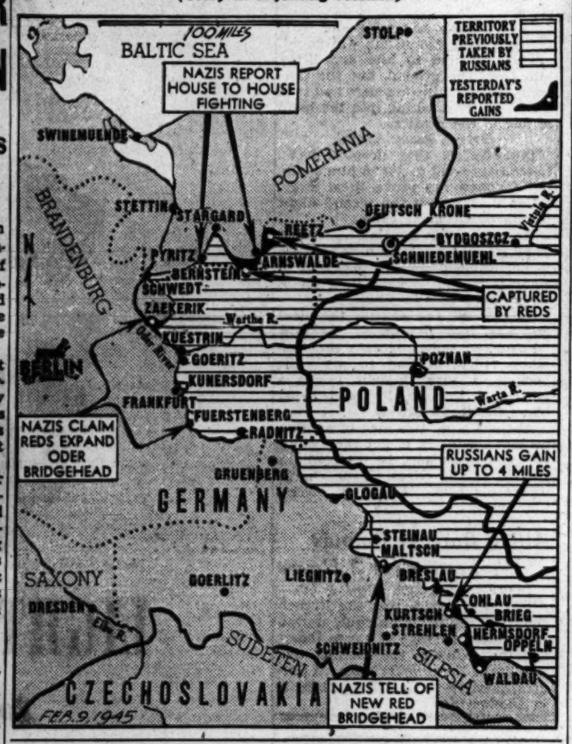
Reds Draw Closer to Berlin

(Story in adjoining column.)



ONE WHO LIVED THRU IT TELLS WARSAW ORDEAL

WARSAW, Feb. 8 (AP).—This is the story of Mrs. Ludmilla Shishko, the only person left out of a family of 67 after the ordeal of Warsaw's occupation by the Germans.

"We women of Warsaw feel we played just as big a part as men," she said. "I would like the women of the United States and Britain to know some of the terrible details.

"I have seen mothers of little children picked up in the streets for no reason and shipped off to Germany," she said. "But money was the password. If you had enough you could buy your way out."

While Polish women who refused to collaborate went about in rags, she said, Germans dressed their own women and their kept Polish women in fine clothes.

Mrs. Shishko said her life became much harder in 1941 when she married a member of the underground forces.

Many women, she said, lost their lives distributing leaflets for the underground.

"A woman caught doing this by the Gestapo was worse than dead," she said, "because the Germans have subtle ways of torturing women.

"I've seen them halt women in broad daylight and tear off their clothes, looking for hidden leaflets. They got amusement out of it."

Mrs. Shishko was stopped only once by a German. She was carrying forbidden documents in a shopping bag containing her tiny flour allotment. He only swore at her for getting flour on his hands and did not find the documents.

PRIESTS ASSAIL LUBLIN RULE AS REIGN OF TERROR

Springfield, Mass., Feb. 8 [Special].—The treatment of Poland by the Lublin government was assailed as a "violation of the laws of man and God" in a statement issued today by the Association of Roman Catholic Priests of Polish Descent in the Springfield diocese.

It recalled the effort of Dictator Stalin to "exploit one priest," an apparent reference to the trip last May of Rev. Stanislaus Orlemanski, Springfield Catholic priest, to Moscow to confer with Stalin.

The Lublin government, which many Polish-Americans assert is Russian inspired and does not represent the Polish people, has been recognized by Russia as the legal government of Poland. The United States and Great Britain continue to recognize the Polish government in exile in London.

Disclose Red Connection.

The association's statement, signed by 43 priests, said a new attempt to win Catholic church approval of the Lublin government had developed in Poland and a letter had been sent to a priest here requesting support. The letter, the statement said, had been printed in the Communist Daily Worker at the same time it was received by the Catholic priest.

The statement was issued by the Rev. Andrew Alkarczyk of Webster, Mass., president of the association, and Rev. A. Skoniecki of Turners Falls, secretary, who said they represented 43 Roman Catholic priests and 22 parishes with a membership of 100,000 Catholics of Polish origin.

Warn of Wrongs Done.

Parts of the statement follow:

"We must warn that the wrongs which are being done in Poland today violate the laws of man and God. They threaten not only America's interest but America's honor, which is pledged to the Atlantic Charter.

"In Poland today the bravest of the brave, the first of our allies to fight and the first to organize those underground movements which have been the wonder of the world are being hunted by one of our allies as they were formerly hunted by our enemies. That is what the liberation of Poland now means.

Bares "Sinister Activities."

"We warn the American people, as well as the American government, that the sinister activities of the Lublin committee have reached the United States trying to introduce a wedge into the solid and united front of Americans of Polish descent.

The self-styled American-Polish Labor council is Lublin's champion in America and has no more right to speak for American Poles than so-called provisional government has a right to speak for the people of Poland."

LABOR'S REPORT HITS GREEK ELAS AS 'DIRTY' REDS

British Group Is Told of 10,000 Murders.

LONDON, Feb. 8 (AP).—The British trades union congress delegation that investigated conditions in Greece said tonight that Communists dominated the EAM-ELAS organization and quoted British Tommies as saying the ELAS forces were such dirty fighters that the Germans were gentlemen in comparison.

[Prime Minister Churchill told the house of commons on Jan. 18: "I think Trotzkyism is a better definition of the Greek Communist and certain other sects than the normal word—it has the advantage of being equally hated in Russia."]

The delegation, headed by Walter Citrine, said in a 5,000 word report it was "the universal opinion of large numbers of British troops we interviewed" that there would have been a wholesale massacre in Athens if the British had not intervened against the ELAS forces last December.

The report said that British soldiers described the ELAS, which is the military arm of the EAM, the national liberation party, as "the lousiest, dirtiest, scruffiest lot of fighters our men ever came across."

These stories, the report said, were told "by ordinary British Tommies—not officers or generals."

Murders Put at 10,000.

It went on to say that "we were informed by the regent that, so far as they could estimate, the number of persons murdered was at least 10,000."

British who had been taken prisoner told of being marched 150 to 200 miles, sometimes moving for 30 hours without food, and said they were robbed of money and rings, altho belongings of one group were returned when an ELAS officer intervened, the report stated.

It also questioned the amount of fighting the ELAS group had done against the Germans during the occupation.

"Undoubtedly the ELAS was much more concerned with returning to Athens to seize power than with fighting Germans," the report said. "It was stated that as our troops were moving north in pursuit of the Germans they passed ELAS forces marching in the opposite direction."

Identify Slain Leaders.

ATHENS, Greece, Feb. 8 [Reuters].—Thirteen bodies exhumed at Arahova, about 60 miles northwest of Athens, were disclosed today to be those of Greek leaders. Among the victims were Spiro Tricoupis, former speaker of the chamber of deputies; Steilio Koryzis, brother of the late premier; John Theophanopoulos, former dean of the Polytechnic school; Gen. Gortzas, Gen. Katsiyanakis, and former Gov. Iliakis of Crete.

Theophanopoulos' son said his father had been taken as a hostage by the ELAS.

Peace talks between the government and the ELAS were resumed.

3 FORCES CLOSE IN FOR ASSAULT UPON MANDALAY

CALCUTTA, India, Feb. 8 (AP).—Forward elements of three British and Indian columns closing in on Mandalay beat off Japanese counter-attacks today while men and supplies for a general assault on the great river port were being drawn up along a 100 mile front.

By land, air, and river troops were converging on the west and north banks of the Irrawaddy for 60 miles above and 40 miles below the elbow of the stream where Mandalay is situated.

Fighting continued on the old Burma road above Lashio, where the American Mars task force and the Chinese 38th division are beating southward.

Another Chicagoan in Kwajalein N. A. T. S. office is Lt. Comdr. Douglas Wilson, 5000 East End av., former United Air Lines pilot, now in charge here.

Live in Wooden Houses.

Where once rotting bodies lay thick in the tangled battle debris, now all is order, efficiency, and even comfort. Crudely covered foxholes gave way to tents to which floors and mosquito nettings were later added. Most of the tents have disappeared to make room for one and two story wooden buildings with concrete floors.

Wind driven washing machines enliven the scenery fringing the lagoon, where handmade sail boats swing at buoys near ugly, rusting snouts of sunken Jap landing craft. Vehicles dart hither and yon on errands of strange new commerce. Here and there an upthrusting movie screen testifies that the men's recreation is not overlooked.

The war seems far away until you notice gun crews standing by well organized defense positions, and see air raid trenches parallel to each barracks, their sides shaggy with dying roots which are the only remaining tokens of forest.

About the pier are nuzzled several battered landing craft, most of them battle scarred, honorably retired to the boat pool. But for the uniforms everywhere it is easy to imagine the war is over and Kwajalein has already launched into its post-war destiny.

Nazis Have a Word for It—and What a Word

LONDON, Feb. 8 [Reuters].—"Raeumingsfamilienunterhaltsbeitraege," a 36 letter word, the longest yet in the language of German officialdom, is a direct result of the Russian offensive, reports Reuter's radio listening post here. It was first used on the German radio tonight in an explanatory broadcast. It means "subsidies toward the maintenance of evacuated families."

WOUNDED YANK WIRED BY NAZIS INTO BOOBY TRAP

Temple, Tex, Feb. 8 (AP).—Pvt. William H. Edwards' foot was blown off and he was crying for water, but the three Germans ignored his pleas. They wired explosives to his body and left him—a human booby trap.

Edwards told his story today at McCloskey General hospital here—how his right foot had been blown off by a mine; how the Germans fastened the explosives to him; how he knew that if he moved he was doomed—or if help came when he was unconscious he and his rescuers would be killed.

He lay there all told for 70 hours between American and German lines in the Huertgen forest, under artillery fire. German 88 shell fragments hit his left leg as he waited.

Went Out on Patrol.

It was started simply enough, Pvt. Edwards said today. This member of the 4th infantry division, who has a wife and six children in Hayti, Mo., had begun what was to have been a 40 minute night patrol.

Near the German lines Edwards stepped on a mine that blew off his foot. He lay quietly until morning, fearing that any sound would betray his comrades.

He could not bandage his wound, but it was one of those injuries in which the veins and arteries are forced upward so they are, in a manner, sealed.

Calls for Medic.

At 10:30 a. m. he called for a medic. The enemy heard him and began a search but did not find him.

Soon afterwards a pebble hit his leg and he heard an American medic whisper, "Are you a G. I.?"

"Hell, yes, I'm a G. I.," he replied.

"Don't make any noise and we'll get you out," the medic whispered.

They crawled to him and lifted him from the ground, but the Germans had seen the rescuers and sent a rifle bullet crashing into the hand of one of the medics.

Driven Away Again.

Unprotected, they dropped back. Later they tried to get to him again, but German fire drove them away. When darkness of the second night fell three Germans came.

He asked for a drink of water. They refused it. They took his field jacket, divided up five packages of cigarets in the pockets, then set to work booby trapping him.

"I lay on the charge the next day and into the night," he said. "I smoked some cigarets the Germans failed to find in my shirt pocket. I sure thought I was a goner. I thought I would never leave the forest alive."

About 2 a. m. two men of another company came in to get the wounded. Still conscious, he directed the cutting of the wires to the charge under his back. And they carried him away.

DOVER, England, Feb. 8 (AP).—Allied troops besieging the French channel port of Dunkerque started an artillery barrage at 2 p. m. today, and the sound of the shelling was still heard three hours later. A German garrison estimated at 12,000 is in Dunkerque.

ADM. HART GETS APPOINTMENT AS U.S. SENATOR

Named to Maloney's Post in Connecticut.

Hartford, Conn., Feb. 8 [Special].—Adm. Thomas C. Hart, a member of the navy's general board and commander in chief of the United States Asiatic fleet at the time of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, today was appointed by Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin to succeed the late United States Sen. Maloney [D.]. Maloney, Connecticut's senior senator, died Jan. 16 of a heart attack.

Adm. Hart.

Hart will hold office until after the November, 1946, election when voters will elect a senator to fill Maloney's unexpired term ending January, 1947, and for the succeeding six year term.

Registered Republican.

The admiral, who is 67, has refused to discuss his politics. He is registered as a Republican in Sharon, Conn. If he votes Republican in the senate the party line-up in that body would be 56 Democrats, 39 Republicans, and one Progressive.

Gov. Baldwin announced the appointment shortly after signing a bill empowering him to fill the vacancy. The bill, passed unanimously by the Democratic senate and Republican house, eliminated the necessity of calling a special election.

Favors Strong Air Force.

Adm. Hart, a native of Michigan and graduate of the United States naval academy in 1893, is an advocate of a strong naval air arm. He asserted in a magazine article in 1942 that Japan's early successes at Pearl Harbor and the Philippines were possible because of failure by the United States to use its "real defense weapon"—the fighter plane. He has argued against a separated United States air force.

Adm. Hart is a veteran of three wars, starting with the Spanish-American war. Promoted to the rank of rear admiral in 1919, he was commander of the control force, United States fleet, for a year, and then superintendent of the military academy at Annapolis, Md., for three years. He was made commander in chief of the Asiatic fleet July 25, 1939, and later led the combined forces in the American-British-Dutch and Australian area until February, 1942. He was placed on the retired list July 1, 1942.

JAP 'RULERS' OF ISLANDS FLEE TO NORTHERN LUZON

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The puppet Philippine government headed by President Jose Laurel has fled from Manila to northern Luzon, the Japanese Domei news agency said yesterday.

"Recent events necessitated removal of the seat of government from Manila to a new locale," the broadcast continued. "Laurel and his followers are more confident than ever before of the ultimate Japanese destruction of the American invasion forces."

Japan cannot afford to lose the battle of the Philippines and survive as a nation, Domei news agency said.

"The Luzon battle is fought for very high stakes," it said. "If Japan is to survive and play a leading role in world affairs, she must snatch victory in this war."

MANILA PAPER WILL GET QUOTA OF NEWSPRINT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—The printing and publishing division of the war production board was reported today to be preparing to issue a newsprint consumption quota for the Manila Bulletin, one of the largest English language daily newspapers in the Philippines. Carson Taylor of Los Angeles, Cal., publisher of the Bulletin, sought WPB authorization to reëstablish his paper as soon as American forces had recaptured Manila.

John B. Long, Taylor's representative, announced the WPB agreed to allow the newspaper a newsprint quota and expected to issue it in a day or two. Determination of the quota is being made on the basis of the Bulletin's 1941 consumption and circulation at the time the Japanese seized the newspaper.

Long, who is general manager of the California Newspaper Publishers' association, said Taylor estimates he will need 720 tons of newsprint this year, 10 tons more than he used in 1941. Average daily circulation on Jan. 2, 1942, when the Japanese captured Manila, was 15,580. Col. J. Hale Steinman, director of the printing and publishing division, has agreed to seek early shipment of newsprint and equipment to Manila, Long said.

REVEALS INDIAN WOMEN DIG COAL FOR 45C A DAY

LONDON, Feb. 8 [Reuters].—Leopold Amery, secretary of state for India, said in the house of commons today that the question of employment of women underground in Indian coal mines was being considered by the government of India.

He was replying to a question by Labor member Reginald Sorensen as to how many are now employed in the mines and whether steps could be taken to end such employment.

Amery said the rates of pay were the same as for men and, tho low, compared favorably with those paid in other Indian industries—an average of 18 annas [45 cents] per day. He said expectant mothers are prohibited from working for a month before and a month after delivery.

GEORGIA COURT RAPS DECISIONS BY U. S. TRIBUNAL

States Lose Sovereignty, Negro Ruling Says.

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 8 (AP).—Holding that county jury commissioners were not required to place Negroes on jury lists in the same ratio as whites, the Georgia Supreme court declared today that decisions by the United States Supreme court in recent years were depriving states of sovereignty.

The decision upheld the conviction of David Watkins, 17, Negro sentenced to death for the slaying of Mrs. J. J. Connell, 68, in a $2,000 robbery at Macon.

Referring to an 1854 Georgia decision holding the Georgia court coequal with the United States tribunal and not subject to its orders, Justice Warren Grice said in today's opinion that "as time rolled on the very stars in their courses seemed arrayed against the plan of the founding fathers."

Finds Cause for Wonder.

"One is sometimes led to wonder if the states, once sovereign, have not become from a practical standpoint—under the expanding powers of the federal government, the exercise of which has been sanctioned by the Supreme court of the United States—little more than geographical subdivisions of a consolidated government," said Justice Grice.

The Georgia court said the decision did not contravene the highest court's ruling in the Scottsboro [Ala.] case granting a new trial to Negroes convicted of rape on a finding that Negroes were systematically and arbitrarily excluded from jury rolls because of color. Referring to that case and others on the subject, the Georgia court commented:

"Any attempt by this court to disregard the plain and oft repeated adjudications of the Supreme court of the United States upon the subject [unless and until that tribunal at some future day shall itself repudiate and overrule them] would be as powerless as the voice of King Canute when he commanded his waves not to come near his throne.

"No Use to Kick."

"When the power to effectually resist is lacking, it is no use to kick."

The decision also held that Solicitor Gen. [prosecuting attorney] Charles H. Garrett of Bibb county [Macon] had been within his rights in keeping Negroes off Criminal court juries since 1919 thru the exercise of peremptory challenges.

In a stipulation placed before the court Garrett said that "we have not reached the point in the social affairs of Georgia which would make it possible for Negro jurors and white jurors to work together and possibly eat together and sleep together, and serve the ends of justice."

REPORTS NAZIS HANGED GERMAN IN CANADA CAMP

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Feb. 8 (AP).—German prisoners of war erected a crude scaffold in a Medicine Hat camp in July, 1943, and hanged a fellow prisoner they accused of making derogatory remarks about Hitler, the Lethbridge Herald said today. They used planks and timber found at their barracks and improvised the noose from electric wire, the newspaper reported, saying the death could now be disclosed with Canadian censorship aproval. Another prisoner found dead at the camp last year evidently had been strangled, the Herald said.

HIGH SCHOOL'S MEAT STOLEN.

Thieves who broke into the Tilden Technical High school at 4747 Union av. yesterday stole a typewriter, fire extinguisher, a meat slicer, and 100 pounds of luncheon meats, all valued at $228, Charles Viali, school engineer, told the police.

TEN MORE YANKS SENTENCED FOR SUPPLY THEFTS

PARIS, Feb. 8 (AP).—Courts martial trying railway battalion cases sentenced 10 more enlisted men today to prison terms ranging from three to 10 years after all had pleaded guilty to charges of taking army supplies. Among them were Pvt. Lester P. Davis, Quincy, Ill., and T/5 Louis J. Waegbe, Gladstone, Mich.

One man cited for bravery in saving a supply train may be given the benefit of doubts concerning the adequacy of evidence against him. A psychiatrist's report may eliminate another and there is a question of adequacy of evidence in still other cases. There still are four or five officers to be tried.

Among seven sentenced yesterday was Sgt. William E. Houston, Terre Haute, Ind., eight years.

DUTCH CABINET QUITS; NEW ONE TO BE WIDENED

LONDON, Feb. 8 (AP).—The Dutch cabinet resigned today and Queen Wilhelmina immediately asked Premier Pieter Gerbrandy to form a new government broadened to include leaders of the anti-Nazi resistance movement.

Gerbrandy asked for time to consider whether to undertake the task, which would involve settlement of several internal conflicts.

A government statement said the cabinet resigned "to enable her majesty to bring the cabinet into line with altered circumstances, but does not in any way affect the original decision of the government to resign on total liberation of the country."

Hero of Drive to Manila Promoted by MacArthur

MANILA, Feb. 8 (AP).—Gen. MacArthur announced today he has recommended Brig. Gen. William C. Chase of Bridgeport, Conn., for promotion to major general and already has appointed him to command a division. Gen. Chase led the first flying columns of Maj. Gen. Vern Mudge's 1st cavalry division in the dramatic dash into Manila last Saturday night.

MY GOODNESS! IT'S COLD IN THE PALACE, SAYS BRITAIN'S QUEEN

LONDON, Feb. 8 (AP).—Queen Elizabeth inspected a kitchen exhibit today and peeped inside of a plastic coke bin on a prefabricated heating unit.

Then she observed, "My goodness, it has been cold in Buckingham palace."

WORRIED SWISS AWAIT ALLIED TRADE MISSION

ZURICH, Switzerland, Feb. 8 [Reuters].—The Anglo-American trade mission, which will take up problems concerned with Switzerland's trade with Germany, is expected to arrive on Saturday. The nation is awaiting the talks with an interest amounting almost to anxiety.

The result of the negotiations is regarded almost as a matter of life or death to Switzerland, for the decisions are likely to affect vital post-war interests and recent Russian and American press campaigns against Switzerland's attitude have given rise to grave apprehensions here regarding allied intentions.

Viewed as Test Case.

Walter Stucki, permanent undersecretary of foreign affairs said:

"We must realize that we are on the eve of important discussions, but there is no cause for nervousness."

It is believed here that Switzerland has been chosen as a test case on which negotiations with other neutrals, for example Sweden, will be based.

The special importance of the negotiations is enhanced in the Swiss official view by the fact that Laughlin Currie will come as President Roosevelt's special envoy bearing a personal message to the Swiss president, Eduard von Steiger, while the high position in the government of Dingle Foot, the British delegate, proves that Britain, too, attaches fundamental importance to the mission.

French Role Still in Doubt.

Reports that a French delegation would be sent are still officially unconfirmed here.

Swiss-German trade discussions, which have been under way for a considerable time, have not reached a conclusion. German deliveries to Switzerland have virtually ceased, ostensibly because of transport difficulties.

70th Division in Action in Alsace; Takes Town

WITH THE 6TH ARMY GROUP, Alsace, Feb. 8 (AP).—It was disclosed tonight that the recapture of Wingen, 20 miles northwest of Haguenau, late in January was accomplished by the 70th [Trail Blazers] infantry division, which also is known as the "Oregons." The 70th, which only recently landed in France, was activated and trained at Camp Adair, Ore. Many American prisoners who had been held in a church which was converted into a hospital at Wingen were rescued by the victory. Brig. Gen. Thomas W. Herren of Dadeville, Ala., was temporarily in command of the division at Wingen.

BROOKS BRANDS NEW DEAL WORK BILL 'SLAVERY'

Cites Constitution Ban on Involuntary Servitude.

BY PHILIP DODD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—Sen. Brooks [R., Ill.] charged today that the New Deal's "work or jail" bill is unconstitutional, because it would force American citizens into "slavery or involuntary servitude," expressly forbidden by the 13th amendment to the Constitution.

Sen. Brooks.

Brooks made his charge in a speech while the senate military affairs committee, at a closed meeting, was considering the labor draft bill, which would authorize the government to force any man between 18 and 45 into war industry. Today's witnesses were War Production Chairman Krug, Selective Service Director Hershey, and Ira Mosher, president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

"Strong leaders thruout history," said Brooks, "have used vast military forces and military regulations to promote their own ambitions, and the liberties of people were lost. That is why the raising and maintaining of the army and navy was placed in the hands of congress.

Basic Freedom Violated.

"The people, thru their representatives in congress, in the march of human liberty under our form of government, provided in the 13th amendment to the Constitution that 'neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime . . . shall exist with the United States.'"

In an interview after his speech, Brooks said the drafting of men to fight is within the power of congress, but forcing a man to work for another, for the private profit of his employer, is a violation of basic freedoms.

"The President," Brooks said in his speech, "has always astutely developed his demands for more power as being in the best interest of the people. This [bill] is another demand for power . . . certainly it is another step toward wiping out freedom in the land for which our men are fighting."

Survey Refused in 1943.

Brooks recalled that in October, 1943, he introduced a resolution in the senate for the creation of a committee to keep a constant check on labor shortage, labor hoarding, and slow-down practices in war plants. Administration leaders let the resolution die in committee without a hearing.

"Now come the war department and navy department, under direction of the President, demanding a 'work or jail' law," Brooks said. "On the other hand, the responsible leaders of labor, individual employers, and farm organizations all warn us that such a law will retard production rather than increase it.

"I yield to no man in my willingness to take any steps necessary to provide the fullest possible support of our fighting men," Brooks said, "but I have never felt that intimidated, forced, or slave labor ever could or would equal the production of our free American people."

Krug Says It Will "Do Good."

At today's hearing of the senate military affairs committee, which was closed to the public, Krug said the "work or jail" bill was necessary to maintain war production. "It will do more good than harm," he was reported as saying.

Hershey, in his testimony, was said to have stressed the morale value of the bill, claimed by the war and navy departments in their testimony before the committee. He said he favored amendments to the bill placing its administration in the hands of War Mobilizer Byrnes who is expected to delegate powers to selective service and the war man power commission. As it passed the house, the bill provided Hershey would administer its provisions.

Complication Feared.

Mosher was the first witness before the committee to oppose the bill—he also was the first nongovernment witness. He told the committee it would be better to have "no law than to pass a statute which may even further complicate the man power situation." He said management, coöperating with labor, can continue to maintain what the President has called "the miracle of production."

The bill sets up federal control over the activities of civilian men between the ages of 18 and 45. If they quit essential jobs without local draft board permission, or fail to obey a directive to take over more essential work, they would be subject to immediate induction into the army, or to a jail sentence of up to 5 years, or to a fine of $5,000.

Sbarbaro yesterday in Superior court. Mrs. Sandaker, represented by Attorneys Joseph H. and Norman Becker, was granted a divorce for cruelty, custody of three children, Sharon, 4; Diana, 2, and Kathleen, 4 months old, and $120 a month support. The Sandakers were married Sept. 9, 1939, and separated May 22, 1944. She said he plans to join the Seabees.

UAW CHIEF WINS DELEGATE FIGHT AT LONDON MEET

LONDON, Feb. 8 (AP).—An impassioned speech for unity by R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile Workers of America [CIO], persuaded the World Trade Union congress today to accept a compromise method of settling a dispute over inviting delegates from former axis-dominated countries.

Striding to the platform two hours after arriving from the United States by plane, the husky former welder who is one of the three presidents of the congress outshouted Russian, Spanish, and French delegates in demanding a compromise.

Thomas won unanimous acceptance of his proposal that the controversial question be threshed out in the standing orders committee.

The committee met immediately and recommended that the trade union movements of Finland, Bulgaria, Romania, and Italy should be invited to send representatives and that the credentials committee should decide whether they should be seated as delegates or observers.

House Foes Plan Delay on George Bill.

BY LAURENCE BURD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—Administration hopes for senate confirmation of Henry Wallace as secretary of commerce received a new jolt today as a bipartisan house bloc moved to delay house action on the George bill divorcing federal lending powers from the commerce post.

The drive for delay was led by Representatives Slaughter [D., Mo.] and Allen [R., Ill.], members of the rules committee, which will meet tomorrow to consider the George measure. They proposed that the rules group refuse to send the bill to the house floor until after March 1, when the senate is slated to vote on the Wallace confirmation.

Such a delay would force the senate to vote on Wallace for a cabinet post that includes supervision over billions in lending powers. Administration leaders conceded it virtually would cinch rejection of the former Vice President. President Roosevelt, they recalled, reluctantly indorsed the George bill in a desperate effort to get Wallace confirmed even with restricted powers.

Rayburn Makes Plea.

Faced by the new threat to Wallace, House Speaker Rayburn [D., Tex.] took a hand on the New Deal's side. He summoned Representatives Cox [D., Ga.] and Smith [D., Va.], ranking members of the rules group and opponents of Wallace, and pleaded with them to vote to send the George bill to the house at once.

After the conference, Smith and Cox said they had not decided how they would vote. If they side with Slaughter and the four Republican members of the rules group in voting to delay house action on the bill, the postponement would carry, 7 to 5. Rayburn said he was "hopeful" the measure would be reported for house action next week.

Slaughter said that if the George bill is reported to the house at this time, the rules group should grant a "wide open" rule permitting the house to vote on further suggested restrictions to the commerce secretaryship.

Aim at F. D. R. Powers.

Such restrictions, already proposed by Rep. Wolcott [R., Mich.], would place curbs on both Wallace and the President. They would cancel the President's power to shift federal agencies and bureaus into any department, including the commerce post, and would remove the commerce secretary from his present position as a board member of the Export-Import bank.

Chairman Sabath [D., Ill.] of the rules committee, a fervent New Dealer, said he favors a "regular" rule whereby the Wolcott amendments might be rejected without a house vote if Speaker Rayburn sustains New Deal objections that they are irrelevant.

Allen, ranking minority member of the rules group, said the bill should be sent back to the banking committee for further study.

Policeman Shot

Sheffield av. police yesterday were inquiring at doctors' offices and hospitals for a gunman wounded in an exchange of shots with policemen near the Surf cocktail lounge, 2873 Broadway, early in the day. The wounded man and two companions fled after they had cowed eight persons and robbed the proprietress, Mrs. Lucille Le Cuyer, of $1,500 in jewelry and $235. In the affray Policeman John Ellis, 37, was wounded in the right forearm and nicked in the face.

Patrons and employes fled from the lounge when police, believing the bandits to be barricading themselves, hurled several tear gas bombs into the establishment.

ACT TO IMPEACH SCHOOL OFFICIAL ON BOOK CHARGE

Oklahoma City, Okla., Feb. 8 (AP).—Charging incompetency and neglect of duty, an Oklahoma house investigating committee today returned articles of impeachment against A. L. Crable, state superintendent of public instruction, in connection with the 1937 textbook adoption scandals.

The report charged that Crable, as secretary of the 1937 textbook commission, was "instrumental in the spending of $612,000 in excess" of the amount which he declared adequate to purchase school books for indigent Oklahoma children.

Crable gave reporters copies of a brief he filed with the investigating committee which he said "conclusively shows that the charges set forth in the proposed articles of impeachment are absolutely unfounded in fact."

McKELLAR RIPS REDS, WILLIAMS, AND HIS THEORIES

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—An earnest gentleman of the old school laid the issue of remaking America or preserving this country as it is squarely before the senate agriculture committee today.

Sen. McKellar.

He was Sen. McKellar [D., Tenn.], a somberly dressed veteran who has spent 26 of his 75 years in the senate. He had come—as a witness—to fight Aubrey Williams and all that Social Worker Williams represents, and try to prevent senate confirmation of Williams as President Roosevelt's rural electrification administration chief.

Wants Present System.

McKellar is chairman of the senate appropriations committee.

Basing his objections on Williams' dealings with the committee as an executive of various New Deal alphabetical agencies, McKellar explained:

"I felt it was my duty to state the facts. As God is my judge, the underlying principle of my life is my devotion to the American government. Each time I have been elected to the senate I have sworn to almighty God to defend and protect the Constitution.

"I don't want to substitute some other form of government for our own. I'm 1,000 per cent, if that's possible, for the government of the United States as it is."

Peering over his spectacles, McKellar then delivered such an attack as the senate has seldom heard on Williams, Williams' national youth administration, which congress finally killed, Communists, and the doctrine that American youth should shirk their country's war.

McKellar's Charges.

McKellar made these accusations against the NYA during Williams' administration:

That it sought to perpetuate itself after returning prosperity and the war had ended the relief needs which brought it into existence. That it sought to prevent the army and navy from recruiting its beneficiaries lest its unessentiality be recognized.

That it posed as a benefactor of youth while "coddling" beneficiaries up to the age of 25. That a third of its beneficiaries were over 21.

That it juggled its books, permitted false claims by its employes, allowed employes dual compensation, and paid husbands for services performed by their wives.

Calls Williams 'Seductive.'

That it encouraged its charges to heckle members of congress and that a youth of military age from one of its congressional delegations told McKellar: "I know more about what I can do for my country than the generals. I want to be a research man."

McKellar constantly referred to Williams as "seductive," and said Williams' "blandishments" had kept NYA alive for three years after congress first attempted to kill it.

Blasting at Williams' "lack of experience" and "unfitness," McKellar said:

"I am a member of the Presbyterian church. Suppose the Catholic church should elect me pope of Rome. What could I do with one of the most important and most splendid offices in the world? I'd be as much out of place as Williams would be in REA."

West Virginia Legislature Backs Free World News

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 8 (AP).—The West Virginia legislature today became the first state lawmaking body to follow the lead of congress and urge world peacemakers to draft a pact guaranteeing free international exchange of news. With no dissenting vote, the senate and house adopted a resolution commending congress for its stand last September in demanding the world wide right of interchange of information without hindrance or discrimination.

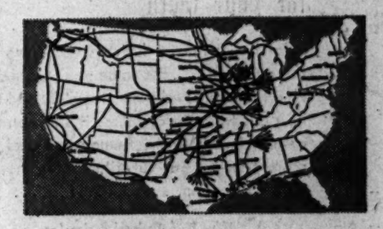
HISTORY'S TIME TABLE

The miracle of America's "time-table war" in the Pacific will brighten the pages of history for many generations of future, free Americans. They will read of the incredible regularity and precision with which our glorious armed forces . . . all working together in one great offensive . . . conquered time, distance and the Japanese.

It is understandable that the management and the employees of a western railroad, like the ROCK ISLAND LINES, should feel a share of the pride in this tremendous, coordinated achievement. For a military offensive is only as powerful as its supply lines are dependable.



This time-table of history has been, and still is, our most important time-table, too. Since the beginning of the war, millions of tons of war freight and hundreds of thousands of fighting men have been transported over the rails of the ROCK ISLAND . . . on schedule. The men and women of our railroad dared not fail . . . and they did not fail.

Until the war ends victoriously for America, our most important business, and the business of our 24,000 patriotic employees, will be the most dependable war transportation service we know how to provide.

CHURCH LEADER DECLARES PEACE DRAFT A PERIL

Fr. Stanford Says Youth Needs Home Influence.

[This is another article in a series on compulsory military training in peace time, expressing arguments for and against the plan and reviewing official action.]

BY HARRY McCLAIN.

One of the most powerful arguments against peace time compulsory military training is made by the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford of Augustinian college, Washington, D. C. Father Stanford holds that a well trained professional army and navy is essential to future security of the United States.

Declaring at the outset that the current proposal for conscription is a peace time, not a war time, measure, Fr. Stanford said it has nothing to do with fighting the present war, that it is not envisioned as a means of shortening the period of service of men now under arms or who may be called thru selective service, and that it is not intended to provide an army of occupation after defeat of Germany and Japan.

Opposition Not Pacifism.

"It is possible," said Fr. Stanford, "to be opposed to peace time conscription on reasonable grounds without being a pacifist, an isolationist, or guilty of shortsightedness as regards national defense."

To link with peace time conscription such issues as improving physical fitness, developing habits of character and discipline, indoctrinating in the democratic way of life, and removing illiteracy only beclouds the main subject, in the opinion of Fr. Stanford.

"It does violence to the meaning of words," he said, "to call military conscription the more democratic method of raising armed forces."

Large Army and Navy Needed.

"There are those," he continued, "who hold that peace time military conscription is not the advisable way, the necessary way, nor the American way to provide for either national security or international peace. In this, I heartily concur, but at the same time I believe that we shall have to maintain a large army and navy with adequate reserves for many years to come, not only to safeguard the peace, but also for internal security.

"Furthermore, there must be provided effective means of recruiting a large army and navy with adequate reserves. I have sufficient confidence in American ingenuity to believe that this can be accomplished without resort to the extreme method of peace time conscription."

Recalling that a large military force is only one factor in national security, Fr. Stanford draws attention to scientific development in the present war. Peace time conscription for all youth will nip many promising candidates for higher studies and research.

Detrimental to Nation's Youth.

Summing up his case, Fr. Stanford insists peace time conscription will be more detrimental than helpful to the morale, vocations and careers, religion and morals of the nation's youth and the political and social institutions of the nation. To draft all 18 year olds would take them away from family and community at the time they are thinking of vocations and careers—would take them from home and community influence when they need this environment most as a protection against moral and religious laxity.

"The isolation of large numbers of men in camps," he said, "is notorious for bringing about a coarsening of manners, speech, and morals. When released periodically from the constraint of camp life, there is a greater temptation to drinking, carousing, and sexual laxity. There is every reason to believe that this problem will be greater in peace time than in war time.

Civilian Control Vital.

"In our form of government, military cliques, dictatorships, and the military mind have been conspicuously absent. Ultimate decision and policy in military matters have been kept under civilian control. It is important that we keep it so.

"We want to preserve and enhance the scientific, mechanical, and productive genius of our people, but we also want to preserve our spiritual inheritance, with maximum freedom for the individual."

[Another article in this series will appear in the near future.]

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Frank Sinatra entering his draft board's headquarters in Jersey City yesterday.

New York, Feb. 8 (AP). — Frank Sinatra went to Governor's Island, 500 yards off Manhattan's southern tip, late today for further tests to determine whether he still was 4-F.

If he isn't, he's a candidate for tank corps or PT boat duty, the 26 year old singer made known thru his press agent, George Evans, who quoted Sinatra as saying:

"If I get into the service I do not want to sing songs."

Brought here by army automobile after examination at the Newark, N. J., induction center, Sinatra was transferred to Governor's Island by government ferry.

Rejected in the draft more than a year ago because of a punctured eardrum, he came back from the west coast several days ago when ordered by his Jersey City draft board to report for reëxamination.

"It's for mourning or surrender or something," one of them explained.

Mrs. Julia Smallhorn, 29, of 905 W. 61st st., told Judge Michael Feinberg in Circuit court yesterday that her estranged husband Fred, 29, 7855 Indiana av., took their two children for a walk and brought only one of the youngsters back to her.

Mrs. Julia Smallhorn.

"He returned Starlit, 2, but is keeping Ronald, 7, in Cedar Lake, Ind., as a hostage until I agree to settle our marital troubles," said Mrs. Smallhorn, who was represented by Attorneys Joseph H. and Norman Becker.

"We'll hold you as a hostage until that boy is returned to his mother," Judge Feinberg told Smallhorn. Ronald was home a few hours later. Mrs. Smallhorn is suing for divorce on a charge of drunkenness. They were married in 1939, separated and remarried in 1942, and separated again Jan. 22.

NEW DEAL PLANS TO SPY ON WORLD AND HOME FOLKS

Super Gestapo Agency Is Under Consideration.

call upon them for any work or information. This would permit spying at home and employment of the police powers of existing agencies whenever needed.

Frankfurter in Picture.

The spy director could employ the facilities of such agencies and enjoin them from reporting to their superiors. Under this provision of the draft order the director might employ the FBI on some task and charge the G-men not to report to J. Edgar Hoover, their chief, or even Atty. Gen. Biddle.

In the high circles where the memorandum and draft order are circulating the proposed unit is known as "Frankfurter's Gestapo," because the sister of Supreme Court Justice Frankfurter is said to hold a confidential personnel post in the OSS. It is assumed she would pick key personnel at the suggestion of her brother for Donovan when, as he expects, he would be named spy chief. She is Miss Stella Frankfurter.

The unit would operate under an independent budget and presumably would have secret funds for spy work along the lines of bribing and luxury living described in the novels of E. Phillips Oppenheim.

Donovan's Memorandum.

Secret Enclosure
18 November 1944.

Memorandum for the President.

"Pursuant to your note of 31 October, 1944, I have given consideration to the organization of an intelligence service for the post-war period.

"In the early days of the war, when the demands upon intelligence services were mainly in and for military operations, the office of strategic services was placed under the direction of the joint chiefs of staff. Once our enemies are defeated the demand will be equally pressing for information that will aid us in solving the problems of peace.

"This will require two things:

"1. That intelligence control be returned to the supervision of the President.

"2. The establishment of a central authority reporting directly to you, with responsibility to frame intelligence objectives and to collect and coördinate the intelligence material required by the executive branch in planning and carrying out the national policy and strategy.

Deny Conflict in Authority.

"I attach in the form of a draft directive [appendix] the means by which I think this could be realized without difficulty or loss of time. You will note that coördination and centralization are placed at the policy level, but operational intelligence [that pertaining primarily to department action] remains within the existing agencies concerned. The creation of a central authority thus would not conflict with or limit necessary intelligence functions within the army, navy, department of state, or other agencies.

"In accordance with your wish, this is set up as a permanent long range plan. But you may want to consider whether this [or part of it] should be done now, by executive or legislative action. There are common sense reasons why you may desire to lay the keel of the ship at once.

Points to Economies.

"The immediate revision and coördination of our present intelligence system would effect substantial economies and aid in the more efficient and speedy termination of the war.

"Information important to the national defense, being gathered now by certain departments and agencies, is not being used to full advantage in the war. Coördination at the strategy level would prevent waste, and avoid the present confusion that leads to waste and unnecessary duplication.

"Tho in the midst of war, we are also in a period of transition which, before we are aware, will take us into the tumult of rehabilitation. An adequate and orderly intelligence system will contribute to informed decisions.

"We have now in the government the trained and specialized personnel needed for the task. This talent should not be dispersed."

Suggested F. D. R. Order.

The suggested order draft, sent to the White House by Donovan in an appendix to the memorandum, reads as follows:

"Substantive authority necessary in establishment of a central intelligence service

"In order to coördinate and centralize the policies and actions of the government relating to intelligence:

"1. There is established in the executive offices of the President a central intelligence service, to be known as the ..... at the head of which shall be a director appointed by the President. The director shall discharge and perform his functions and duties under the direction and supervision of the President. Subject to the approval of the President, the director may exercise his powers, authorities, and duties thru such officials or agencies and in such manner as he may determine.

Advisory Board Provided.

"2. There is established in the ..... an advisory board consisting of the secretary of state, the secretary of war, the secretary of the navy, and such other members as the President may subsequently appoint. The board shall advise and assist the director with respect to the formulation of basic policies and plans of the .....

"3. Subject to the direction and control of the President, and with any necessary advice and assistance from the other departments and agencies of the government, the . . . shall perform the following functions and duties:

"[A] Coördination of the functions of all intelligence agencies of the government, and the establishment of such policies and objectives as will assure the integration of national intelligence efforts.

Collection of All Information.

"[B] Collection either directly or thru existing government departments and agencies, of pertinent information, including military, economic, political and scientific, concerning the capabilities, intentions, and activities of foreign nations, with particular reference to the effect such matters may have upon the national security, policies, and interests of the United States.

"[C] Final evaluation, synthesis and dissemination within the government of the intelligence required to enable the government to determine policies with respect to national planning and security in peace and war, and the advancement of broad national policy;

"[D] Procurement, training and supervision of its intelligence personnel;

"[E] Subversive operations abroad;

"[F] Determination of policies for and coördination of facilities essential to the collection of information under subparagraph 'B' hereof, and

"[G] Such other functions and duties relating to intelligence as the President from time to time may direct.

No Police Powers.

"4. The . . . shall have no police or law enforcement functions, either at home or abroad.

"5. Subject to paragraph 3 hereof, existing intelligence agencies within the government shall collect, evaluate, synthesize, and disseminate departmental operating intelligence, herein defined as intelligence required by such agencies in the actual performance of their functions and duties.

"6. The director shall be authorized to call upon departments and agencies of the government to furnish appropriate specialists for such supervisory and functional positions within the ——— as may be required.

"7. All government departments and agencies shall make available to the director such intelligence material as the director, with the approval of the President, from time to time may request.

Provides Separate Budget.

"8. The ——— shall operate under an independent budget.

"9. In time of war or unlimited national emergency, all programs of the ——— in areas of actual or projected military operations shall be coördinated with military plans and shall be subject to the approval of the joint chiefs of staff. Parts of such programs which are to be executed in a theater of military operations shall be subject to the control of the theater commander.

"10. Within the limits of such funds as may be made available to the . . . , the director may employ necessary personnel and make provision for necessary supplies, facilities, and services. The director shall be assigned, upon the approval of the President, such military and naval personnel as may be required in the performance of the functions and duties of the . . . . The director may provide for the internal organization and management of the . . . in such manner as he may determine."

[The blank spaces are for names of executives and agencies to be filled in later by the President.]

Princeton, Ill., Feb. 8 [Special].—Mrs. Lucille Dhamer, 27, was a frequent companion of Charles Neufcour, Sheffield farmer whom she is charged with murdering, while her husband, Harry, was in a Peoria hospital, a Bureau county Circuit court jury was told today.

Soap Output Cut by WFA —Now 85% Official Base

The war food administration yesterday said that on Feb. 1 it had ordered soap makers to cut their output for home use by 5 per cent of the 1940-'41 production because of decreased supplies of raw materials. Despite a cut to 85 per cent from 90 per cent of the former base, the WFA said there still will be enough for "normal requirements."

It takes strength to win any battle. And you can't expect your anti-freeze to win the winter battle unless it's a match for the thermometer. Your Standard Oil Dealer will gladly check it for you in a matter of minutes. He'll see that it has the necessary strength.

THE QUESTION.

Have you ever put on a bluff and had it called?

WHERE ASKED.

County building.

THE ANSWERS.

Michael L. Rosinia, city prosecutor, 1015 S. Racine-av.—In 1932, I gave my credentials for the national Democratic convention to a friend, thinking I could get in with my badge. Delegates from the south had on white suits and so did I. So I said, "I'm a delegate from Puerto Rico." They wouldn't let me in.

Georgina Tolson, designer, 5408 Drexel av.—When I was about 16 a theater in Europe gave a free special showing of a picture to every one whose name was Alice. A friend and I went to the movie and registered as Alice. We saw the movie but on the way out an usher asked, "Isn't your name Georgina?" I felt awfully cheap.

Meyer H. Goldstein, tax department lawyer, 702 Monticello av.—A friend and I entered a stadium on the west side and had tickets for the east side. Not wanting to cross over, we sat in seats corresponding to ours on the wrong side. When an usher attempted to move us I covered the W on our tickets, but to no avail.

Frank Pobloske, bridge tender, 2416 Dakin st.—When I was going with my wife before I married her we walked past the opera house and I said, "Come on, let's go see the show." I knew I didn't have enough money but knew she'd say, "No." To my surprise she said, "Fine!" Then she learned her boy friend was broke.

Irene Meminger, stenographer, 36 E. Walton st.—One morning recently I was sitting at my desk when a clerk asked, "How much is a package of cigarets worth to you?" I said, "Right now I'd give a dollar for a package." He produced the package of cigarets and took my dollar. Those were the most costly cigarets I ever smoked.

Samuel Allen, head of torts division, 2025 N. Whipple st.—I talked to my wife over the phone before I met her, then dropped in where she worked, pretending to represent a candy company. She said she'd never heard of me. I said, "Prove I don't work for the company and I'll take you to dinner." I took her to dinner.

REPORTS PROBE GIVES CAPEHART BILL OF HEALTH

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8 (AP).—Evidence gathered during the Indiana election investigation in December contains "no charges either as to conspiracy or expenditures" against Sen. Capehart [R., Ind.], Chairman Stewart [D., Tenn.] of the senate campaign expenditures subcommittee said today. Capehart was seated in the senate Jan. 3 "without prejudice."

Chairman Green [D., R. I.] announced he would call a meeting of the senate privileges and elections committee next week to consider a resolution received today from the Indiana Democratic state committee urging prosecution of the investigation.

The resolution states there have been "persistent rumors of illegal expenditures in connection with the nomination and election" of Capehart.

U.S. AUTHORITIES TO GET 2 CAUGHT WITH MARIJUANA

Donald L. Gallaher, 28, of Los Angeles, Cal., and John Warren, 25, of 934 Cuyler av., were scheduled to be turned over to federal authorities today after their arrest yesterday at Wilson av. and Marine dr. by police who found 108 ounces of marijuana in Gallaher's automobile.

Sgt. John Manger reported that Gallaher, a professional dancer, said he had purchased the marijuana in El Paso, Tex., for $150 and had hoped to realize a profit of $300 on the sale of it here. Manger said individual cigarets were selling for as much as 75 cents each here.

Gallaher, who has a record for burglary, and Warren, with a record for larceny, will be charged with violation of the Harrison act, which forbids transporting of narcotics across a state line.

DEWEY APPEALS FOR SUPPORT OF 'BIG 3' PARLEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—In his first important speech since his defeat in the Presidential election, Gov. Dewey of New York addressed a Lincoln dinner at the Statler hotel here tonight.

He reiterated the internationalism of his campaign last fall as preached by his foreign affairs adviser, John Foster Dulles, Wall st. international banking attorney.

Bringing his foreign policy stand up to date, Dewey urged united American support for President Roosevelt in the current conferences with Dictator Stalin and Premier Churchill. He deplored America's absence when decisions were made affecting the future of the peoples of eastern Europe and the "humiliating situation" of America's first learning of these events thru debates in the British house of commons.

Wants Nothing Hidden.

"Our people," he said, "are prepared to uphold the hands of their own representatives [in the big three meeting]. They ask in return that the decisions to be made shall be in harmony with American ideals of liberty and justice.

"They ask that the actions to be taken shall not be concealed and shall not be devious. Our people insist that the mighty decisions shall not be made in the cynical spirit of power politics."

On the domestic front, Dewey declared a "large body of opinion in our own country is going down the primrose path toward totalitarianism," abandoning "in the name of false liberalism" the principles of liberty espoused by Abraham Lincoln. He urged the Republican party to follow the faith of Lincoln.

"If we hold high the principles of that faith," he concluded, "liberal government under God shall not perish from the earth!"

Martin Also Speaker.

The banquet, sponsored by the Republican women of the District of Columbia and attended by most Republican senators and congressmen, also heard an address by Rep. Martin [R., Mass.], house minority leader. Presiding was Rep. Howell [R., Ill.], from Abraham Lincoln's home town of Springfield, Ill.

Martin warned that "advocates of totalitarianism have infiltrated into bureaus and departments" in Washington and he urged "let's not let democracy be the greatest casualty of the war."

He cited Roosevelt's nomination of Henry Wallace for secretary of commerce and Aubrey Williams for administrator of the rural electrification administration as evidence of a growing threat of state socialism.

NAVY MAN FREED IN KNIFING LOST IN AIR ACCIDENT

Aviation Radioman Maurice Arthur Criel, 23, of 2703 Belden av., was lost and presumed dead after an accident near Key West, Fla., Moday, which involved two navy torpedo planes flying in formation, the navy announced yesterday. Lost in the same accident was Criel's pilot, Lt. [j. g.] Roland Leo Peper, 23, of Chilocothe, O.

Maurice A. Criel.

The plane, piloted by Lt. Peper, was seen to disintegrate in midair and parts veered into the flight path of another torpedo plane, whose pilot and companion escaped death in a forced landing in the Gulf of Mexico. Both planes were attached to the training unit at the naval auxiliary air station at Boca Chica, Fla.

Criel was freed on March 20, 1942, by a grand jury two days after he admitted stabbing his father to death with a hunting knife because the father had threatened to kill his wife, Mrs. Pauline Criel, and daughter, Alma, during a drunken rage. The mother and sister survive.

7 CONGRESSMEN PRY LID OFF WPB SECRET HEARING

Force Public Session in Newspaper Case.

BY ROBERT YOUNG.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—A delegation of west coast congressmen, protesting what they termed "doing things under the table," today forced a war production board committee to hold an open hearing in a case involving the denial of building materials to a weekly newspaper publisher whose plant was destroyed by fire. The WPB group had attempted to hold a closed hearing.

The seven congressmen, four of them Democrats, appeared at the hearing with John B. Long, general manager of the California Newspaper Publishers' association, and William L. Daley, legislative counsel for the National Editorial association, an organization of small newspapers.

Won't Be Excluded.

The congressmen became incensed when Alexander Milne Jr., chairman of the reconsideration committee of the WPB's construction bureau, tried to exclude them from a hearing at which Long, representing the publisher, Charles W. Flodin of Rio Vista, Cal., was to appeal for building priorities.

Milne asserted he first would recount the facts in the case to the congressmen, then, after they left, he would call in Long and begin the hearing. Earlier, Milne had told newspaper reporters the hearing was closed and the press would not be admitted.

When Milne persisted in his refusal to open the hearing after the congressmen had asked that every one interested be admitted, Rep. Phillips [R., Cal] told him the delegation intended to hear both sides of the case, not merely the WPB's explanation.

Throws Hearing Open.

Milne finally capitulated and threw the hearing open.

In addition to Phillips, the congressmen present were Representatives Engle, King, Patterson, and Miller, Democrats from California; Johnson [R., Cal.], and Ellsworth [R., Ore.].

Milne asserted Flodin was denied materials, not on the ground his newspaper was nonessential, but because a new building was nonessential, since there were three other buildings in Rio Vista into which he could move his printing equipment. In addition, the WPB official said, the owner of the burned building had been given permission to rebuild, provided the new building was rented to Flodin for his newspaper.

Proposed Rent Boosted.

Long testified that of the buildings said to be available, two since have been occupied and the third is too small. Furthermore, he said, the landlord is demanding $100 to $125 a month rent from Flodin for the projected new building, altho the old rent was only $30.

At the suggestion of Donald G. Shook, deputy director of the WPB printing and publishing division who intervened in the case, Milne said he would have a WPB representative attempt to settle the rent matter between Flodin and the landlord.

If Flodin cannot afford to rent the new building, "something must be done" to revoke the landlord's priorities for materials, Milne said. He contended freedom of the press is not an issue in the case.

Shook told Milne, however, that "whether or not you deny freedom of the press is involved in this case, a lot of people think it is."

Leslie Biffle Elected Secretary of Senate

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8 (AP).—Leslie Biffle of Arkansas today was elected secretary of the senate, succeeding the late Col. Edwin Halsey. Biffle, 54, has been secretary to the majority since 1933. His election was unanimous.

"Mom, must I accept all these invitations? I hadn't figured spending my leave playing bridge!"

WATER TREATY BACKER CALLED 'BAD NEIGHBOR'

Jenkins Assailed at Senate Hearing.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8 [Special].—The senate foreign relations committee was informed today that a former state department official, whose career once brought Mexico and the United States to the brink of war, is the owner of two-thirds of the Mexican land which would benefit from a United States-Mexican water treaty now awaiting senate action.

William O. Jenkins, who was the state department's consular agent at Puebla, Mexico, from 1918 to 1930, was named by Atty. Gen. Robert W. Kenny of California as the owner of more than 500,000 acres of the land involved and "perhaps the most dangerous enemy to the good neighbor policy we have had."

Wants Records Studied.

Kenny prefaced his testimony with the assertion "I'm going to take you behind the woodpile" and concluded with the request that the foreign relations committee call for state department and FBI records of Jenkins' background.

At about the time the treaty was being negotiated last year, Kenny said, Jenkins added to his estates the Mexican holdings of the late Harry Chandler, publisher of the Los Angeles Times. Kenny read to the committee a letter to him by the publisher telling of the deal in which Jenkins bought the land for about $360,000. Jenkins' estates are believed to be among the largest owned by any American in Mexico.

Kidnaped and Ransomed.

Incidents cited by Kenny from Jenkins' career started with Jenkins' reported kidnaping by Mexican rebels in 1919 and his release when friends paid ransom of $150,000. Soon afterward he was jailed on charges he owed the Mexican government 200,000 pesos for revenues. The matter brought sharp exchanges between Mexico and the United States, which in turn led to a war department estimate that 450,000 troops would be needed in case of a war, Kenny related.

Immediately after the assassination of President Carranza of Mexico 10 months later, Jenkins was released and the charges were dismissed. In 1937 Jenkins was charged with evasion of alcohol taxes in Mexico and his estates were slated for distribution among peasants, but apparently the order was not carried out.

State department officials said later that Jenkins purchased the Chandler holdings after completion of negotiations for the treaty, which was signed by representatives of the United States and Mexican governments on Feb. 3, 1944, and 12 days later was submitted to the senate by President Roosevelt.

Terms Not Divulged.

California Senators Johnson and Downey said the state department refused to divulge any treaty terms to California congressmen prior to its signing. Many residents of California and other western states are opposed to the treaty, which would govern utilization of waters of the Colorado and Tijuana rivers and the Rio Grande from Fort Quitman, Tex., to the Gulf of Mexico, and would guarantee Mexico 1½ million acre feet of Colorado waters annually.

W. P. Whitsett, chairman of the board of directors of the metropolitan district of southern California, asserted the treaty revealed lack of foresight by giving Mexico water essential for adequate Pacific coast defense activities.

E. F. Scattergood, advisory engineer for the Los Angeles department of water and power and a member of the Colorado river board of California, reiterated contentions the treaty would jeopardize federal contracts with southern California cities and suggested, as an alternative to the water guarantee, that the United States aid Mexico in creating an irrigation system that would utilize Mexican streams not now harnessed.

AMERICAN POWER IN THE FAR PACIFIC.

Our official figures put the Japanese losses on Leyte at 131,000. The enemy losses in Luzon are estimated at 48,000. No estimate of the remaining garrisons thruout the islands has been made. Probably a quarter of a million men were assigned to hold the Philippines, a surmise based on the supposition that the large southern island of Mindanao was well guarded against an expected American approach. That is a sizable army in any operation.

When the Japs stepped off the Asiatic mainland and took to the sea for their conquests they committed themselves to their navy. That's an adventure in which a miscalculation is fatal. Old Adm. Togo and the Straits of Tsushima may have left too much legend in Tokyo. The good opinion the war lords had of themselves and the poor opinion they had of the whites were bad preparations for such a war as they had invited. It showed itself first in the invasion of the Aleutians and the naval risks taken at Midway which would indicate an attempt against our own coast. That was the way to the White House and the end of the war. The war lords may have been reading Homer Lea, our own prophet of the Asiatic onrush to the Rockies.

Probably what they least expected, if we can guess at what went on in Japanese minds, was the development of long range capacity in the American fleets. The older idea was that the Japanese navy was a safe bet in its own waters, which would include the South China sea. That was the basis of the 5-5-3 ratio of the Washington conference. Conditions considered, it was supposed to represent a standoff equality altho that 3 attached to the 5-5 later was represented as an indignity the Japanese sea lords could not tolerate.

The long range ability attained by the American fleets revised certain maxims of sea power which had come in as sails went out. British sea power had been built on ships and bases. Halsey's carriers need bases, but can range farther from them and remain longer at sea than had ever been thought possible. When the Japanese were unable to relieve Saipan they sought another premier and a fresh cabinet. Koiso made a desperate effort to crush the invasion of Leyte and failed.

Gen. MacArthur has told his soldiers that they inflicted the greatest defeat Japan ever suffered. That is historically correct. To make this possible the American fleets inflicted the only naval defeats Japan has suffered in modern times. These all were operations conducted in the far Pacific by coördinated sea, air, and land forces facing the problem of great distances. Because of American sea and air power the Japanese could not reënforce the divisions they had in the Philippines, which were not lightly held. A death list of nearly 180,000 enemy troops is as sanguinary as anything in the annals of war.

The Japanese have been met in their own positions by land, sea, and air and have been defeated.

THE NORMAN CONQUEST OF "GH."

After the Normans conquered the English, their next job was to conquer the English language. That was a harder task. The language was a hodgepodge which represented the successive invasions of the Romans, the Teutonic tribes, and the Danes. The Celts contributed something and the church fathers, when they came, brought an admixture of ecclesiastical Latin. Dialects of the various sections of the country only made the whole business more difficult.

The Normans knew what they couldn't do, and one of them was to pronounce gutturals. So the guttural was eliminated wherever it was possible to get rid of it. They could do this in speaking, but they couldn't do it in spelling, for English spelling always was irrational. Many words thus retain the guttural in spelling which have lost it in speaking, i. e., through, plough, though, dough, rough, tough.

In fact, this combination of "gh" was one thing that was never subdued completely by the Conquest. The Normans were not long in recognizing what all of us have since been forced to acknowledge: that it is practically impossible to make English spelling consistent with the sound of spoken English. The Normans tried, but they had to compromise. The compromises were an accommodation to the limitations of the voice-box, tongue, palate, and lips conditioned to Norman-French.

Thus in some words the guttural became a sibilant: rigg became ridge; egg, edge, and brigg, bridge. In others it became to the ear a labial sound, while still written with the guttural form: cough, enough, trough, laugh, and draught. Then there were the words in which no attempt was made to sound the guttural, altho it was retained in the spelling. As is hinted in the preceding sentence, THE TRIBUNE some years ago attempted to rationalize this problem by dropping the guttural in spelling. That's why we use the forms thru, tho, altho.

Even after the Normans and THE TRIBUNE got thru, there were still a few mavericks left. Edinburgh, for instance, which is pronounced Edinboro. The poet Arthur Hugh Clough is to be pronounced kluf. Then there is the bough of a tree, which is sounded the same as the bark of a dog. The exceptions, no doubt, prove the rule.

In time the Normans had to admit they were licked. Norman-French had been the court language during the reign of Edward the Confessor, but by 1362 English was ordered to be used in courts of law "because the French tongue is much unknown," and in 1363 the lord chancellor opened parliament with a speech in English. The Conquest didn't stick. William should have invaded with grammarians and philologists instead of bowmen and knights. He would have saved us all a lot of trouble.

RUSSIA IN THE BALKANS.

Our state department under Acting Secretary Grew, is trying to persuade the Russian government to let American correspondents see what's going on in Bulgaria and Romania under the Red army and in Yugoslavia under Marshal Tito. Whether these efforts will accomplish anything remains to be seen, but at any rate it is encouraging to find the department frankly acknowledging that Russia is wholly to blame for the exclusion.

In one sense, of course, it doesn't make much difference whether the reporters are admitted or not. Sooner or later the facts will come out as they always do, because there never was a police cordon around a nation tight enough to prevent somebody from escaping with the story. Hitler didn't succeed in concealing the truth about his concentration camps and Stalin has done little better in his attempts to keep from the world the knowledge of his camps for political prisoners in the Arctic regions and Siberia, with their millions of men and women held to slave labor. His purpose in barring reporters from the Balkans is to avoid an outcry over the brutalities until the dirty work has been accomplished and cannot be undone.

Perhaps Mr. Grew will be successful in persuading the Russians to let the world know what is going on in their Balkan sphere. If so, we hope we will next attempt to gain some liberty of observation and correspondence for American newspaper men in Russia. As matters stand, they are allowed to see little and hear less. All they can send is material that has already been published in the official press. It is absurd to pretend that in such circumstances there can be any successful coöperation with Russia by the nations of the world in the interest of peace or anything else.

PETRILLO THE LAWGIVER.

James Caesar Petrillo's latest step to extend his union monopoly over the whole field of music is to place the National Music camp at Interlochen, Mich., on the "unfair list" of the American Federation of Musicians. This places the school out of bounds for any member of the union—and that means its director and faculty. Any radio chain broadcasting concerts by the students would face a walkout of union musicians on all its other programs.

The school is operated by the University of Michigan and its instructors are all members of the university's school of music. The concerts it sponsors are by amateurs whose offense is that they don't carry a union card. Petrillo forced the school off a national radio program two and a half years ago on the ground that the students' symphonies were depriving professionals of work. Since then he has extended that argument by disputing the right of high school and Boy Scout bands to play "The Star Spangled Banner" in public and has even contended that the United States Marine band was chiseling into his preserve.

It would be idle to waste moral indignation on Petrillo's activities, not only because he has repeatedly shown his contempt for the rights of the public, but because the courts have conceded that he is within the letter of the New Deal's labor law. It was this last consideration which induced the senate to pass a bill specifically intended to protect the Interlochen school and similar amateur organizations from interference by the union in radio concerts. Petrillo's action against Interlochen may have nullified the effect of the bill before it has even passed the house.

Dr. Joseph E. Maddy, director of Interlochen, has pointed out that Petrillo's action has the further effect of asserting not only the right to control the performance of music but to control musical education. If the 25 University of Michigan instructors were to continue work during summers at the camp, they would be suspended by the union and would be unable to appear professionally. The university would also find itself on the blacklist.

The fact tha. Petrillo is able to pursue his dictatorial course under the full protection of the law is a pretty commentary on the New Deal's hypocritical pretense that all of its labor legislation is intended to protect the "common man" and the "little people." It turns out that these "little people" are big, tough individuals like Mr. Petrillo, who will kick around a bunch of pig-tailed girl violinists and knee pants pianists to grab another dollar.

Another of the "little people," Mr. Daniel J. Tobin, the president of the teamsters' union, has also demonstrated his social conscience lately by saying that he would have to think it over before agreeing that congress can give jobs to the soldiers now in the foxholes when that would conflict with the seniority rights of his own war patriots.

The conclusion to be drawn is that the New Deal has given the union grifters the right to legislate the laws under which they choose to operate, and that the public is to be bound by them. The situation is not unlike that which prevailed when the Social Democrats took over Vienna and ran it as an autonomous labor republic, thus giving first the Fascist Heimwehr and then Hitler an excuse they had been looking for to move in and take over. The labor dictators might learn that it does not do to press an advantage too mercilessly. There's always a fall of some sort ahead when they do, and the pity of it is that the Petrillos are not the only victims. Millions are made to suffer for the excesses of a few.

HAVOC IN ROUEN.

David Darrah's dispatch [Feb. 6], giving an account of war damage in Rouen, causes this column to turn its eyes in that melancholy direction. Let it be understood that the capital city of Normandy has been cherished as a museum of the architecture of the middle ages, from humble dwellings to elaborate fanes; that it has been a major objective of sightseers, and that it has been depicted by generations of artists. Now to assay Darrah's report.

* * *

The cathedral has been horribly damaged by bombing, and altho its lofty spire stands, its two towers have been destroyed. This means that the Tour de Beurre, which inspired the buttressed crown of The Tribune Tower, has gone. Restoration is possible, Darrah thinks, but who can put together the splinters of more than 100 ancient stained glass windows? . . . A large etching of the façade of Rouen cathedral called "Lace in Stone" deserves inspection now. See Vol. 10, 14th edition of the Britannica, page 546.

* * *

The Palais de Justice has been bombed and burned. This was another masterpiece of the flamboyant style in Gothic architecture. Near it is the old market place, where Joan of Arc was burned at the stake. The exact spot is marked by a mosaic design in the pavement.

* * *

The Rue Jeanne d'Arc, which crosses the old quarter of Rouen, contains a tower of the castle where Joan was tried, the foundations of her prison, and a museum of relics associated with her life. Darrah says the lower end of this street is a mass of ruins. From the bridge there, Joan's ashes were thrown into the river by her executioners. Every year on May 30, from that bridge Rouen tosses a wreath of roses.

* * *

The shattered cathedral contains the tomb of the Norse viking leader who conquered Normandy in the dark ages. French history calls him Rollo, a name that became associated, in the Victorian period, with nice little boys who obeyed their parents. But he called himself Hrolf and his followers added "the Ganger," which we will translate as the Go-getter.

DESERTED HOUSE.

An old house understands, an old house doomed
To die. With gaping mouth and sightless eyes,
With darkened rooms and memories entombed,
Forgotten laughter rings again while sighs
A tiny fingerprint, defiantly,
Clings to a wall and shaded dust is pinned
Upon it like a coverlet. Debris
And discord lie around its shabby feet
While friendly swallows nest upon its brow.
Once proud and loved . . . a masterpiece complete
With human tenderness twined like a bough
Around its heart, it stands without regret.

Lend-Lease in Literature.

Fellow Americans, this business of lend-lease was rearing its head 'way back in 1868. On page 103 of that year's January issue of Godey's Lady's Book I find this choice tid-bit—and I quote:

"Mr. T. W. Robertson, of London, received, a few days ago, from Baltimore, the payment of fees to a considerable amount for the performance of his comedy, 'Caste,' in that city. Such a spontaneous acknowledgment of an author's claims, which could not be enforced in the present state of international copyright, deserves to be recorded.

"Yes, that is all well enough. Large sums of money have been sent from here to English authors; but will some one chronicle the first instance of an English publisher sending money to an American author whose works he has printed?"

My enlistment was terminated June 16, 1944, by reason of being commissioned an ensign in the naval reserve. I subsequently was retired from active duty Oct. 16, 1944, and reported to my draft board. I immediately was classified 1-A; in December I was classified 1-C, and now I'm back in 1-A again. The board said that the last local board memorandum dated Dec. 7, 1944, sub-paragraph 3, gives it authority to reprocess me because I had been separated from an officer training program."

You should appeal your 1-A classification at once and at the same time request the state director to determine on what basis the board arrives at its decision. Your officer training ceased when you became an officer. You had four months' active service after you became an officer. It does not appear that your case comes within the categories described in local board memorandum 77-C as being subject to reclassification without specific authorization of Gen. Hershey.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Dr. Irving S. Cutter

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

WHEN THE SPLEEN GOES "HAYWIRE."

THE progress of surgery seems to be marked by the ability of highly trained experts in this field to extirpate more and more of one's anatomy. Yes, we can get along without the appendix or even a goodly portion of the alimentary tract. A segment of the lung may be dispensed with; likewise splinters of bone or entire glands, such as the spleen.

Older writers mention this latter organ frequently. It was nearly always involved in malaria, becoming swollen and hard. Many an ancient Roman no doubt would have been extremely happy could he have taken advantage of modern techniques for the extraction of his "caked" spleen.

We have known for more than half a century exactly how to dispense with this structure should it become diseased or take on characteristics which are wholly incompatible with good health. For example, there is a type of anemia-hemolytic, or familial—which is ascribed to the wolflike propensities of this organ. The red blood cells are dissolved so rapidly that a severe grade of anemia appears promptly.

Physicians recognize the typical sufferer, who is perhaps in his teens, and who gives a history of episodes of jaundice which come and go. Furthermore, if a careful inquiry is made, it will be learned that other members of the family have exhibited the same tendency.

If the red corpuscles are checked for resistance, they will be found to be extremely fragile. The bone marrow is manufacturing the cells properly but the spleen is injuring and destroying them. The explanation for the jaundice is the speedy deposit in the skin of pigment which is derived from the red coloring matter.

Surgical removal of the organ usually accomplishes a spectacular cure, but it is not a procedure which should be undertaken lightly or without adequate preparation. While there are certain other maladies in which this plan may well be considered, there is no positive proof that it is an ideal remedy. If gross enlargement is present, as in Banti's disease, the measure may be recommended. The danger, however, together with the likelihood that but little benefit will ensue, has dropped this suggestion into the discard.

Assuming that we have a true case of congenital hemolytic anemia, what happens after the structure has been eliminated? Hemorrhages cease and, as a rule, the patient returns to normal within from one to several months. Periodic attacks of jaundice no longer are observed and the decrease in the red cells is arrested. The yellow tint of the epidermis may be a long time in disappearing, the individual retaining a dusky complexion for months thereafter.

When indicated, splenectomy is a salutary move, restoring to health those who otherwise would be chronic invalids and whose period of life would probably be abbreviated.

FLIP-FLOPS.

Mrs. B. writes: Every once in a while my heart jumps up in my mouth, as the saying goes. The doctor gave me a good examination and told me he could find nothing wrong. But I still have it. What usually causes this annoying sensation?

REPLY.

If actual trouble can be ruled out, as it usually can, we may consider the state of the emotions and of the digestive tract. Stimulants [coffee, tea, nicotine, and alcohol] may be responsible. During the menopause, the manifestation is not uncommon.

DEGREE OF HEAT.

L. J. writes: In the normal human being, when is the temperature the highest and the lowest?

REPLY.

The low point is generally reached after seven to eight hours of sleep—about 6 a. m. for the average person; the pinnacle by midafternoon. The amount of food, activity, etc., must be taken into consideration.

MOUTH INFECTION.

J. C. writes: How is trench mouth contracted?

REPLY.

Some authorities believe that the causative organisms are present in the mouth all the time. When resistance drops, they gain the upper hand. Good hygiene, especially of the oral cavity, should help to prevent such a situation.

MITE BITE.

L. V. writes: What is straw itch?

REPLY.

A certain type of mite infestation. It is also referred to as "prairie" and "grain" itch. The parasite ordinarily lives on the vermin which normally inherit straw piles, but it may transfer itself to human beings.

Never-Never-Again-Land.

It was 10 o'clock on a Saturday morning. The grocery was neat, clean, almost empty. A sleek cat licked her fur in the window. The butcher, his white apron spotless, was hanging up half a beef. The grocer sat reading the comic strips in the morning paper. The woman was blithe and carefree as she walked in.

"Good mo-r-r-r-rning, Mrs. James," the grocer said in delight, rising from behind the counter. "What can I do for you today?"

"O, good morning, Mr. Summit," the woman replied. "I don't really need much, I guess, but I was just passing."

"You could have telephoned," he reminded her gently. "We'd be glad to send over anything you need, at any time, you know."

"Yes, yes, I know." Her reply was absent-minded as she retrieved a scribbled list from her bag. "Now, let's see . . . double X whipping cream, some powdered sugar, some sweet butter—"

"A pound?"

"O, yes, of course, and . . . ummm. O, my! Oranges 30 cents a dozen? Why, that's highway robbery."

The grocer smiled timidly. "Well, they're not in season, you know. If I were you, I'd try cantaloupe today. They're beautiful right now. Five cents apiece."

"Five cents apiece! Why, I'll declare. I remember the time they were 5 cents a dozen."

The grocer drooped visibly, but made a final effort. "Bananas are very reasonable today. Ten cents a dozen."

"That is better. I'll take a dozen. Good ones, mind you."

"Fresh vegetables?" the grocer asked eagerly. "We have some beautiful cauliflower in today. Ten cents a pound. And some lovely Idaho potatoes. Ten pounds for 25 cents."

"O, I don't know. The family doesn't care much for fresh vegetables. Some canned string beans, please, and some canned tomatoes. About four cans of each. O, yes, and a large can of sliced pineapple."

"Need any cheese today? Some very good cheddar just in. Here," and he sliced off a bit. "Taste it."

"Not forgetting me, are you, Mrs. James?" the butcher called.

"O, no," archly. "I never forget you, Mr. Cranford. I want two good fryers, some bacon, some of that nice link sausage, eight lamb chops, and—"

"No roast?" his voice was grief-stricken. "And I have such a beautiful crown roast today." He brought it proudly to the counter. The woman prodded a bit with her gloved finger. "O, I don't know," she said finally. "We've just had one roast after another. I don't dare risk it this Sunday. I promised them fried chicken. Still . . . it is beautiful. O, send it along. We'll have it Monday, I guess."

She turned to go, then came back. "O, by the way, have you any scraps for the dog?" Indeed he did. Some beautiful bits. Bones, too. He'd put them in with the rest of her order.

"O, yes," to the grocer, "I'm running low on coffee. Can you grind me up some of my special blend?" He could and would. "Well, I guess that's about all. I guess I'll let you deliver it, after all. What does it come to?"

The grocer went into a huddle. "Altogether, $5.49," he said. The woman sighed as she pulled a $10 bill from her bag, together with an oblong card edged with numerals, some of them punched out. The grocer gave her $4.51 in change. Then, using a metal puncher, he began punching out numerals on the card. "Why, why, Mrs. James!" he exulted as he punched the last number. "That fills out your card. Now you can get your extra heavy aluminum double boiler free!"

"That's fine," she said noncommittally. "Just send it along with the other junk."

A SEAMAN WHO ISN'T "EXPERIENCED."

Chicago, Jan. 31.—We do a lot of reading about foolish spending of the taxpayers' money these days, and to that I want to add my bit of information. I have been trained and sent to sea by the United States maritime training service. After one voyage I left this service, due to hardship it caused my family. Today I feel that I am able again to go to sea and know that my family will be all right.

Upon seeking information at the war shipping office, I was told that I could not go to sea, as I did not have enough sea time, altho my papers were in order. With the merchant marine crying for men and claiming a shortage and needing 5,000 men each month, they turn down a man who has had the training and some experience at sea. On the fifth floor of the same building they were taking applications for men to train them for the service for which I was trained. Can you guess why they prefer to take new men and train them, rather than one who already has the training?

We were informed that it costs about $1,200 to train each man for the merchant marine. A. F. JOCHENS.

AN OLD AMERICAN TENET.

Wautoma, Wis., Jan. 29.—Exploring Judge Sullivan's decision in the renowned Ward case, the writer was especially interested in the restatement of a traditional American tenet: "The constitutional guarantees that protect the sacred rights, liberties, and property of American citizens, from the humblest to the most exalted, still remain inviolate. These rights may not be transgressed with impunity. . . ."

The concluding words closely parallel the theme of original stanza three of our national anthem: "The soil of freedom shall not be polluted with impunity." The quotation was employed in an account of the classic land and naval victory at Plattsburg, in an extra edition of the Burlington, Vt., Northern Sentinel under date of Tuesday, Sept. 13, 1814. H. DR. CUTTER AS A WRITER.

Chicago, Feb. 5.—There are many, I am sure, among the unseen and the unheard of who deeply grieve the passing of Dr. Cutter. I am one of them. He knew me not, but thru the grace of your columns I knew him well.

Altho I appreciated him as a famous physician and a learned medical counselor and derived much help from his column, I was equally captivated by his skilful manner of imparting facts and conveying information. He did this with a brilliance that was rare among men of his scientific school.

I hold a number of clippings of his column that I have kept primarily for their literary quality. His was the extraordinary genius of being brilliant on more than one horizon, which makes his loss the more difficult to bear.

FOOD FOR THE FILIPINOS.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Being a Filipino, I was deeply moved while reading your commendable editorial urging that food be sent the Philippines. As Malta saved the British interests in Africa, so the Philippines may save what interests America has in the east. REV. B. O. TOLENTINO.

MOVIES FOR SERVICE MEN.

FRANCE, Jan. 18.—Our hats are off to the boys of the army and navy responsible for our seeing movies under conditions that would make civilians so uncomfortable they wouldn't be able to keep their minds on the show. These men have done a great job, both here in the ETO, and in the Pacific areas.

Most of us realize that these men operating the projectors, transporting the film, etc., are doing all they can to keep us in entertainment. It is far from their fault that Hollywood is so busy patting themselves on the back for the B, C, D, and XYZ pictures they send over here that they can't show us better movies.

Why are most of the "money making" films kept in the States? Why isn't every A picture put on 16 mm. prints for the armed forces overseas? If they are, why not send more prints? Why use up film on 10 stinkers for every really good movie we see? Papers and magazines from home tell of many A pictures that never seem to make it over here, where they don't earn a million dollars in admission fees.

TOUGH ENOUGH WITHOUT STRIKES.

FRANCE, Jan. 18.—I just finished reading in THE TRIBUNE today about the Carnegie steel mill going on a five day strike after our Gen. Eisenhower asked them to turn out more war goods, shells, etc. I wish this letter would be printed or sent to them so they'll be sure to read it. If they can't make a go of it on $10 or $12 a day, then let us know and we will send them some money every payday just so they'll turn out the shells. If it is the working conditions, we will gladly trade with them. In other words, how can we ever get home or have peace with things like that going on?

I do hope this will do a little good. We hate to read about strikes all the time. It is tough enough as is.

AUDITORIUM'S OWNERS EAGER TO HELP SAVE IT

BY AL CHASE.

Mayor Kelly's plan to convert Chicago's famous old Auditorium theater and hotel into a great permanent public recreation center yesterday received hearty approval of the owners. John Goodridge, president of the Illinois Brick company and executor of the Mark S. Willing estate, said that any attempt to save the property for future generations was welcomed. The Willing estate owns 70 per cent of the property. The building is structurally sound and should stand for 100 to 200 years, he explained.

"It's a marvelous idea to preserve for public use such a world famous structure," he said. "If Chicago doesn't consider the Auditorium worth saving, this city might as well forget about its past. It's one of a few historic buildings here that should be retained. As a great recreation center it would be a fitting successor to the present service men's center."

Monument to Civic Spirit.

Goodridge said that the Auditorium was conceived, financed, and erected by public spirited Chicagoans of vision, imagination, and faith in the future of the city. He said that during the 57 years the building has been standing its owners have poured hundreds of thousands of dollars into the property, but have never taken out a dime of profit.

"The Auditorium is the flower of the golden age—1870 to 1890—when Chicago's citizens found they needed a place where great public gatherings could be held," he said. "They built the finest theater in the United States, with the best acoustics of any public hall in America, and admirably located."

Modernized in 1933 and 1934.

Goodridge said that in 1933 and 1934 about $300,000 was spent in modernizing the theater and hotel. New steel work was installed and other improvements made as a result of a safety survey made by Holabird & Root, Chicago architects. In 1940 the same firm reported that the building was structurally sound and capable of being operated indefinitely.

Between 1889 and 1895 the Wabash avenue section of the building sank 24 inches, and a few inches more in the years up to 1901, Goodridge said. But there has been no further settlement since, he added.

Taxes Exceed Earnings.

"Operation of the Auditorium has resulted in little but grief and taxes for the landlord," said Goodridge. "The taxes in 1889 were $22,000. They climbed steadily to $187,000 in 1926. Later when loop valuations were reduced, taxes dropped to $90,000 a year, but in the building's 57 years its earning power has never been that much.

"The owners ask only that their large investment of cash in the property be given some recognition."

There are three owners. In addition to the 70 per cent owned by the Willing estate, the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company of Milwaukee owns about 15 per cent, and the Sears and Slater estates of New York and Boston the remainder.

G. A. R. TO PAY LINCOLN TRIBUTE ON HIS BIRTHDAY

The 136th anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's birth will be observed by the Grand Army of the Republic Memorial association in a ceremony to be held at 2 p. m. Monday in Memorial hall in the Chicago Public library's downtown building.

The principal speaker will be Noble W. Lee, department of Illinois legislative committee chairman of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Capt. Thomas Ambrose, president of the association and a Civil war veteran, will read the Gettysburg address.

The Board of Trade Legion band will present a concert in the lobby of the library from 1:30 to 2 p. m.

Photostatic copies of the Emancipation Proclamation and the 13th, 14th, and 15th amendments to the Constitution will be on display between 2 and 6 p. m. Monday in the South Chicago branch of the Chicago Public library, 9055 Houston av. One of the five copies of the Gettysburg address in Lincoln's own hand is now on exhibit in the Chicago Historical society's museum, Clark st. and North av.

ICKES' TAX SUIT MAY BE STARTED HERE NEXT WEEK

Court action probably will be started next week to recover $4,274 in taxes from Secretary of the Interior Ickes [Honest Harold] on his five story building at 231-33 S. State st., Assistant State's Atty. Jacob Shamberg said yesterday.

Ickes has been under investigation for getting his 1943 taxes on the building reduced on a showing that his annual rental was about $24,000, whereas, it was shown later, it was in excess of $61,000. The reduction was based largely on a complaint signed in blank by Ickes and filled later with information supplied by his agent, Mrs. Mabel Reinecke.

Suit to Correct Abatement.

The contemplated court action if taken will be placed before the County court. Specifically, the state's attorney's office will sue to correct an abatement of the taxes granted by the board of tax appeals. This, it was said, might force Ickes into court to present his side of the case. Various tax officials also would appear, and the entire matter would be threshed out.

A parallel action also being considered is the sale of Ickes' State st. property. Last year Ickes withheld paying his 1943 taxes because he was trying to get a reduction. In November, the County court decreed him tax delinquent and ordered the property sold. In December his taxes were cut; he paid his 1943 taxes, less the reduction, and sidetracked the foreclosure threat.

Order Still May Be Valid.

On the ground the tax cut was based on erroneous information, it is possible, Shamberg said, that the foreclosure order is still valid. Next Tuesday County Treasurer Schlaeger will start selling tax delinquent properties under the November order, which included Ickes'. However, Prosecutor Shamberg said, this form of action against Ickes may be too slow.

Tax sales start with volume 1. Ickes' property is in volume 507. Seven or eight volumes a day are cleared, and at that rate it might be fall before a sale might be effected. For that reason the court action is expected to take precedence, he indicated.

SHAFER'S TOPIC TO BE UNITY AT LINCOLN DINNER

"Wanted — A United Nation," will be the subject of an address by Rep. Shafer [R., Mich.] tomorrow night at the Lincoln Day dinner of the Illinois Republican state central committee in Hotel Sherman. Gov. Green and Sen. Brooks also will be featured speakers before what may be an overflow crowd.

Rep. Shafer will relate his observations on a recent visit to the western European battlefronts. He has fought waste in the construction and operation of American training camps and has been an outspoken opponent of political favoritism in the conduct of the war. His talk will be broadcast over WBBM.

ASK BUTTERFAT PRICE HIKE TO EXPAND OUTPUT

A. H. Lauterbach, general manager of the Pure Milk association, informed members of district 10 of the organization in Wheaton Methodist church hall last night that efforts will be made in Washington to obtain an increase of 6 cents per hundredweight in the price of butterfat to stimulate butter production. More than 150 farmers attended the meeting.

The present price is 50 to 55 cents per hundredweight, and the desired rate is 56 to 61 cents, Lauterbach said. A major reason for the butter shortage, he said, is that many small farmers find it no longer profitable to separate cream from milk and ship the cream; instead they feed the whole milk to stock. A higher price should stimulate butterfat marketing, he added.

Lauterbach said dairy farmers of district 10 in Du Page county produced more milk in 1944 than in 1943. Gus Heinrich of Addison was elected president of district 10; Fred Best of Bartlett, vice president; Clarence Mack of West Chicago, secretary, and Fred Hoffman of Naperville, treasurer.

100 SCAVENGER COMPANIES WIN PRICE HIKE PLEA

But OPA Steps Up Their Paper Work.

Nearly 100 Chicago scavenger firms have won the right to increase their prices under OPA regulations, but the victory was not without its costs, Thomas Heuzenga, president of the C. & S. Disposal company and owner of the Ace Scavengers, said yesterday. Nor without its headaches for the customers, he believes.

The increases run from 50 cents to $3 per month for apartment buildings and from 10 to 300 per cent for restaurants, and are based on the fact that the restaurant business is booming and people who eat at home are throwing more things away, Heuzenga said.

Customers Sign Four.

But the added costs and headaches come from an OPA form that must be filled out in quadruplicate by the companies and signed individually—four copies, one at a time—by the customer. It is a statement, called a buyer-seller agreement, in which the customer agrees to the new and higher charge, and of which the OPA requires three copies for its files.

The firm also keeps one, and if the customer wants one the company must make out another, sign it, and mail it to the individual. Heuzenga said the Ace company had hired an extra employe to make out forms three weeks ago, and that she will be on the pay roll for another week or two.

Restaurant Business Booms.

The scavengers' plight has been an OPA concern for more than a year. Heuzenga said some restaurants have increased their business several hundred per cent since 1941, with garbage going up in the same proportion. Firms which stuck to 1941 prices, in compliance with OPA regulations, had hundreds of customers on which they lost money, he said. Others raised their prices. A year ago the OPA began to consider the matter.

Marion W. Isbell, area director, last fall took the matter up in Washington, where a similar situation existed, and obtained permission for Chicago firms to raise prices in cases where customers consented. The agreements are filed with the OPA and are considered automatically approved unless denied within 15 days.

Several hundred of an estimated more than 10,000 agreements have been approved, he said, and none rejected.

THOS. BARRETT DIVORCED; KIN OF ATTY. GENERAL

Atty. Thomas Barrett, 28, brother of Atty. Gen. George F. Barrett, was divorced yesterday by Mrs. Marguerite Barrett, 25, of 1401 Hudson av., who testified in Superior court that he slapped her after she trumped his ace in a bridge game last Nov. 20. They were married in Memphis, Mo., Nov. 24, 1939, and separated the day after the bridge incident. Her attorney, James L. O'Keefe, said she will receive $125 a month support for herself and a child, Thomas Jr., and a cash settlement of $2,500. Judge John A. Sbarbaro granted the divorce.

MARINE'S WIFE FACES COURT IN CHILD NEGLECT

Mrs. Louise Speir, 27, a marine's wife, who was arrested by police who said she left three small children in an unheated apartment at 2753 Adams st. all Tuesday night, was arraigned before Judge Jacob M. Braude in Women's court yesterday on a charge of contributing to the dependency of children. Judge Braude ordered Mrs. Speir examined by the court psychiatrist and continued the case to Feb. 20. She testified she left the children to look for a job, but stopped off in a tavern. The children, who had not eaten since Tuesday evening, were found at 3 p. m. Wednesday. Two of them, Earl, 8, and Charles, 6, were taken to the Juvenile home, and Hazel, 2, was taken to St. Vincent's orphanage.

CIO UNION LOSES ITS DEMAND FOR DODGE INQUIRY

A demand made by the United Automobile Workers union [CIO] that a nonpartisan committee investigate working conditions at the Dodge Chicago plant was denied yesterday at a meeting of union, plant, and war man power officials. The action caused Paul Russo, assistant regional director of the UAW, to criticize the WMC and the company.

Discrimination, arbitrary, disciplinary lay-offs, and unsympathetic foremen have caused the majority of strikes at the Dodge Chicago plant," Russo asserted, "but the attitude of the WMC apparently is to condone the lack of willingness on the part of the company to bargain and go along with labor in its own plant."

He said that charges of mismanagement and his proposal of an investigating committee would be brought up again tomorrow at a meeting of union officials with the war production board. Eugene Brock, deputy regional man power commissioner, who tabled the motion, admitted that the Dodge plant had the highest turnover per month and absenteeism of any war plant in Chicago.

WIVES OF HOPE, COLONNA HELP VETS' BENEFIT

Mrs. Bob Hope and Mrs. Jerry Colonna, wives of the screen and radio comedians, yesterday purchased tickets for the opening night of "The Ice-Capades of 1945," to be held March 1 in the Arena, 400 E. Erie st., and made arrangements for the tickets to be turned over to wounded convalescent service men. Proceeds of the performance will benefit the American Women's Voluntary Services.

The AWVS maintains lounges for use by service men and women who stop briefly in Chicago between trains, and staffs 14 bond booths, which have sold 37 million dollars of war stamps and bonds. The organization also maintains a motor transport corps and has driven 235,000 miles in community and military service. Mrs. Hope is a member of the AWVS state board in California.

WINNETKA BABY, TEN MONTHS OLD, DROWNS IN BATH

Barby Jean Hotarek, 10 months old, drowned yesterday in the bathtub of her home at 918 Linden av., Winnetka. Her father, Anton Hotarek, is an army sergeant in Europe. The mother, Mrs. Janett Hotarek, told police that she was giving Barby a bath and that she left her for less than two minutes to get a towel and a shirt in another room. She said she found the baby face down in the water. Efforts by the Winnetka fire department to resuscitate the child were unsuccessful. The Hotareks have another child, Joanne, 2½.

Nolin Dell [Doc] Dunn, 18, of 615 North av., and Miss Jacqueline Helen Roby, 17, of 811 10th st., both of Waukegan, obtained a marriage license yesterday in the Lake county clerk's office and said they would be married Wednesday in Lady chapel of Christ's Episcopal church, Waukegan.

Jacqueline Helen Roby.

Dunn was a principal figure in a recent grand jury investigation of the shooting of Miss Rita Gibbons, 18, of 912 S. Utica st., Waukegan, at which Lawrence Eaton, 17, of 216 Franklin st., Waukegan, was indicted on charges of assault with intent to murder on Miss Gibbons, Dunn, and his sister, Rose Mary, 14.

Miss Roby, chosen "Miss Waukegan" in a theater-sponsored contest last year, is employed as a war worker. Dunn, discharged from the navy, is a driver for a bakery concern.

GIRL WHO TRIED TO KILL MOTHER IS FORGIVEN

Mrs. Lottie Reynolds, 36, of Aurora, who nearly lost her life last Monday after her daughter, Bernice, 16, opened the gas jets on the kitchen range, said yesterday that she hoped the "whole thing will be dropped," Mrs. Reynolds visited her daughter in jail at Geneva to give her a Bible, she said, explaining that Bernice had always gone to Sunday school.

"Bernice is a good girl. I'm sure she didn't know what she was doing," the mother asserted. She said she had no objections to her daughter's marriage to Pvt. Clarence Swope, 18, of Ottumwa, Ia., but that it was Clarence's father who had raised the objections because of the couple's ages.

Bernice had confessed she tried to kill her mother because her parents had prevented her marriage to Swope.

BEER GANGSTER SALTIS IS SUED BY WIFE AGAIN

A divorce suit against Joseph Soltis, known as Joe Saltis when he was a prohibition gangster, was reinstated in Circuit court yesterday by Judge Michael Feinberg at the request of Mrs. Anna Soltis, 52, of 9859 S. Bell av. The suit charges Soltis with cruelty, drunkenness, and threats against Mrs. Soltis' life. It was filed in January, 1942, but dismissed Jan. 22 this year for want of prosecution. Atty. A. L. Cronin told the court the suit had been placed on the wrong calendar. Soltis and his wife were married in 1912 and have four children.

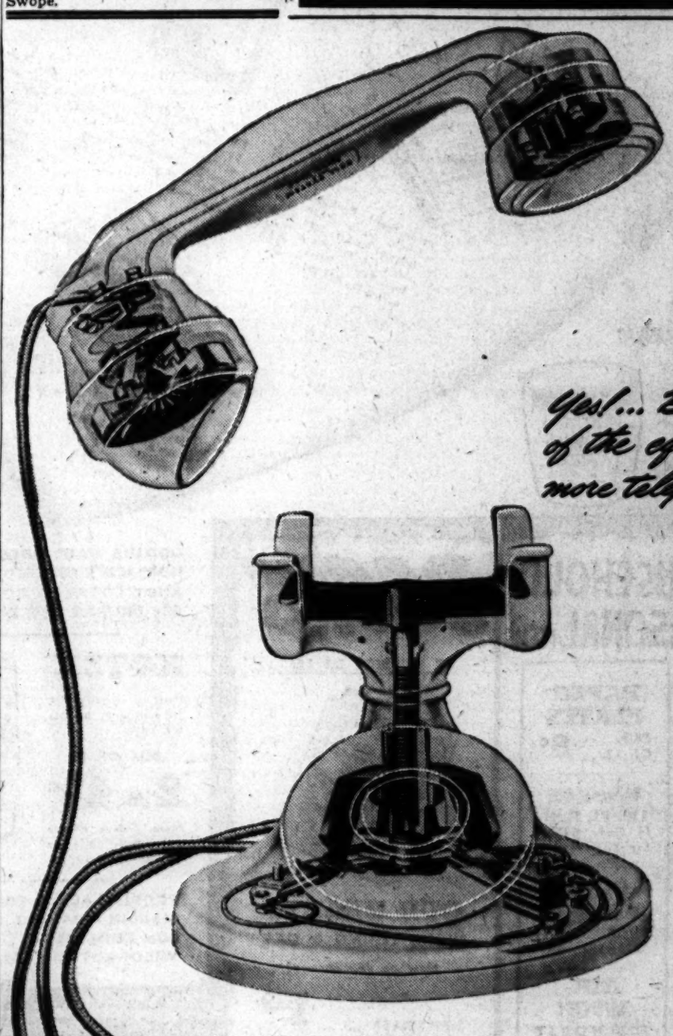
Precision Instrument



Yes!... BUT only one small part of the equipment needed to add one more telephone in your neighborhood

MANY people don't realize that the instrument itself is just one link in the long chain of equipment needed for telephone service.

To serve one more family, we must install and connect a telephone — and also provide a special circuit running all the way to the central office, an outlet on the switching equipment, and furnish various other complex mechanisms for the use of this telephone.

This explains why new telephones can't be supplied immediately in certain localities even when new instruments become available.

* We are doing everything possible to provide service for all who want it. We appreciate the patience and understanding shown by those who have had to wait.... THANK YOU AGAIN.

'RUBBER STAMP' LABEL PINNED ON CONGRESS AGAIN

Rep. Gavin Assails Farm Census Waste.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—After a brief show of independence, congress appears ready to resume a rubber stamp role in the government, Rep. Gavin [R., Pa.] told the house today.

When the house on opening day revived the committee on un-American activities over New Deal protests, the nation was encouraged to believe that congress was about to assert itself, Gavin said.

But yesterday's action, approving a bill to put 30,000 men and women to work gathering farm statistics at a time of supposed man power scarcity, indicates a renewed subservience to burocratic dictates, he asserted.

Cost Set at 14 Million.

Gavin referred to a bill passed by the house providing for a census of farm products and live stock, at an estimated cost to the government of 14 million dollars. Opponents of the measure have contended that the census would necessitate the hiring of 30,000 workers to visit the farms of the nation.

"This army of workers, now in productive enterprise, is to be engaged in the nonproductive activity of conducting a census of agricultural products," the Pennsylvanian remarked. "They will gather facts and figures, which when compiled, will be about as much use as the millions of dozens of eggs now rotting in storage.

"In the arguments over work or jail legislation, we heard about the scarcity of man power—900,000 men needed for the armed forces and 750,000 needed for industry. We who opposed the bill were blasted for daring to offer opposition.

"Insult to Intelligence."

"Now I ask the majority members who passed this farm census legislation by a vote of 198 to 171 to discontinue talking about a man power shortage because it is an insult to the intelligence of all of us.

"The boys over there doing the fighting can now come home, take off their coats, and go to work to pay the taxes to meet this 14 million dollar bill to keep thousands on the public pay roll. Won't they be pleased about that!

"Burocracy is again becoming fashionable and burocracy must be maintained, regardless of the cost and regardless of how much man power and money it takes from the war effort. It looks to me as tho the executive branch is about to swallow the legislative and the old term 'rubber stamp' is to be with us for the next two years."

WINS CIO PLEDGE TO END DRIVE TO GET HIM FIRED

Harry Morgan, 36, a turret lathe operator in a war plant, appealed to Judge Donald S. McKinlay in Superior court yesterday for relief from the "snooping" and "tattletale" tactics of CIO union shop stewards.

He said the agents of the United Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers of America are trying to get him fired from his job at the Chicago Flexible Shaft company, 5600 Roosevelt rd., because he refused to distribute the union's New Deal political pamphlets urging the reelection of President Roosevelt.

Morgan's attorney, William J. Grace, said the principal offenders are Ragnar Lofgren, chief shop steward; Charles Duckmann, Al Grazulis, and Al Mstulis, stewards, and Gunnar Johnson, a member of the union.

The court was asked to issue a temporary injunction restraining the union from attempting to effect Morgan's discharge. A motion for a permanent injunction will be heard March 7. Judge McKinlay refrained from issuing the temporary order when Atty. H. B. Ritman, representing the union, promised that the harassment of Morgan would cease.

One Patron Cut

A street car was derailed at 18th and Halsted sts. and the front of Jim Orlakis' tavern at 1726 S. Halsted st. was smashed last night by a heavy trailer truck driven by John J. Junck, 30, of Milwaukee, Wis.

The police said Junck, who was arrested, tried to pass the northbound car on the left side just as the car started to turn west in 18th st. After pushing the car off the rails the truck plunged across the intersection and plowed into the tavern, coming to rest against a cigar stand.

One tavern patron, Louis Allman, 44, of 1711 S. Halsted st., was knocked off a stool and his head was cut. A half dozen other customers scrambled to safety.

NEW MUNICIPAL COURT SET UP TO SPEED TRIALS

To speed hearing on Municipal court misdemeanor cases when a jury trial is demanded, Chief Justice Edward S. Scheffler announced yesterday the formation of a special jury court in the central police building at 1121 S. State st. Judge Harold P. O'Connell has been assigned to preside. Previously, cases involving jury trials in the police building were transferred to the regular jury court at the Criminal courts building.

DE TARNOWSKY BUYS EX-WIFE'S HALF OF HOME

Saul Plast, a real estate dealer at 30 N. La Salle st., has agreed to accept $11,500 from Capt. Alexis de Tarnowsky for the half interest in the De Tarnowsky home in Barrington which he purchased from the captain's former wife, Alice, Judge Michael Feinberg was informed in Circuit court yesterday.

The sale will give Plast an exit from the involved De Tarnowsky case. When he purchased the interest in the home from the former Mrs. De Tarnowsky she was under a court injunction not to dispose of the property, and Plast was enjoined from occupying the house. The former Mrs. De Tarnowsky, who was married to Pvt. Charles L. F. McIntosh after obtaining a Mexican divorce which De Tarnowsky does not recognize, is reported to be with McIntosh in California.

Plast's attorney, Henry Biossat, has said that Plast paid Mrs. McIntosh $9,000 for her share in the home, and $11,500 is the price the captain had offered to pay her. The captain's attorneys, Joseph H. and Norman Becker, said Plast will pay $900 in accumulated bills, including grocery bills, owed by Mrs. McIntosh.

ENJOINED IN RENT CASE.

Judge Philip J. Finnegan in Circuit court yesterday enjoined Dr. Aaron G. Fairfax, 1901 Dodge av., Evanston, from charging more than ceiling rents on a 10 room house he owns at 158 Locust st., Chicago. The office of price administration is seeking a $525 judgment in a suit charging Dr. Fairfax collected rents $35 above ceiling from April, 1943, until recently.

Perfection in Scalloped Potatoes

The secret of successful scalloped potato making lies primarily in the baking temperature used. To prevent curdling, bake at 350 degrees for about an hour, covering the dish for the first 45 minutes, then uncovering to brown. An added precaution against curdling is to bake the raw potatoes in a very thin white sauce or in evaporated instead of fresh milk. To vary the flavor of scalloped potatoes, add 1 tablespoon minced onions or chives. [TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

Meats Giving Butter a Race for Red Points

BY ARNOLD ERICKSON.

Some retail stores that doled out butter a quarter of a pound at a time to a customer a few weeks ago and even then seldom had enough to go around now can supply as much as a pound to any one who can afford the ration points. No longer is this yellow "gold" kept hidden from all except the best customers.

However, Mrs. American housewife actually gets less butter now than when it required 20 points a pound and it was necessary to be in extra good standing with the store proprietor in order to have an occasional quarter of a pound slipped into the shopping bag along with a generous purchase of other groceries.

The 4 point increase, to 24 points a pound, is not what put the shopper out of the butter market. There still would be more buyers than butter were it not for the fact that practically all the point-free meats of a few weeks ago now require points.

This confronted the housewife with the dilemma of providing butter at sacrifice of meat. Most housewives obviously do without butter rather than use 24 of the red ration points now so much more precious. Seventy-one of the meat items that could be bought without points in December now are rationed. Many other meat items were raised in point value. Increases since December range all the way from 1 to 13 points.

Dairy men are much concerned over the method used to drive the American public out of the butter market, which, they contend, leaves a wide open field for the butter substitutes. The latter require only three points a pound.

Federal buyers leave a relatively more liberal supply of the substitutes for civilians than they do the butter, and the planners in Washington make it easier for the Mrs. to get them. While civilians are required to supply eight times more points for butter than for competitive products, lend-lease buyers take 40 per cent more butter than it does the substitutes, exclusive of butter purchased for the military services, it was said.

Farmers contend that the control method for the butter industry is unfair because their product is being given in huge quantities to European countries which might not continue as customers when trading reverts back to a cash basis. In the meantime, the paying customer, the American housewife, is being provided with substitute products which she might learn to like better than the original by the time the butter industry again must depend almost solely on domestic trade, farmers fear.

Household Forum

Mrs. John G., Chicago—I have learned how to broil fish without too many odors flooding the house. I sprinkle the fish, before I broil it, with a generous amount of lemon juice. This is good insurance against odors.

Mrs. Ed. T., Indianapolis, Ind.—My husband says that he can revive dull files to new sharpness by soaking them for 20 minutes or so in a dilute solution of sulfuric acid [battery acid]. In case the file is very dull, he lets it remain in the acid a few moments longer.

Mrs. Helen G., Chicago—If you want to give your rice a good cleaning, here's my method: I put the rice into a bowl which is half filled with water and then stir it with a rotary type egg beater.

Chicago Food Stores Better Stocked Than Most, Survey Shows

Chicago housewives are more fortunate than their sisters in other big cities when it comes to finding many kinds of food at the butcher's or grocer's, the labor department said yesterday, after a survey of independent retail stores in 56 large cities.

The survey showed that in all cities more than one-third of the stores had no beef, pork loins, lamb, mutton, or hams in stock, and more than half were completely out of bacon and veal, the labor department said.

Butter, shortening, canned mixed fruits, and pineapple juice also were missing in a third of all stores, but there were plenty of potatoes and flour, as well as most other staples. Canned salmon was one of the scarcest foods, with 58 per cent of the stores not having any.

Party to Open Hudson River Art Exhibition

BY JUDITH CASS.

BECAUSE the Newberry library is to have an exhibit of books illustrating Romantic America, 1820-1850, which will run concurrently with the Chicago Art institute's display of paintings of the Hudson River school, the library's directors and trustees have received special invitations to the opening next Wednesday night of the institute exhibit. The officers and trustees of the Chicago Historical society also have been invited, as well as the institute's trustees, governors, and members, and the opening reception, from 8 to 10 o'clock, promises to be an interesting event, augmented by music of that period, the early and middle 19th century.

There will be no formal receiving line, because of the crowds expected, but institute officials will lend a hand in welcoming guests. President Chauncey McCormick and Mrs. McCormick will give a small dinner beforehand with Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Sweet as special guests. Mr. Sweet, associate curator of painting and sculpture, assembled the 164 paintings, water colors, and drawings included in the show. He visited 115 museums, collectors, and dealers to gather the first large comprehensive showing of this native American school. The collection will go later to the Whitney museum in New York.

Other Institute Notes.

The painters represented began depicting the "unspoiled charm of the American countryside" in the Hudson river valley and later moved westward. Mrs. Everett L. Millard of Highland Park is a great-granddaughter of one of the early painters, Albertis Browere, who will be represented by a painting of California gold rush days, which she gave to the institute. The late Mrs. William O. Goodman gave to the institute a painting by George Innes, "The Old Mill," painted in 1849 when he was 24, and which never has been shown in public before. Another contributor is Percy Sloan, who is lending a painting by his father, Junius Sloan, the only artist of that school who settled in Chicago. He came here in 1864.

Tying up with the exhibit is a lecture which Stanley Pargellis, director of the Newberry library, will give Tuesday night to open its book exhibit. "Romantic America" will be his subject.

Mrs. Sweet has arranged an interesting meeting which the Radcliffe club of Chicago will give this afternoon in the Oriental gallery of the Art institute. Mrs. Pargellis will preside, and a talk on the collection will be given by Miss Margaret Gentles. Tea will be served in the gallery at 4 p. m.

The annual meeting of the Alumni association of the institute will be held next Thursday evening in the clubrooms. Members will bring original valentines, which will be judged for best, worst, funniest, and most sentimental, and Miss Herma Clark will present a monolog, "Bustles and Bangs."

Today's Events.

"Facts I Faced in War Time Europe" will be discussed by James S. Duncan, industrialist of Toronto, Canada, at a luncheon meeting of the English-Speaking union at 12:15 p. m. today in the Blackstone. Mr. Duncan was engaged in business in France, Germany, and Argentina before the war. At the speakers' table will be Frank A. Hecht Jr., president of the union; Mrs. Hecht, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Barrows, Fowler McCormick, R. Douglas Stuart, the George F. Spauldings, and Mrs. John M. Simpson.

Capt. Harold Cooper, information officer for the Fiji Islands and the Western Pacific high command, will be a guest of the union at tea this afternoon following the Chicago Symphony orchestra concert. Capt. Cooper was graduated from Cambridge university and studied at Yale as a Henry P. Davison scholar and was a visiting fellow from Cambridge to Princeton.

One of the largest post-symphony parties today will be a benefit cocktail party the North Shore Service league of the Chicago Maternity center will give in the Racquet club. A caricaturist, tintype photographers, a gay 90s fashion show, a barber shop quartet, and dancing will provide some of the entertainment, which is patterned along gay 90s lines, as the center is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year. Mrs. Wayne E. Rapp is general chairman of the party, to start at 5 p. m.

The Cordon's after-the-symphony tea today will open an exhibition of water colors and oils by Mrs. Helen E. Corlett, which will remain on view to March 9. Mrs. Corlett will be a special guest at the tea.

Harold J. Kennedy, playwright and theatrical producer, will speak on "Broadway on Parade" before the Chicago Drama league at 11 a. m. today in the ballroom of the Woman's Athletic club. Following his talk many of the league's members will entertain at luncheon.

Here and There.

When Lester Armour leaves Sunday for Washington, D. C., to return to his post with the office of strategic services in London, he will have added another gold stripe to his navy uniform to denote his recent promotion to the rank of captain.

As soon as Lt. George Ryerson can locate a house in Washington, D. C., where he has been assigned to the bureau of ordnance, his wife, the former Phoebe Massey, and their two children hope to join him. Mrs. Ryerson now is living in the Winnetka home of her father, George B. Massey, who is in El Salvador visiting his son, Capt. Massey Jr., and the latter's family. Capt. Massey is military attaché to the American embassy in San Salvador. Mr. Massey expects to be away until the middle of March.

Capt. Maurice D. FitzGerald, who has been a patient in the Mayo General hospital, Galesburg, Ill., since his return from the South Pacific in August, has arrived at home and is seeing for the first time his 2 year old daughter, Maureen. Capt. FitzGerald served with the army medical corps on New Guinea for more than two years.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	Pass	1 no trump	Pass
2 diamonds	Pass	2 spades	Pass
3 spades	Pass	4 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of hearts.

It is a weakness of a great many bridge players that they form an early opinion about a hand and are unable to change it as the bidding develops.

Very frequently a hand starts out with brilliant prospects but when the bidding shows that partner does not like either of your suits and you cannot support his, what promised to be a very strong hand may develop into a serious problem child.

By the same token, you may pick up a hand with a few scattered pictures and no particular suit and you begin to inquire about the radio program. A round or two of bidding may take place and suddenly you may come to the conclusion that you hold the missing link of your partner's chain, and you find outside influences unwelcome.

Today's hand illustrates the point. North opens the bidding with one spade and South responds with no trump. Even tho he has normal trump support, the distribution of the hand is so barren that he should not risk increasing the contract.

North quite naturally bids two diamonds. At this point the temptation would be to pass with the comment, "I like diamonds better than I do spades, and I have already told the strength of my hand and have no desire to go places."

This reasoning would be superficial. Actually the complexion of this hand has now changed. We are certain that North has five spades and it is very likely that he also has five diamonds.

The reasoning is clear. If North had only four card suits, he would have passed one no trump, or if his hand were sufficiently strong, he would have raised to two no trump. Rather than permit the bidding to die, I would suggest giving partner one more chance by returning to two spades.

Actually South's preference is for diamonds, but since he is certain that partner has five spades, the preference with three to the queen cannot be criticized. North now decides that there is a chance for game which he coaxes partner to bid by going to three spades. Actually South should take the gamble. He originally had almost a raise to two spades but refused to give it because of the bad distribution. Now that his partner has a big two suiter, his own bad distribution is unimportant.

Valentine's Day Tour.

A special St. Valentine's subject, "Say It with Flowers," is scheduled as the guide-lecture tour to be given at 2 p. m. Wednesday in the Chicago Natural History museum by Miss Miriam Wood.

Thru the Looking Glass

The valentine that says "I love you" is just a wee bit banal. The kind that says "And I think you're pretty too" has something special to recommend it.

Maybe a vanity. The very choice of one is a subtle compliment. And when you choose one that's beguiling to the feminine eye as well, you've done well. There are all kinds of them about, of course, and you will probably let your bankroll be your guide. Look, in particular, for the inexpensive but very handsome one of mock tortoise, light and in a special design that's chic and pleasant to handle. It's for loose powder and lots of it, which is what every woman wants.

Then there are some little dreams in leather. One house has several beauties combining brilliant leather with gold kid. There is a marvelous fuchsia, our favorite. There also is a kelly green, and a pink and a black leather one in either a gay polka dot or in a dignified, richly simple scroll design with lustrous gold kid trim. These are among the most stunning compacts produced and aren't as expensive as their elegance might suggest. One of these is a de luxe kind of a valentine for the woman who loves color and makes smart use of it.

If vanities don't tempt you, do take a look at the vast and exciting array of bath trimmings. Dusting powders, talcs, colognes, bath oils—all these either singly or in exquisite sets—are guaranteed to make the feminine heart beat faster.

Two Setbacks Dealt Plan to Draft Nurses

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8 [Special].—Proposed legislation to draft nurses for military service received two setbacks today when the American Red Cross refused to back the plan and a war man power commission official conceded the proposal probably would halt voluntary enlistment of WACs, WAVES, and SPARS.

Miss Virginia Dunbar, the Red Cross spokesman, told the house military affairs committee considering the proposed draft that the organization would "take no position with respect to this bill."

She testified the Red Cross believes "an orderly process of drawing nurses for the military is essential," but when asked by Chairman Thomason [D., Tex.] whether coercive legislation were the answer, she replied:

"Because of the quasi-governmental status, and especially since in its membership and organization it represents all shades of opinion, the American Red Cross has traditionally followed the policy of neither urging nor opposing pending legislation not directly affecting the organization.

"Therefore, it takes no position with respect to this bill. It will undertake to give the committee such information as it has, growing out of its activity in the recruitment of nurses."

Miss Dunbar said nurse recruiting had declined from 5,000 a week to 1,130 last week since President Roosevelt's call for a draft.

Admission that drafting of nurses might halt voluntary enlistments of WACs, WAVES, and SPARS was made by Dr. Paul Barton, executive officer of WMC's procurement and assignment service, under questioning of Rep. Luce [R., Conn.].

"Isn't it true that prospective recruits would probably reason that if they were needed by the army and navy they, too, would be drafted?" asked Mrs. Luce.

When Dr. Barton agreed, Mrs. Luce asked: "Then to be logical, should we not extend the draft to all women who are needed?"

"That is correct," Dr. Barton replied.

The interchange came when Dr. Barton, who supports the nurse draft plan, warned that nurses will logically conclude they are not vitally needed if the bill does not pass. He said he favors the draft because the "nursing profession has conceded it cannot meet the army's goal of 60,000 by voluntary methods."

D. A. R. Announces 3 Projects to Help Wounded Fighters

Announcement of three new projects to aid army and navy men has been made by Mrs. Julius Y. Talmadge, president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

To bring radio entertainment to patients in the Mayo General army hospital in Galesburg, Ill., the D. A. R. is preparing to install a $60,000 wired program distribution system. When the new system is in operation every service man in the hospital, which has a capacity of nearly 2,500 beds, will have head phones beside his cot and a push-button gadget giving him a choice of five programs.

The organization also is providing mobile X-ray units at a cost of $15,000 each for six new hospital ships. These units can be used on the ships, as well as taken ashore in isolated places for the examination of navy, marine corps, and coast guard men. Thru the third project the D. A. R. will install another type of X-ray unit, costing $900 each, on hospital ships. These units can be moved to any spot of the ship without necessitating the moving of patients. Funds for the organization's war projects are raised thru voluntary donations.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

The School of Hard Work.

Without exception, these white collar girls painstakingly had worked up from lesser jobs to the ones they now occupy. The woman sitting at my right displayed a beautiful diamond ring given to her by her company on the 20th anniversary of her employment. The woman seated at my left told a similar story of years of satisfactory employment with the same firm.

One young woman said she "had grown up with the company," explaining that when it consolidated with another, her position was enlarged. It was her belief—shared by others present—that the beginner in business is smart to choose carefully the company for which she intends to work and then to cast her lot with it.

"Do you feel you might have done as well, or even better, if you had switched from one job to another?" I asked a woman with pretty graying hair. "Not one of my friends has," was her prompt answer, It set me trying to think of how many successful business women I could name who stepped immediately into a high bracket job. Including women engaged in professions and in business, offhand I couldn't think of a single one! All were graduates—and some post-graduates—of the school of hard work.

4th Beethoven Concert Played by Symphony

Concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Desire Defauw, conductor. Presented at Orchestra hall Thursday evening, Feb. 8, 1945, and scheduled for repetition Friday afternoon. The program:

Overture from "The Ruins of Athens" ..... Beethoven
Symphony No. 8, F major..... Beethoven
Symphony No. 7, A major..... Beethoven

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

There were two kinds of listeners at Orchestra hall last night—those who agreed with Désiré Defauw that everything was just wonderful, and those who were wryly grateful that Beethoven was less prolific than, say, Miaskowsky, who at last cable from Moscow had rolled well past his 21st symphony. At Mr. Defauw's clip of two symphonies a concert, we ended the fourth division of the so-called Beethoven cycle, and are all thru with that until spring brings the choral Ninth, complete with a chorus of high school children.

I suppose the difference came in what you think of Beethoven. If you consider him just another composer who tucked in a lot of beautiful tunes, then you might be relatively happy to hear them played by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, which isn't as good as it used to be, but still is good enough to turn in some deft playing when it gets a chance. But if, musically speaking, you consider Beethoven a god who briefly walked the earth and left us divinity to treasure, then you were cheated of the birthright of his music, at times to a degree that would have justified thunderbolts of wrath from composers' heaven.

The chief trouble with Mr. Defauw's Beethoven is its failure to comprehend greatness, and without comprehension there can be no projection. He has a certain superficial theatricality which is the opposite of true drama, and under his direction the orchestra sounds harsh and rough, plodding its laborious way to forced climaxes. They have to be forced to register in the general din of the loudest playing now discoverable in a concert hall. Only when Mr. Defauw desists in his arm flailings and permits the orchestra to fall into its natural groove does it sound like itself. It doesn't get many chances.

Last night's concert opened with the rarely heard overture to "The Ruins of Athens," incidental music to a play which may not be quite as nondescript as it sounded. The enchanting Eighth Symphony didn't begin with the "gigantic stairs" of glorious lyricism. The orchestra hit it with a battering-ram. In general the performance was rough and arbitrary, with the horns dismal in the trio, while the lovely minuet, which began with spirit and charm, bogged down into the muddle of poor articulation.

The epic Seventh Symphony at least made an effort for scale. But it missed the splendor, the cumulative development that can make it eternally exciting. The slow movement started beautifully, but slumped into monotony, and the finale raced to completion thru a chaos of hoarse sound thru which the brass made desperate but unconvincing bleats. It was there I expected thunderbolts.

U. S. Bureau Prints a Guide to Child Books

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Much as I love books and enjoy going over the displays of publications for children, I do not have the time to make a thoro job of reviewing and selection. However, the following announcement has just reached my desk, and if you would like to have a comprehensive reading list for reference in buying books for your children I think you would find it useful:

"Selecting books for children will be greatly aided thru the guide just released by the children's bureau, United States department of labor. Books old and new, from many publishers, are listed and classified according to children's interests; they range from ABC and Mother Goose books thru the classics that are favorites with teen-agers.

"The widened interests of children whose brothers and fathers are stationed in far-off places these war years are met with a group of titles under the heading, 'How Other Children Live.'

"The authors of the children's bureau guide to good reading for children place emphasis upon the enjoyment to be had by the whole family, and define as 'the best books' those that have the broadest appeal.

"Very young children, the authors say, like books done up in the bright primary colors—blue, red, and yellow. Not until they are older do they appreciate the softly colored bindings and illustrations that appeal so much to adults. A book should be stoutly put together, for if it is well liked it is going to get hard usage. Books bought for children who are just learning to read should have big, clear type.

"These and other pointers to book buyers provide an answer for parents, aunts, and uncles, who are sometimes baffled in making an appropriate selection. Single copies of the pamphlet, which is entitled 'For the Children's Bookshelf' [publication No. 304], may be obtained free on request to the children's bureau, United States department of labor, Washington 25, D. C. Copies may be purchased for 10 cents each from the superintendent of documents, United States government printing office, Washington, D. C.; a discount of 25 per cent is given on orders for 100 or more."

Bible Revised; Scholars End Six Year Task

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The new Revised Standard version of the Bible, first authorized revision in half a century, was reported yesterday to be complete and in the hands of its publishers. The report was made by Dean Luther A. Weigle of Yale university divinity school, secretary of the revision committee, at the Morrison hotel.

First projected in 1929 by the International Council of Religious Education and held up during depression years, the immense undertaking has required six years of work on the part of leading scholars named thru the council by 44 Protestant denominations. Executive and educational groups of the council are in session at the Morrison with about 50 present, in place of the usual 1,700 or more, because of war time restrictions on travel.

Dean Weigle outlined many of the difficulties encountered by the schools, including recent delays occasioned by conflicting views of revisers and publishers on the use of pronunciation aids in the text. The revisers wanted to remove hyphens, accent marks, and diacritical signs showing vowel and syllabic values. Publishers said the Bible would not be the Bible to most people without such pronunciation aids, especially an "authorized Bible" published under official approval of 44 denominations.

Both sides won under a compromise with such pronunciation aid applied only to more unusual words, with vowel value marks omitted and with the syllable hyphen omitted when the accent mark is used, Dr. Weigle explained, adding that this minimum of aid is necessary because the Bible is read aloud in all kinds of groups as well as in regular services by trained pastors. But this problem set the publication date back by at least 60 days, he said.

Dean Weigle explained that the American Standard revision of 1901 is the same as the 1881 revision with the preferences of American members of the revision committee used. Under the convocation of Canterbury's authorization for the 1881 revision it was required where new words had to be used that they should be from the Elizabethan period of the King James version.

But, in many respects, the American revision of 1901 became more Elizabethan than the 1881 so-called "British revision." For example, the word "lest" is found 16 times in the New Testament. The 1881 British revision used the phrase "lest haply" for this word several times, but the American revision used the Elizabethan "lest haply" every time. The same was true of the translation of the Greek word meaning "necessary" into old English "must needs" by the American group.

Like the King James version of 1611, the later standard revisions used archaic words such as "prevent," which used to mean "run ahead of," and "let," which meant hinder or restrain, and "provide," which meant "see ahead." The present committee is not tied by the Canterbury authorization, but has "used straightforward English based on the King James and American Standard revisions," Dean Weigle said. The New Testament probably will be available by Christmas, it was announced.

Yarn for Making Afghan Is Sought by Elderly Shut-In

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Mrs. T. is an elderly shut-in, whose only income is a small pension which barely provides necessities. She seldom leaves her room in the winter and passes the long days with some sort of handiwork. She would like to crochet an afghan and has requested black and colored yarns. Lacking the means to buy materials, she hopes that readers, who have strands left over from finished pieces, will pass them on to her. She will be unable to call for offers and will appreciate having them mailed to her.

Mrs. H. writes: "Again I come to you for help. My husband needs heavy underwear, size 46, and shirts, size 17. He is so weak from old age that he can no longer leave the house and feels the cold excessively." This couple, living meagerly on a small pension, is located on the northwest side.

Illness of several years, requiring patient care and daily medication, finally made Mr. D. unemployable. He and his wife are receiving an old age pension. This income supplies rent, provisions, and a few other necessities. They have asked our assistance in locating items for their two room apartment. Warm bedding, two kitchen chairs, a rug, and linoleum are needed. They also have requested women's shoes, size 4, and men's, size 6. They live on the south side.

INSTALMENT XXIX.

SIMILAR DELUSION.

Gallagher crossed his legs and glared about the carefully appointed room. "Thru the door. You left it open. What do you mean there's been a lot of visitors?"

"I take a cop off the door at 6 o'clock tonight and everybody in New York drops in." Davis said: "Let's decide right now who's going to talk first. We turned you loose this morning, but I'm getting a bit sick of your showing up places. Who came here with you?"

"Nobody," said Gallagher, "not even your shadow. I shook him downtown."

The inspector muttered, "Some fun!" and said louder, "I don't know what you're up to, Gallagher, but you're not helping things by your attitude nor by packing a gun."

"It isn't of much interest to the department, I know, but I'm trying to find my wife's murderer. That's reason enough for packing a gun."

The captain reached down and closed a hand on Dreist's collar. "You seem to be laboring under the same delusion that I am, Mr. Gallagher. The delusion that Troy Singleton's murderer is running around New York. Inspector Davis assures me that he's safely tucked away in jail."

"That's where he'll stay," said Davis, "until you turn up something better."

There was a speculative glint in Gallagher's metallic eyes as he looked on Maclain. "Where do you fit in this picture, Mister?" he demanded after an instant's study of the captain. "You're blind as a bat, aren't you?"

Davis said, "Maybe I'd better introduce you two. He's a private investigator, Gallagher. Capt. Duncan Maclain."

"I know who he is," said Gallagher. "I want to know what's his game."

"For the moment, it seems to be the same as yours. Maybe we'd better get together," said Maclain.

"If you think you're going to trick me into talking, you're crazy." Gallagher set his jaw. "I'm playing a lone hand."

"Maybe that's the trouble," the captain suggested. "Too many of us are playing a lone hand. We seem to be getting in each other's way. There have been several cases where Duncan Maclain and the homicide squad worked together with excellent results. That, of course, was back in other days."

"Other days!" said Davis. "I couldn't get Larmar Jordan out of jail if I wanted to. The case has passed into the hands of the D. A."

"He's safer there, anyway," the captain remarked.

"Safer from what?" asked Davis.

Davis got up and walked into the hall to try the outside door. Back again, he said, "Now, look here, Maclain, you've let Sybella's accident turn your head. But I don't get what you're driving at about some one trying to kill Larmar. He and the girl were alone there on Thursday."

There was a noise as Gallagher's thick tongue came out and moistened his heavy lips. "Maybe you and I could get together at that, Mister. I don't happen to think that this Jordan guy killed her either. That's what's been driving me on."

"It will make good headlines if it ever gets printed," said Davis. "'Ex-flatfoot Penetrates Penthouse Puzzle.'"

"If the inspector will keep out of this for just five minutes, maybe I'll tell you what brought me here tonight, and maybe I won't. It depends on what you have to say."

The captain locked his hands behind his head and said, "I understand you've been in the army, Mr. Gallagher."

"Yes."

"Did you ever hear of exploding a mine by remote control?"

"Yes."

"I believe that the gun that killed your wife was fired in some such way. She was shot just as the church chimes began to ring, killed with a hair trigger gun. I'd like to draw you a picture. There's a hedge and a terrace wall in back of me, and a desk in front of me. I'm on a terrace, and I have set hours. I work here every day. Somebody has decided to kill me."

The inspector let his interest get the better of him and asked, "Why?"

"Maybe my accounts are short. Maybe some one has looted my gun collection. Maybe some of my work's been sold and hasn't been reported, and the funds have been misappropriated. Maybe I have a jealous wife, or maybe some woman I'm running around with has a jealous lover or husband. Or maybe I'm about to throw over some woman I'm running around with."

"Maybe I'm nuts," said Davis.

"Take the last one," said Gallagher.

"Very well, we'll take the last one," said Duncan Maclain. "It's as good as any. Larmar Jordan was running around with a woman. He got tired of her and told her so one day. She had a friend in Jordan's household and she played on his sympathy and got him to write her a note inviting her to a party."

"Why?" asked Davis.

The captain shrugged. "In the event that anybody might question her about being around the Jordan's apartment, she'd have something to show and something to say. She was mad. Also she was clever. Strangely enough she knew quite a lot about guns."

"What guns?" demanded Gallagher.

"Guns that were worth money," said Duncan Maclain and spread out his hands. "Once when Jordan was in a financial hole, she sold one for him to a man named Daniel Pine and got double the money Jordan could have gotten himself."

"You mustn't take my story seriously, Larry. This woman not only learned about expensive guns, she learned about guns that could kill. She wrapped one up in a handkerchief and wedged it into the terrace wall in back of where I'm sitting. You will remember that for the moment I'm Larmar Jordan, the writer, and I work here every day."

"Vibration of some kind," said the captain.

Flowers Still Spell Romance as Valentines

BY REA SEEGER.

Order your Valentine flowers this week-end to help keep the florists in a mellow mood. Soldiers, sailors, and marines have swamped these genial assistants to the love-lorn with orders that rate high priority. There are, however, plenty of flowers left to preserve the usual sentimental moods of us at home. Valentine corsage arrangements still are tops with the lads that send them and the girls that open the boxes with properly palpitating hearts.

This year the camellias vie with the favorites—violets. The rose and the orchid supplies have been held for the men in service. But the camellias are sensational, from the scarlet to the delicate pinks, from the exotic flecked or striped variations to the hauntingly beautiful all whites. They're big, round, and romantic. A single bloom, or two or three, provide background for conquest via the floral route.

Next come the great waxy gardenias, framed in a dramatic contrast of deep green foliage, each leaf as perfect as the fragrant loveliness of the many petaled flower itself. Again, a single huge flower gives as much joy as two or more in the lavish garlands or wreaths.

The obliging florists have several new tricks this year. They'll arrange a nosegay for a tweed lapel out of spray, moth orchids, or miniature but real orchids. Violets in a heart shape, with a single red rose or a small gardenia for the center, match the ingenious arrangements of carnations in all colors, from white to deepest red. The effective variegated carnations are assuming a new importance as decorative lapel boutonnieres, and as larger corsages.

Another perfect valentine is a potted plant—something to be a reminder for as long as three weeks. Typical spring blooms are available not only in potted plants but also as cut flowers. These include gold yellow jonquils, the first tulips, blue iris, lovely spicy snapdragons, calendulas, and gladioli.

Gay Potholders

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Three effective crocheted potholders are different yet simple to create. The first is a spiral popcorn design; the second uses a shell stitch, and the third is in a rose petal design. Made in contrasting colors of carpet warp, they are decorative and inexpensive.

For instructions in crocheting the three potholders, No. 1124, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth av., New York 1, N. Y.

FASHIONS
By Angela

Informal Valentine parties are on the calendar next week, and if you are planning on such festivity you must look like the sweetheart you are by wearing one of these gay little peplum dresses. A hint dropped in a receptive ear might even lead to a delightful Valentine in the shape of one of these smart dresses.

Sheer navy and chartreuse form a crisp combination for this season, and the two piecer at the left is an example of a strikingly simple dress. Cap sleeves and peplum are banded in chartreuse. The high, collarless neckline is tied at the front with a soft bow. The gored skirt has a slight flair. The dress is available in combinations of chartreuse and navy, fuchsia and navy, and black with chartreuse. Priced under $9.

The black crepe and print jersey combination in the center is dressy and decorative. The slim skirt is topped with a vivid all-over floral print of purple, white, green, and cinnamon. The flattering vee neckline and soft cap sleeves are graceful features. A twisted belt and shirred peplum also are interesting details. It is available in sizes 9 to 15.

The black sheer crepe one-piecer at the right is an example of youthful sophistication. Unadorned and arrow slim in back, the dress presents unusual dressmaker detail in the use of white silk braid stitched on the front bodice and around the slightly shirred peplum. The cap sleeves are so brief they present an illusion of extended shoulders. It is available in sizes 12 to 18.

Comedy Team Extracts Some Movie Laughs

"SHE GETS HER MAN."

By Mae Tinée.

This is strictly on the silly side, but has a good cast, led by Joan Davis and Leon Errol, a team who make it quite palatable.

Joan is a lady detective, a job she lands because her mother once was chief of police of the town of Clayton, and she's out to nab a mysterious murderer. Mr. Errol aids and abets her, and they're both capable clowns.

I got quite a chuckle out of Miss Davis' method of recruiting men to fight on her side. She simply goes out and irritates 'em into chasing her and then leads them to where they'll do the most good. Seems like a good stunt, particularly if your legs are as long as Joan's and you can move 'em as fast as she can.

Quite unorthodox in their methods, the two sleuths have a fine time while at work, and the audience at the Palace seemed to enjoy it all, too.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 8.—Pat O'Brien will do the life of Al Smith, which is titled "The Happy Warrior." If R. K. O. doesn't buy it for Pat, Warners will. After all, he was one of Warner's biggest moneymakers, and it would be mighty glad to get him back. This picture, if done properly, could be an academy award picture. . . . Metro has purchased "Army Brat" for Jackie Jenkins. They're saying that's a perfect title. He's the lad who was born in an army post, grew up there, and didn't like it. Jackie doesn't like anything—especially girls. He's only 6, so he'll outgrow that. . . . Heigh ho! A notice from New York says that Greta Garbo is trying to get herself set in radio. That I don't believe. . . . Metro will certainly miss Walter Reisch when he moves over to Columbia. Walter was very much interested in Teddy Lynch's singing in one sequence of "The Lost Week-End." He's been writing "Mr. and Mrs. Opera" for Metro.

Olivia de Havilland's Comeback.

Olivia de Havilland, down to 99 pounds, sure looks like "The Well Groomed Bride." That picture has been kicked around plenty. Now Ray Milland is doing it. The story tells how Ray met Olivia while looking for champagne in a wineshop. He wants to launch a ship; she wants it for a wedding. The girl gets the bottle first, and for six reels he tries to get it away from her. I'm wondering why Paramount builds actors like Ray in "Lost Week-End" [which I understand will scare the citizens into sobriety] and then hands him a story as trivial as "The Well Groomed Bride." . . . Since Jan Clayton has gone to New York for "Carousel," Sam Marx will hold up the picture, "New Horizons," until she finishes the "Carousel" New York run.

Short Shorts About the Stars.

Eloise O'Brien [Mrs. Pat] received a call from the treasury department in Washington asking her to make a cross country speaking tour on behalf of war bonds. . . . Helen Forrest sings that old one "Out of Nowhere" as the theme song in "You Came Along." . . . Maureen O'Hara has been promised "Razor's Edge" if she'll do "Kitten on the Keys" for 20th Century. . . . Dick Foran, who owned 21 acres in Northridge, was persuaded to sell it. Now the new buyer has discovered oil on it. . . . Bob Preston is in Germany, his father's a seabee at Guam, and another brother is in England. . . . Ralph Bellamy, for his own enjoyment, made some recordings of Walt Whitman's poems. They went so well he's now recording Omar Khayyam, and 50,000 already have been ordered for next Christmas.

Almost Missed Out on the Show.

Ann Rutherford almost missed out on the Eddie Bracken show, which was so good. Al Rackin wanted Ann to go on a goodwill tour to Mexico. She couldn't, so suggested he get her friends, and named them. In the meantime, she auditioned with Eddie for his show. A week later, she was called to the phone, and she thought she was talking to Rackin, so said, "I'm terribly sorry but I can't. Why don't you get——" Then named all her friends she's named before for the Mexico trip. By the tone of the voice at the other end, she realized he was getting impatient, because he said, "O, you can't, eh?" She said, "Now, listen, Al——" "Al!" said the voice, "——this is Eddie Bracken. I called up to tell you you were chosen for my show." Said he, "if she'd mentioned one more name, I would have been completely discouraged." . . . John Stahl may switch from "Leave Her to Heaven" to directing "Forever Amber." I wonder whether they've thought of Lauren Bacall for that one?

PAUL BROWN NAMED CLEVELAND PRO COACH

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

ALTHO the White Sox disappointed their followers when the final American league returns were in for the 1944 season, there was nothing wrong with their courage in the clutch, as the boys say. . . . The south siders were third in the number of one-run victories and were second to the New York Yankees in overtime triumphs. . . . Jimmy Dykes' boys won 13 extra inning battles, including four from the Champion St. Louis Browns, while losing nine. . . . Willis Hudlin, who returns to the Little Rock Southern association as manager this season, expects to take his regular turn on the mound. . . . The Phillies expect to be in full step with the youth-in-baseball movement when the 1945 campaign opens, with 17 year olds Granny Hammer and Putsy Caballero at shortstop and second base, respectively. . . . Both boys finished the 1944 season in Philly uniforms. . . . The Phils would go to the other age extreme if they chose and start as battery mates 43 year old Freddy Fitzsimmons and 44 year old Mervin Shea. . . . The National league, founded Feb. 2, 1876, will be playing its 70th season when the barrier goes up in April. . . . Ray Prim, Cubs southpaw, did his first professional pitching with his name in reverse. . . . He was "P. Ray" with Alexandria, La., in the Cotton States league 17 years ago while he was a student at Alabama Poly.

Bob Wiese, Michigan's 1944 football captain, has been transferred to the reserve midshipman's school operated in conjunction with the Naval academy at Annapolis. . . . Dave Danner, former high scoring member of the University of Iowa basketball squad who tried to make a comeback this winter after receiving a medical discharge from the navy, has given up. . . . Dave is suffering from arthritis. . . . Johnny Allen of the New York Giants is the only major league pitcher now in action who has celebrated two birthdays during the course of one winning streak. . . . With Cleveland John had a 17 game American league winning string, starting Sept. 10, 1936, and continuing until he bumped into the Detroit Tigers Oct. 3, 1937. . . . His birthday is Sept. 30. . . . George Wick, a Cleveland Golden Gloves welterweight and ex-marine, is an undertaker's assistant. . . . High schools in Ohio are planning interscholastic hockey competition next winter. . . . Mike Jacobs, who plans to offer weekly boxing bouts in the Polo Grounds next summer, is of the opinion that Joe Louis will change his mind about retiring after one more fight—with Billy Conn. . . . Add signs of spring: The Detroit Tigers announce their new uniforms will be ready within the next week. . . . Catcher Frank Hayes of the Athletics hit two four-run homers during 1944. . . . Pitchers Rufus Gentry and Walter [Boom Boom] Beck, both of Detroit, were the victims. . . . Music for tonight's Golden Gloves program in the Milwaukee auditorium will be supplied by a chorus of 55 voices from the Waukesha industrial school for boys.

I Love You This Much:

How much, dear, do I love you?
Well, let's see what words will do:

More than all the birds and bees
All the shrubs and budding trees
Everything that nature frees
In lovely spring.

How much, darling, do I care?
You don't mean you're not aware!

Much more than the moon and stars
Grains of sand on seaside bars
Flowers sweet from earth to Mars
This gorgeous day.

And yet, I fear I'm quite obtuse
So, let's resort to this:
Suppose I demonstrate, my dear, and
Seal it with a kiss.

I dream of that bright day in some glad spring
For I have clasped my loved one unto me.

Alas! The morning comes and I awake,

Northwestern at Michigan.
Ohio State at Wisconsin.
Great Lakes at Western Michigan.
Carbondale at Illinois Normal.
Parsons at Culver-Stockton.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Ohio State's basketball team, tied with Iowa in the Western conference race, can take undisputed possession of first place tonight if it defeats Wisconsin in Madison. The Hawkeyes are not scheduled until tomorrow evening at Indiana, but again Ohio State still can maintain its advantage that night by beating Northwestern in the opening contest of the Stadium double header.

Actually, since all conference teams play 12 games, the lost column in the standings is more important and altho Illinois has won only three games, the Illini have lost only one and thus threaten both Ohio State and Iowa in the concluding three weeks of the campaign.

Wolverine Goal Is .500 Mark.

The other conference game tonight matches Northwestern and Michigan in Ann Arbor. If the Wolverines get their fifth victory they will have a .500 standing. Tomorrow night Michigan invades Wisconsin and then finishes the season a week from tonight against Northwestern in the Stadium.

On the basis of the game last Saturday between Ohio State and Wisconsin in Columbus, O., which the Buckeyes won 40 to 36, tonight's contest would seem to be a tossup. Wisconsin lost three consecutive road games last week to Purdue, Michigan, and Ohio State, after beating Northwestern 44 to 43 in the Stadium. The Badgers, on a familiar floor, may surprise the defending title holders.

Ohio State will have a decided advantage in height, of course, but more important the Buckeyes can call on Arnold Risen, center, and Don Grate, forward, for full time service, if necessary. Grate's speed may be needed particularly, but Bill Pfeiffer is a most capable substitute for Risen.

Clawson to Keep Job.

Northwestern, seeking to end its string of five conference defeats, probably will keep Frank Clawson at one of the guard positions. Clawson, injured before the start of the football season, just now is in playing condition. Against Purdue, Capt. Benny Schadler was moved from guard to forward to make room for Clawson, who was paired with Frank Wright. Max Morris, leading conference scorer, of course continues at center. The other forward selection is indefinite.

Michigar will send Don Lund against Morris tonight. The Wolverine line-up remains the same, with Bob Geahan and John Mullaney, forwards, and Walter Kell and Don Lindquist, guards.

The Ohio State squad will arrive here tomorrow for the game with Northwestern at 8 p. m. in the Stadium. The Wildcats also return tomorrow morning. At about the same hour, the Oklahoma Aggies, led by their 7 foot center, Bob Kurland, will arrive in Chicago's loop for their engagement tomorrow night in the Stadium second game with De Paul. The Aggies will work out briefly at noon on the Stadium floor.

Five boxers of the Madison club, where Bob Howard is the coach, have won north sectional titles to qualify for Monday's competition. One is an open class winner and the others are novices. Representatives of the organization earned nine points in last year's city championship meet to finish third in the contest for the team trophy, which was captured by the Savoy A. C. with 21 points. The Catholic Youth organization was second with 11.

Fine Addition, Says Ameche; Other Clubs Welcome Brown

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 8 [Special].—Don Ameche, screen and radio star who with Christy Walsh owns the Los Angeles franchise in the All-America football conference, tonight said he thought the addition of Lt. [j. g.] Paul Brown to the roster of the league's coaches was the biggest single development since the organization was formed last summer.

"The day is gone when professional football teams can get by with unknown coaches and players," Ameche said. "The fans want to see the best. They will get it in the All-America conference. Paul Brown certainly would have to be included in anybody's list of the country's top five college coaches. Congratulations to Arthur McBride for his enterprise in signing a coach of Brown's national standing."

PREDICTS PACKED BOWL

Miami, Fla., Feb. 8 [Special].—Genial Harvey Hester, president of the Miami club in the All-America conference, predicts that the Cleveland team, led by Paul Brown, will fill the Orange bowl the first time it visits Miami.

"Every one is acquainted with Brown's reputation as a college coach," Hester stated, "but we have one just as good in Lt. Comdr. Jack Meagher. Cleveland had better bring a good team when it runs up against the squad Meagher and his assistant, Ensign Hampton Pool, are recruiting from the Fort Pierce Naval base and elsewhere. But the team I'm really gunning for is Los Angeles. Every one knows that Florida has prettier girls and better weather than California and soon they'll find out that we also have a better professional football team."

SEES BIG RIVALRY

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 8 [Special].—"That's great news," said Sam Cordovano, co-owner and coach of the Buffalo club in the All-America conference, when he was informed of the appointment of Lt. Paul Brown as head coach and general manager of the Cleveland club.

"Cleveland and Buffalo, because of their proximity, are sure to develop a great inter-city rivalry," he predicted. "Cleveland has a stadium seating 83,000 and ours holds 53,000. The time is not distant when these vast athletic plants will be none too large to handle the crowds."

Figures Reveal Brown's Rise to Coaching Fame

EXAMPLE FOR OTHERS

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 8 [Special].—"I am happy that Arthur McBride of Cleveland followed our lead in hiring an outstanding coach," stated A. J. [Tony] Morabito, owner of the San Francisco franchise in the All-America conference. "We started the parade by engaging Buck Shaw. You'll find New York, Chicago, and the other centers which as yet have not signed coaches adopting the policy of the San Francisco, Cleveland, and Miami clubs.

"Fans are not going to flock to pro games because Morabito, Ameche, or McBride own the clubs. They'll turn out to see winning teams made up of widely known players led by established coaches. That's the way the All-America conference will be operated, even if we lose money for a few years in establishing the caliber of our entertainment."

OHIO STATE CHIEF SIGNS 5 YEAR CONTRACT AT RECORD SALARY

BY ARCH WARD.

Lt. [j. g.] Paul Brown, for three years head football coach at Ohio State university, yesterday signed a five year contract as head coach and general manager of the Cleveland team in the All-America conference. He will report for duty when he has completed his service to the United States navy.

Brown, who is football officer at the Great Lakes Naval Training center, is the third big name coach to enroll in professional football's new major league. Lt. Comdr. Jack Meagher of the Iowa Seahawks, who was head football coach and athletic director at Alabama Polytechnic for seven years, and Buck Shaw of Santa Clara university are the others. Meagher has been signed by Miami and Shaw by San Francisco.

Owner Calls It "Best Deal."

Terms of Brown's contract were not made public, but according to Arthur McBride, Cleveland taxicab magnate who owns the All-America franchise in that city, it is the best deal ever given a football coach. The agreement was drawn in Chicago.

Brown will have complete charge of the club, including the right to hire and fire all personnel on and off the field. The team will use Cleveland's Municipal stadium, which has a seating capacity of 83,000, as a home base.

"This is the toughest decision I ever have had to make," Brown said after signing the contract. "The people of Ohio and Columbus have been wonderful to me. I have been happy in my work at Ohio State university. It is difficult to leave Athletic Director St. John and other members of the athletic staff as well as my friends in Columbus.

"However, in fairness to my family this is an opportunity I cannot afford to turn down. I have every confidence in professional football and especially in the future of the All-America conference. It has been thoroly organized. It embraces the key cities of the country. I am convinced that professional football and college football will continue to prosper, side by side.

"I welcome the chance to live in Cleveland. It is like home to me. I know it is a fine sports city. We will do everything in our power to give the fans there a team of which they will be proud. We're out to win."

All He Wants Is a Title.

"I have one ambition—to give Cleveland a championship team in professional football. I have chosen the best coach in the land to help us attain that goal. Lt. Brown will have complete charge of operations, both on and off the field. I had no interest in professional football until I studied the organization of the All-America conference. It has the fundamentals for success. We are going to do our part to see that it will be a valuable contribution to the post-war sporting scene."

Lt. Brown, who is 36 years old, was graduated from Miami [O.] university in 1930 and he began his coaching career the following autumn at Severn, Md., a naval prep school. He remained there two years before returning to Massillon, O., his home town, where he attracted wide attention in high school circles. In his eight year span Massillon won 80 games, lost eight, and tied two. It lost only one game in its last 60. Brown's last team at Massillon was his best. It breezed thru the 1940 season with 10 straight victories and wasn't scored upon until the final encounter with McKinley of Canton, O., which earned a touchdown early in the game. Massillon won, 34 to 6.

Brown's Ohio State teams won 18, lost 8 and tied 1. The Buckeyes won the Big Nine conference championship in 1942.

Hopes to Do Better in 1945.

Brown was commissioned a lieutenant, junior grade, in the spring of 1944 and was assigned to Great Lakes. He was made football coach shortly before the start of the last football season when Lt. Paul D. Hinkle was transferred from Great Lakes to a tour of duty in the Pacific a few days before the Blue Jackets played their first game.

Lt. (j. g.) Paul Brown as he looked when named head football coach at Ohio State university in 1941.

The 1944 Great Lakes eleven won nine games, lost two, and tied one, but Brown said he wasn't satisfied with results. He hopes to do better next fall with adequate time to install the style of play he prefers.

ST. JOHN SORRY

Columbus, O., Feb. 8 (AP).—When informed tonight that Lt. [j. g.] Paul Brown, Ohio State university football coach on leave to the navy, had signed a five-year contract with the new Cleveland club in the All-America conference, L. W. St. John, Ohio State athletic director, said: "I am sorry he accepted the offer."

"I had hoped he would stay in the collegiate field," added St. John. He said that he had talked to Brown in Chicago last Saturday and by telephone last night.

Brown is remembered at Ohio State as a coach who demanded players with "plenty of zip" and the "lean and hungry" type. When Brown began handling his first squad back in 1941 he told the boys that he wouldn't ask them to do anything not expected from his own sons.

During games, players were not allowed to drink water and often the squad was kept running between quarters to keep up to par.

Name Four to Cull List for Majors' Czar

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Do you want to toss your hat in the ring along with the chapeaux of the host of others who are willing to do baseball a favor by accepting the commissioner's post at $50,000 per annum?

All you have to do is write a letter which may or may not be read even if opened but for the price of a three cent stamp it's worth a gamble. Address it to either Don Barnes of the St. Louis Browns or Alva Bradley of the Cleveland Indians.

They are the American league half, as announced yesterday by President Will Harridge, of a committee delegated to look over the field and make recommendations if and when they can find a candidate who wears no man's collar and is otherwise considered qualified to sit on the baseball throne made vacant last November by the death of Judge K. M. Landis.

The committee approach to the commissioner matter apparently was decided upon at last week's major league meetings in New York but nothing was said about it.

The secrecy was abandoned by degrees. Ford Frick, National league president, revealed in New York the existence of such a committee but refused to mention names. Seeing that much in print President Harridge yesterday decided he might as well unveil his two men. Frick learned of that so he quickly issued a new communique showing that his committee consisted of P. K. Wrigley, president-owner of the Chicago Cubs, and Sam Breadon who is the same with the St. Louis Cardinals.

"Both leagues," said Harridge, "agree that a commissioner should be selected as soon as practical and in order to expedite the selection the committee was named to make its canvas and then give its recommendations to the league members."

RACE IN CENTRAL SECTION IS STILL 3 TEAM AFFAIR

Lindblom, Phillips, Kelly Win Again.

Lindblom, Kelly, and Phillips went into action in the City league's central section senior basketball race yesterday tied for the lead. At the end of the day's scoring the tie persisted but Kelly's eminence had been threatened in an overtime battle with Du Sable.

Ed Durancyk flipped in three points during the overtime period to give his quintet a 30 to 29 decision. The score at the end of regular playing time was 27 to 27. Durancyk led scorers in the game with 13 points.

Lindblom Coasts to Victory.

Of the leaders, Lindblom had the easiest day's action as Harrison fell, 62 to 25. Vince Ambrosia paced the winners with 16 points. Walter Butler's 12 points led Phillips' quintet to 29 to 22 win over Gage Park.

In the west section senior race Wells knocked Marshall from a tie for second place with a 42 to 41 victory. The decision boosted Wells over Marshall to a second place tie with Austin's five which defeated Foreman handily, 50 to 29. Both Wells and Austin have won six while losing one.

Lane Fives Roll On.

The Marshall-Wells game was a give and take event thruout. The Commandos sped to a 12 to 8 lead in the first quarter and held a 21 to 20 edge at the half. Wells moved in front, 31 to 27, in the third period and weathered a Marshall rally.

Both Lane teams won their eighth straight decisions yesterday, riding over Amundsen. The seniors were victorious, 44 to 25, as Bato Govedarica scored 19 points, and the juniors won, 55 to 24.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Frank Van Dalen, bearing nothing more magic than a 16 pound bowling ball and an ability to finish well, last night smashed the hex that has dominated the $43,200 Petersen Classic since it began two weeks ago come tomorrow. The 41 year old Buffalo veteran, competing as a substitute for Henry Casper of his home town, accomplished what no member of the preceding 40 squads had been able to do. He toppled 1,600 sticks in his shot at the first prize of $5,100, leading thrust in the battle which will continue until midnight Sunday.

Last night, on a squad which included Paul Krumske of Chicago, brief and brilliant holder of the national match game championship, Van Dalen, a clerk in a Buffalo plant, shot games of 185, 212, 205, 190, 187, and 175. The six game effort gave him an aggregate of 1,154, a figure which had been previously outdone for the same distance by a number of others.

Then Frank came thru, where his rivals hadn't. Most of them had outdone the 1,200 mark for six games, then collapsed on the last two assignments. Van Dalen didn't. He shot 222 in his No. 7 chore, and wound up with a 224, these being wrought on one of the graveyard pairs at the Archer-35th alleys, 15 and 16.

HOW TO BREATHE KUM BUM STYLE SHOWN AT TRIAL

You Accentuate Positive, Widow Testifies.

The teachings of Hugh Greer [Kum Bum] Carruthers, founder of the Neological Foundation, were not unlike the lyrics of a popular song, defense witnesses declared yesterday in Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan's court. The song goes:

At least that was the way one witness, Mrs. Merle Pennock of Waukegan, a widow, explained the deep breathing and study of neological doctrines of the Brooklyn born "doctor" to Assistant United States Atty. Francis J. McGreal upon cross-examination.

Demonstration in Breathing.

Carruthers, she said, taught her how to breath with the positive [right] nostril in the day time "to offset the solar polarity of the universe," and with the negative [left] nostril at night "to offset the lunar."

McGreal asked her to demonstrate and, after receiving a nod from the court in reply to her, "Do I have to?" she held one side of her nose and took a deep breath. She explained, however, that once a student learned how, it was not necessary to hold the nostril.

Eight witnesses were placed on the stand by the defense yesterday, all of whom admitted donating money to Carruthers without thought of the money as an investment.

Carruthers, professed student in a Tibetan lamasery for 21 years, is on trial for mail fraud violations. With Miss Mary Morel, 42, his business manager, and Miss Evelyn Kroell, his secretary, he is charged with fraudulently obtaining more than $289,000 thru the Neological Foundation.

Borrowed $300 from Defendant.

Raymond Butman, 30, of 2234 Narragansett av., a tool grinder, testified he had made a $10 loan to Carruthers once, but that when he needed money for hospital bills some time ago, Carruthers loaned him nearly $300. Butman said he still owed the defendant $120.

At the request of McGreal, Butman gave an involved explanation of Kum Bum's teachings on proper breathing. He talked about the effect of the sun and moon upon the tides and the water in the body, and how proper breathing could harmonize the individual with the universe.

McGreal asked several witnesses about their education. None that he asked had finished high school.

On cross-examination, Arthur Lange, 2237 Giddings st., admitted he had heard Carruthers describe himself as a doctor of medicine, a doctor of divinity, and a student of Oxford.

For the first time since the trial started, the courtroom was filled, mostly with foundation followers.

CHICAGO RELIEF ROSTER CUT 168 TO 29,146 TOTAL

One hundred sixty-eight persons were removed from the city relief rolls and placed in jobs in January, George J. Klupar, commissioner of the Chicago welfare administration, announced yesterday. He said the net decrease was 108 persons, to a total of 29,146. The count at the end of December was 29,254 and at the end of January, 1944, it was 36,400.

In 1944, Klupar said, 3,253 persons on relief were placed in jobs. Placements continue to be made, he added, despite the fact that long ago relief administrators thought they had reached the "bottom of the barrel" of employable persons.

Persons with both physical and neurotic handicaps who thought they never again would work have been placed in jobs recently, he said.

CITY'S CATHOLIC SCHOOLS TOP U.S. IN PAPER DRIVE

The Chicago Catholic parochial schools' record of 12,000,000 pounds of waste paper collected in 1944, the best figure for parochial schools in any metropolitan area in the country, was officially commended yesterday when war production board citations were presented to the three ranking schools.

The Chicago record, which topped that of New York parochial schools by 2,000,000 pounds, was noted in a ceremony at the office of the Rt. Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, senior auxiliary bishop of Chicago. Awards were made to the following schools: St. Joseph's, 8801 Marquette av.; St. James, 2441 N. Menard av.; and Assumption, 12242 Parnell av. They ranked first, second, and third, respectively, among the city's 400 parochial elementary schools.

St. Joseph Stands First.

St. Joseph's school, which was represented by Dolores Zultz, 13, of 8850 Exchange av., averaged 162 pounds of paper per pupil per school month in 1944. The figure for St. James' school was 141 pounds and for Assumption one pound less. Janine Koziol, 13, of 2626 N. Oak Park av., accepted the citation for St. James, and Julia Jachowicz, 13, of 12344 Normal av., for Assumption.

Participating in the ceremony were Bishop Sheil, representing the Catholic salvage bureau, which handles paper collection in the area; Sister Superior Concepta of Assumption school; Sister Superior Leonilla of St. James' school; John R. Robinson, representing the Chicago Newspaper Publishers' association; and James T. O'Connor, executive secretary of the salvage division of WPB.

Get 600,000 Pounds a Week.

In a single week's drive the Chicago Catholic schools have collected 600,000 pounds of paper, it was announced. The salvage bureau makes weekly pickups and the funds from the sales to dealers are assigned to charitable work of the bureau.

Thousands of dollars thus raised are assigned to the Lewis Aeronautical school at Lockport for the air education of deserving boys, Bishop Sheil said.

FRENCH HANDED U. S. PROPOSAL ON LEND-LEASE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8 [Special].—The French government tonight was handed a United States plan for an over-all supply program, including a reported lend-lease agreement totaling 1½ billion dollars.

The plan, given by the state department to Jean Monnet, top French economic representative, included lend-lease and reciprocal aid agreements unofficially estimated at 2½ billion dollars. One reliable source said the part of the program not covered by lend-lease would be supplied according to American dollar values in French credit on deposit in this country.

Gen. De Gaulle and his leaders will decide for the French whether to accept, decline, or modify the proposal. Under existing lend-lease rules, President Roosevelt may continue deliveries to France until 1948 if the agreement is signed before July 1 of this year.

Meanwhile, at a house foreign affairs committee hearing on proposals to extend the lend-lease program for a year after its expiration June 30, Rep. Voorys [R., O.] said he opposed the extension until President Roosevelt disclosed what commitments he had made at the present Big Three conference.

ADMITS USING $2,500 OF U. S. SURPLUS FUNDS

Auctioneer Denies Offering Bribe.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—Jacob Goldberg, politically sponsored auctioneer, admitted before the senate war investigation committee today he had checked $2,500 into his company's private bank account from a trust fund of receipts from sale of government surplus property.

He denied, in response to interrogation, that any of this $2,500 was used to buy nylon hosiery for a secretary or for cocktails and dinners for army officers. A list of such purchases by Goldberg were noted in his company's record of his expenses subpenaed by the committee.

"The committee," said Sen. Mead [D., N. Y.], chairman, "isn't interested in your hosiery and cocktail purchases unless they were used to get government business or unless they are to be charged to your expenses in auctioneering government property."

Quizzed on First War.

With the fat, silver haired auctioneer on the witness stand for three hours, other developments included these:

1. Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.] asked Goldberg to try to recall whether he tendered $25,000 to an auctioneer in a room of a Junction City, Kas., hotel, with detectives in the next room, during a sale of government surplus property from a near-by army camp following the first World war. Goldberg said he couldn't be expected to remember an incident 24 years ago.

2. Goldberg labeled as a lie testimony by John Van Ginhoven, a $5,600 a year employe of the Defense Plant corporation, that Goldberg last December had offered Van Ginhoven a farm and a $15,000 a year job in return for a favorable report to DPC on Goldberg's surplus property disposal program.

3. Two DPC employes testified they were directed to "doctor" the DPC records of two surplus property auction sales after the senate committee had subpenaed these records.

Propriety of Action Questioned.

4. Sen. Mead directed Goldberg to return to the committee on Monday prepared with a statement as to the propriety of the auctioneer's use of the names of high government officials in soliciting business as a government sales agent. The names included Jesse Jones and Bernard Baruch who became involved, according to previous testimony, thru Herbert Bayard Swope, a consultant to Secretary of War Stimson. Swope is related by marriage to Herbert Brandt, a partner in Goldberg's enterprise, Surplus Liquidators, Inc.

Most of the disclosures lacked elucidation. Goldberg, contradicting the contention of the senators, said he had and has a right to use his $140,000 receipts from the sale of government property until his audit is complete and the DPC demands the money. He said he signed the check, transferring $2,500 from a special account containing the sales receipts to his company's regular account which was overdrawn. He said his bank wired the committee yesterday to explain the error.

Telegram Not Clear.

The bank's telegram, however, left the senators still puzzled, they said. Merchants Trust company of New York wired that "thru error on our part credited regular account with $7,041.99 deposit instead of special account."

From expense memorandums from the company's files, Mead read items of $24.50 for cocktails at the Gladstone hotel; $67 for entertaining an army colonel; $12 for two pairs of nylons for a secretary of the American Radiator company for a letter, and other items for entertaining an army major and an army captain.

"Was the letter you obtained," asked Ferguson, "the recommendation you got as an auctioneer from a former president of American Radiator?"

"It was a different letter," said Goldberg.

"Was the major from the army air corps and were you asking him to help you get war contract termination work?" the senator continued.

"Yes, sir," was the answer.

Ferguson, in referring to something that happened in Kansas a quarter of a century ago, read from a document which he did not identify at the hearing or later.

Record Alteration Related.

In denying his alleged attempt at bribery last December, Goldberg was asked to offer any possible motive for Van Ginhoven to fabricate. "I showed him where government property under his jurisdiction was being allowed to go to waste," said Goldberg.

Charles G. Ferris, a DPC construction supervisor, and Thomas Grattan, a DPC supervisory engineer, told of receiving a telephone call from Washington, D. C., directing them to revise and augment the DPC records of Goldberg's auction sales subpenaed by the committee, by copying entries from Goldberg's books. They protested, they testified, but were told by their superiors, "You're in the army [actually the DPC] now and you do what you're told."

Buick Builds 2 New Army Plane Engines

Two powerful new aviation engines for the army air forces are being made in large numbers in the Melrose Park plant of the Buick aviation engine division, General Motors corporation, Harlow H. Curtice, vice president of General Motors and chief executive of Buick, disclosed yesterday. The new engines are in addition to the two previously in production.

Largely expanded employment will be required to meet army requirements, Curtice said. It will be several months before the plant reaches full production on its new assignment.

Involve New Design.

The new engines are an 1,830 cubic inch displacement, 14 cylinder Pratt & Whitney Twin Wasp, designed to give more speed, range, altitude, and power to the Liberator bombers, and a 2,000 cubic inch displacement 14 cylinder Twin Wasp, to propel the giant four engine Douglas C-54 military transports—of the type built by Douglas near Park Ridge—at more than 275 miles an hour.

The two engines long in production also are P. & W. power plants used in bombers and cargo ships.

Curtice said the new engines include new elements of design which increase their efficiency above current models. Substantial retooling, engineering, and processing was required to bring them into production, while work proceeded on the older engines of which more than 30,500 were produced last year.

Task of Magnitude.

"The accelerated aircraft engine program means production operations on this phase of our war job comparable with the peak months of 1944 and probably will result in a larger over-all output of engines than last year," Curtice said. "Altho last year was a record year in output, it was marked by fluctuations in schedules to meet military need. We are again on an accelerating basis, with heavy schedules forecast for the remainder of the year."

Curtice said the task of putting the new engines into production was one of "magnitude, comparable to the program which put Buick into aircraft production four years ago." Parts were not interchangeable with the engines previously built. About 50 per cent of the man hours required on the new engines is handled at Buick's Flint plants and the remainder, including assembly and testing, is performed at Melrose Park.

LIFT ALUMINUM PRODUCTION TO AVOID SHORTAGE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8 [Special].—Concerned over the steadily decreasing stockpile of aluminum, the WPB today ordered four companies to increase their combined production of ingots a total of 10 million pounds a month to avoid any shortage.

The companies previously had been ordered to curtail operations in a general effort to level off production at a point in line with requirements. Total ingot production in the United States had been reduced to about 50 per cent of capacity after aluminum had been officially described as being so plentiful it was "coming out of our ears."

The increased production was ordered at mills of the Aluminum Company of America at Massena, N. Y., Badin, N. C., and Niagara Falls, N. Y., and of Defense Plant corporation at Spokane, Wash., which will provide about 6 million pounds of the increase.

STOCK MARKET RISE STALLED BY THOUGHT OF NAZI DEFEAT SOON

New York, Feb. 8 (AP).—The stock market stalled today as the Russians drew nearer Berlin and the possibility of early victory in Europe tended to chill speculative enthusiasm.

Oils and assorted specialties with good post-war prospects made fair progress, but most rails and other armament benefited issues declined.

Dealings tapered at intervals, but sizable blocks of low priced issues put volume for the full proceedings at approximately 1,530,000 shares, compared with 1,499,470 yesterday. The Associated Press 60 stock average was off 0.1 at 60, first recession since Jan. 30. Of 971 issues traded, 369 gained and 379 closed lower.

RAIL, UTILITY BONDS RISE.

New York, Feb. 8 (AP).—Rails and utilities were steady to higher in the bond market today. A few gains ran to a point or more, but the general run of issues fluctuated within a fractional range and all major groups had many lower issues. Sales of approximately $10,060,000 were reported by the stock exchange, compared with $9,457,300 yesterday.

CHICAGO PRICES RISE.

Prices rose on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday in decreased turnover of 47,000 shares. Among active issues were Aviation corporation, up ⅝; Chicago corporation and Commonwealth Edison, each down ⅛, and Kellogg Switchboard, up ⅝ to a new 1944-'45 high of 8⅛.

CONTAINER NET EARNINGS SLIP, SALES AT PEAK

Squeezed by Fixed Prices, Cost Rise.

Walter P. Paepcke.

The company has experienced an increasing "squeeze" between slowly rising costs and fixed price ceilings, said Paepcke. Gross profit on sales before federal income taxes was 15.1 per cent in 1944, against 16.98 per cent in 1943.

Net income of the Chicago company, largest domestic producer of paperboard containers and packaging materials, was $2,063,200, or $2.64 a share, after a $600,000 war and post-war reserve. Profit in 1943 was $2,184,054, or $2.80 a share, after a similar reserve of $500,000.

Detroit Edison Earns Less.

Consolidated net sales were $69,600,000, an increase of 13.68 per cent from 1943 and a new peak for the company, Paepcke said.

Detroit Edison company's sales of electricity in 1944 reached an all-time high as a result of Detroit's large volume of war production and the attendant increase in population, said Prentiss M. Brown, chairman, and James W. Parker, president. Net income, however, declined to $6,544,621, or $1.03 a share, from $8,791,014, or $1.88 a share, in 1943.

Gross earnings were reduced in the final quarter of 1944 in accordance with a court order impounding $10,450,000 of electric revenues, pending review of a Michigan public service commission rate rebate order. Six-sevenths of the amount represents a reduction in federal excess profits taxes and the remainder reduced net income.

With no rate rebate order and no impoundment of funds, 1944 profit would have approximated $1.26 a share, instead of $1.03, said Brown and Parker. No provision was made for possible liability under Detroit and other municipal excise tax ordinances under court review.

Paper Work "Fantastic."

The report called attention to the "necessary evil" of paper work "behind the scenes" which sometimes reaches a "fantastic amount."

"To get the required materials to serve our customers, Detroit Edison has had to file 12,111 individual applications with the war production board," it said. "The thousands of restrictive orders caused by the war require a reference set of 17 volumes to keep the company up to date."

J. I. Case company had net income in its fiscal year ended Oct. 31 of $2,137,553, against $2,420,457 in 1943, said Leon R. Clausen, president. Sales rose 9.5 per cent above 1943, with farm machinery sales doubling to represent 57 per cent of total sales.

ASK TRUMAN AID AGAINST VINSON WAGE CASE RULE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8 (AP).—CIO United Packing House Workers' representatives said today they had enlisted the aid of Vice President Truman to try to pry loose a war labor board decision on their wage demands.

They said the WLB is ready to rule in the 18 month old case, but that Stabilization Director Vinson is freezing this and other cases in the board thru restrictions on "fringe" worker demands—those involving correction of inequities, shift differentials, and the like—as differentiated from general wage rises.

They said Truman promised to intervene with Vinson. They then went to see other legislators from their states. Vinson's office refused to comment and Vinson would not receive a union delegation.

Sears Sales Up 24.7 Pct. in Month, 15.9 Pct. in Year

Sears, Roebuck & Co. yesterday reported sales were $74,493,502 in January, final month in its fiscal year, an increase of 24.7 per cent from a year earlier. Volume in the 12 months ended Jan. 31 aggregated $1,015,382,935, a gain of 15.9 per cent over the preceding year.

Grains Slump as Big Dealers Trim Holdings

Liquidation by holders of grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday eliminated about half of the price advance of the last three weeks. Rye led the decline and closed 3 to 3½ cents a bushel lower. Wheat was down 2¼ to 2⅝, corn 1 to 1⅜, oats 2¼ to 2⅜, and barley ⅞ to 1⅛.

Favorable war news and the return of higher temperatures were given by brokers as the main factors in a switch to the selling side by professional traders and commission houses who had been persistent buyers since mid-January.

Hope for More Cars.

Some predicted a larger supply of box cars to move grain would result from the improved weather, but cash grain handlers said the car situation was as tight as ever. Cash wheat and oats sold at or near ceiling prices.

Many stop-loss orders to sell were uncovered as prices declined. Brokers said some hedging sales in wheat and corn were made, suggesting a larger movement from country points in the near future.

Altho opinion varies widely as to whether or not an end to the war in Europe would form a basis for higher grain prices, many operators decided to even up their position in the market pending further news of the Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin conference.

Canadian Oats Bought.

Confirmation that 300,000 bushels or more of Canadian oats had been bought for shipment at the opening of lake navigation weakened futures and more than offset sales of choice quality oats in the cash market at 16 to 18 cents over the May price.

Country offerings of cash corn increased and purchases of 300,000 bushels or more were made by Chicago interests for deferred shipment. Other markets also were said to have bought large quantities.

SHEEP AND LAMB PRICES ADVANCE; CATTLE STEADY

Demand for meat animals sent sheep and lamb prices up 15 to 25 cents yesterday in the Chicago stock yards to new high levels for the winter. The lamb top advanced 20 cents, to $16.85, highest since last May, and within 25 cents of the highest since 1929. Best old ewes were quoted up to $9.

Despite the fact cattle supplies the first four days of this week were largest for four consecutive February sessions since 1917, most kinds sold near the best for the week. Some higher priced beef cows brought slightly lower prices.

DUTCH GET NEW YORK BANK CREDIT LINE OF ABOUT 100 MILLIONS

New York, Feb. 8 (AP).—A loan agreement between a group of 14 New York banks headed by the Chase National and the royal Netherlands government was signed today providing the Netherlands a credit line approximating 100 million dollars.

The credit is for approximately three years and carries an interest rate of 1½ per cent annually on all sums advanced. The loan was secured by equivalent gold assets of the Dutch government in the United States.

The loan is the first private arrangement of its kind extended to a liberated country to facilitate rehabilitation and post-war reconstruction. It is regarded as an interim affair, subject to prepaying in whole or in part without premium or penalty on 30 days' notice.

RESTRICTED TO NEW YORK.

Banks outside New York are not sharing in the Dutch loan, it was learned. "We probably will not be asked to participate in such credits until all the gold collateral is tied up," a Chicago banker said.

People and Events

The law firm of Levinson, Becker & Peebles, 1 N. La Salle st., announced that Maj. Harold M. Keele has resumed his association with the firm after 2½ years of active service with the army air forces, mostly in France and England as intelligence training officer. Capt. Arthur J. Lunn, Jesse J. Holland, and Bernard Savin. Lt. Comdr. Frank Greenberg remains in active service with the navy.

Maj. H. M. Keele.

SHERIDAN-GRACE PROPERTY SALE BRINGS $600,000

The 17 story Sheridan-Grace apartment building, 3800 Sheridan rd., was sold yesterday for $600,000 by the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee, to a Chicago syndicate thru Glatt & Price, broker. The original investment in 1926 was placed at about 3 million, with financing done thru a Greenbaum bond issue of $2,150,00. The property was reorganized and had been operated as a liquidation trust. Bondholders were expected to receive $25.70 per $100 invested.

The Republic Realty Mortgage corporation negotiated a first mortgage 20 year loan of $500,000 with the new owner. Title was taken by the Liberty National Bank of Chicago, trustee. The building contains 95 units of 2½ to 10 rooms, whose size will not be changed. The new owner will spend $150,000 on repairs.

The former trust managers of the property were Murray Wolbach, J. C. McCord, Stephen E. Hurley, and L. D. McKendry, assistant vice president of Chicago Title and Trust.

NORTH WESTERN VOTES TO RETIRE LAST RFC DEBT

Directors of the Chicago and North Western railway voted yesterday to call the road's final $6,224,000 of indebtedness to the Reconstruction Finance orporation. Payment will be made July 1, the next call date.

Removal of the debt, which originally totaled $46,830,000, will free the road of any direct governmental influence thru the RFC. The Illinois Central cleared its debt to the RFC in 1943, and the Chicago and Eastern Illinois was reported to have its RFC debt repayment under consideration.

North Western directors also discussed the possible refinancing of the company's $47,980,000 first mortgage and $6,500,000 divisional mortgage. Certain preliminary steps were authorized, but final decision on the refinancing was deferred. The board approved a $62,640,000 maintenance and improvement program for 1945, exclusive of new equipment purchases previously authorized.

CANADIAN GOLD SPECULATIONS OFFERED IN U.S.

Investors Warned of 'Penny Shares.'

A new gold rush is on! Canadian gold mine syndicates seeking easy war time money are flooding this country with telephone calls and mail urging investors to buy the rankly speculative stocks, which in many instances sell at low prices.

These unregistered issues are outside the control of the securities and exchange commission and the securities department of the Illinois secretary of state's office. The Illinois department has made no attempt to warn investors to shun such investments.

SEC Efforts Hindered.

The SEC said it was hindered in its efforts to apprehend gold stock promoters violating its registration requirements because of laws which prohibit extradition of violators of the regulations. The government has obtained secret indictments against some offenders and seized them when they came into this country, but the process is slow.

Three convictions obtained in Detroit last fall were based on indictments issued about three years earlier, the SEC explained. The Illinois securities department said state laws provide no jurisdiction over such "wildcat" promoters.

Chicago securities dealers have told their customers to be wary of such offerings. They said they advise customers not to buy these stocks without first understanding that they are doing so of their own free will and without the dealer's indorsement.

"Out and Out Gambles."

"When some one comes in for some of this 2 and 3 cent stock we do not fill his order without trying to open his eyes," one Chicago dealer said. "If he insists, however, we arrange the purchase for him. These stocks are out and out gambles."

He asserted that the promoter's attempts to sell the stocks were made easier by the fact that many persons were interested in purchasing gold mine shares as a hedge against inflation, expecting the price of gold to rise in the future.

Typical is a circular mailed to this country by the Stock Trading corporation, 320 Bay st., Toronto, Ont. This solicitation said the company's property, which it failed to describe in detail, is adjacent to "one of the country's richest gold producers."

Predicts Big Profits.

"In view of the location and important results indicated from the surface work at this property, also the high type of management, we believe this new company's shares may duplicate the history of other fortune making mines," the circular continued.

The circular also told of "big profits and fortunes for American investors in Canadian gold mines," and asserted that "It is well recognized that new Canadian gold developments have established themselves as the outstanding money making investments in recent years."

Headings of sections of the circular are in the same vein, such as "New gold mining camps bring riches to farsighted investors." "Others are making new fortunes while some are 'missing the boat.'" "Relatively small investments making sizable fortunes."

Circular Includes Maps.

A circular mailed to this country by Scarab Yellowknife Prospecting syndicate, 73 Adelaide st. West, Toronto, included maps showing the properties of the company, and locating them adjacent to property where "free gold has already been discovered and samples assayed showed values of $28 in gold!"

The circular discussed big gains of other gold stocks, including Giant Yellowknife, Gypsy Yellowknife, and Bryhern Yellowknife, asserting that "due to the typical Yellowknife geology, comparable to 'Giant,' and in order to immediately diamond drill the huge, high grade formation, we intend to form the limited company within the next few weeks."

It said special consideration will be given to applications from "distant points."

Job Agencies Offer to Clear Man Scarcity

A group of Chicago private employment agency operators will offer their services to the government free with the contention that in 30 days no war or essential industry in Chicago will be short a man, except for normal turnover, if the agencies get "complete control," it was learned yesterday.

George Nicholson, 28 E. Jackson blvd., who operates four agencies, said the proposal would be sent to Senators Brooks, Lucas, and Bushfield, and to Rep. Chauncey Reed. Twenty-five Chicago operators would coöperate, 18 of them to direct interviews with applicants and seven to investigate war plants.

Regulations Held Unnecessary.

Nicholson said the agencies would ask authority "in writing" to take men from plants where they find hoarding and poor utilization of labor and transfer them to critical and priority jobs in other factories. He said they can prove Chicago has no man power shortage and that the federal government cannot show any need for recent or contemplated man power regulations.

The agency men, experienced in job placement, would send to war plants only men and women they knew were fitted for the work required, taking into consideration transportation and proximity of the job to the worker's home, factors which he said have not always been considered by the United States employment service.

Nicholson and three other fee agency officials criticized the USES and war man power commission practices. They maintained that many war plants WMC has listed as short of workers actually have many employes in idleness, "getting in each other's way."

Lack "Complete Control."

Dean William H. Spencer, regional director of WMC, insisting that an over-all labor shortage of 55,000 jobs does exist, said that neither WMC nor the USES has the "complete control" and right to halt labor hoarding by transferring workers on mandate that the employment agency men ask as a condition for their experiment. With that kind of labor control, the federal government would be able to do the job, too, and maybe in less than 30 days, he said.

"The war plants give us reports of their labor needs, each of which must be verified by the procurement agents," Dean Spencer said. "These are the only evidence upon which we can rely. The factories base their demands for workers upon the anticipated need for the next 60 days."

SHIFTS WAGE POLICIES

When reconversion to peace time production nears, the war labor board probably will adopt in its decisions on wage rates a policy more in terms of industry practices and rates rather than in terms of area practices and rates, Edgar L. Warren, regional WLB chairman, asserted yesterday. This trend is apparent in recent major decisions of the board, he said.

Speaking at the Chicago Association of Commerce luncheon in the Hotel Sherman, Warren said that as the labor supply situation changes competitive market conditions become more important to the employers converting to civilian output.

"When potential workers are available in large numbers, you will once again have to think primarily in terms of competition within your industry and it will be necessary for the board, at that time, to give much more consideration to competitive cost situations than it has done in the past," he said.

The board already has received some applications involving proposed wage decreases, but no definite policy has been established for handling the cases, he said.

RUSSIA RECEIVES 345,000 TRUCKS BY LEND-LEASE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8 [Special].—The United States shipped 345,000 motor trucks to Russia and nearly 10 times that many sets of tires and tubes thru 1944 under lend-lease, Foreign Economic Administrator Crowley reported today.

American trucks carried more than half of all supplies going to soviet troops on some sectors of the eastern front, he said.

AFL CHIEFTAINS INVITE UMW ON LEWIS' TERMS

Expect Answer for Council Session.

BY GEORGE HARTMANN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., Feb. 8.—Preparations are being made for the return of John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers' union to the American Federation of Labor, it was learned tonight.

A letter containing terms of the UMW's reaffiliation is ready for mailing to Lewis, following a decision of the executive council today. The terms, which were offered by Lewis himself, have been reduced to writing and are being sent to him "to be sure that both sides understand one another," an AFL leader said.

Council Votes Acceptance.

The agreement resulted from a meeting between Lewis and AFL President William Green last month in Washington. Lewis offered to return on these terms: [1] that his entire membership of both the UMW and District 50 of the UMW remain intact. District 50 is a catch-all organization, made up of varied types and crafts of workers; [2] That he will let the executive board of the AFL decide after his reëntry, what part of District 50 he will be able to retain and what part he must give up to other AFL unions that claim jurisdiction.

The AFL council voted to accept the terms and instructed Green to mail a copy of the "understanding" to Lewis "immediately." Whether it was mailed tonight could not be learned, but the council "expects to have an answer before it adjourns next week," the AFL leader said.

Daniel Tobin, head of the AFL teamsters' union and member of the AFL parent body, was the only "reluctant" member of the 15 man council to accept Lewis' offer, but he voted with the others and made the agreement unanimous, it was learned. Tobin has consistently held out for settlement of jurisdictional questions between District 50 and the AFL organizations involved, before the UMW be admitted.

Council Empowered to Act.

All that remains is for Lewis to admit in writing that he will abide by the agreement with Green. If he sends his reply before this council meeting adjourns, a special council meeting may be called to formally admit him to membership, because the AFL executive board was voted full power by the Boston AFL convention in 1943 to handle the entire UMW and District 50 matter.

What provisions have been made regarding the protests of the Progressive Mine Workers union to the UMW's reaffiliation could not be learned, but the indications were the PMW will be allowed to keep its present membership of 35,000.

CONGRESS ST. JIG-SAW BITS BEGIN TO FIT

Highway Blueprints Nearly All Set.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

The projected Congress st. super-highway, planned to reach from the lake shore to the western city limits, presents today a disjointed picture.

To acquire its right of way will necessitate the buying of an estimated 20 million dollars of real estate. Construction costs may be a great deal more, depending on post-war prices of material and labor.

The highway will require the widening of Congress st. by 18 feet on each side between State st. and Michigan av. It must duck under the La Salle st. railroad station. There is to be a wide bridge over the south branch of the river.

Postoffice Is Problem.

West of the oridge, Congress st. as planned will be a 400 foot wide road for speedy transportation, elevated or depressed to eliminate grade crossings. It is not certain yet whether it will be narrowed to 120 feet under the postoffice or will cut a wider swath thru the building at the second floor level.

Farther west the road makers will have to raze or remove the Presbyterian hospital nurses' home. From start to finish the highway will need hundreds of parcels of real estate lying mostly on the north side of the present Congress st.; in some sections the right of way will go thru to the south side of Van Buren st.

So ample is the proposed width that there will be room for four auto lanes on each side of a depressed right of way for elevated trains.

Buying Properties Now.

But most of the blueprints are ready and the city is now engaged in buying, under condemnation proceedings, the wanted real estate. The property from State st. to the river, with the exception of the La Salle station right of way and the Western Union building, was bought long ago at a cost of about two million dollars. Much of this property is vacant and some is being rented out by the city.

Legal experts for the city are condemning 200 or more parcels between Des Plaines st. and Ashland av. Some owners have accepted offers and others have decided to fight in court for bigger prices. The latter procedure possibly will go on thru the summer, as each case must be tried separately. Even the agreed price deals are confirmed by court orders.

Philip Harrington, city commissioner of subways and superhighways, said yesterday that no exorbitant offers are being made.

Three Way Approval.

"The city, the PWA and the state highway department must all approve the prices offered," he said. "Each has an interest as each is furnishing part of the money. Appraisals take into consideration original costs, depreciation, reproduction cost, and tax assessments made by Assessor Clark. I think the price offers as a whole between Des Plaines and Ashland are lower than the assessor's value."

Only a few purchases west of Des Plaines st. have been completed. Representative cases, showing a comparison with assessed values, are:

At 947 Congress st., two vacant lots, $5,900 paid; assessor has these lots lumped with one other lot, not purchased, on his books at $9,700.

Factory Property Bought.

At 1046 Congress, six story factory occupied by a candy firm and owned by Illinois Institute of Technology, $54,000 paid; assessed value, $54,378.

Properties east of the river, Harrington said, were bought at an average of less than 80 per cent of assessed values.

Assessor Clark said he did not believe the city had paid too much for any of its acquisitions.

The city has appropriated 12 millions to be used in the Congress st. real estate buying. The county board also has assigned $4,800,000, but as yet has made no offers to property owners from Canal st. to Des Plaines st., which the county is to buy. In each case the money will come from the city and county shares of state gasoline taxes.

Many Tax Delinquent.

Along the Des Plaines-Ashland stretch, the holdings being acquired include many vacant lots, some abandoned buildings, a few good dwellings and 30 or more industrial buildings, according to Harrington. Many of the smaller real estate parcels have been tax delinquent for 10 or more years and some owners may see their entire sale returns seized for tax payment.

COUPLE'S 4TH BABY THEIR 3D BORN ON FEB. 8

When Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Siebel, 511 17th st., Wilmette, became parents of their fourth child yesterday it was the third time one of their babies has picked Feb. 8 for a birthday. The new baby, a 7½ pound boy, arrived at 8:37 a. m. yesterday in Presbyterian hospital. He shares his birthday with a sister, Frances, 7, and a brother, Richard, 6. The youngster who chose to be different is James, born on Nov. 20, 1940. Siebel, 37, is a loupe attorney and a teacher at Kent College of Law. Both he and his wife, Ruth, 30, were born in the summer time.
